

Durham Standard

DEVOTED TO NEWS, POLITICS, EDUCATION, AND AGRICULTURE,

AND COUNTY OF GREY GENERAL ADVERTISER.

S. L. M. LUKE, Publisher.

PRICE, $1 50, IN ADVANCE.

VOL. 3. NO. 7.]

DURHAM, C. W., FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1861.

[WHOLE NUMBER, 111.]

Law Respecting Newspapers.

- 1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions. 2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publisher may send them until all arrears are paid...

Rates of Advertising.

- Six lines and under, first insertion 50 cents. Each subsequent insertion 13 " Six to ten lines, first insertion 75 " Each subsequent insertion 25 " Above ten lines, first insertion (per line) 8 " Each subsequent insertion (per line) 2 " Cards in the Business Directory, ten lines and under, per annum $4.00 Do. for six months $3.00

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

- H. E. STOVEL, Issuer of Marriage Licenses, MOUNT FOREST. DR. W. W. COOPER, CORNER, LICENSED TO PRACTICE PHYSIC, SURGERY AND MIDWIFERY, DURHAM. D. DONOHUE, GENERAL MERCHANT, Traveller's Home Inn.

Dr. Dunbar, PHYSICIAN, MOUNT FOREST.

Dec. 4, 1858.

NOTICE.

THE Subscriber informs the public that he is prepared to execute all orders for Lathing and Plastering, in the most workmanlike style, and at moderate rates. CHARLES D. McMILLAN, Durham, Dec. 2, 1858.

JOHN ELLIOTT, TAILOR.

THE Subscriber announces to the Public that he has commenced the above business in the premises adjoining the SCHOOL HOUSE. JOHN ELLIOTT, Durham, Nov. 25, 1858.

SAMUEL E. LEGATE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENSES, DURHAM.

Durham, Dec. 2, 1858.

S. B. CHAFFEY, Conveyancer, Commissioner in Court of Queen's Bench and Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Chaffey's Mills, Gleng, Jan. 12, 1859.

J. G. EDDES, Attorney at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c., MOUNT FOREST, COUNTIES OF WELLINGTON AND GREY, Mount Forest, July 21, 1859.

J. F. BROWN, DRUGGIST AND CHEMIST, Durham.

KEEPS constantly on hand a large assortment of Drugs, Chemicals, Patent Medicines, Dye Stuffs, Stationery, &c., &c. Durham, Dec. 2, 1858.

LUMBER.

For sale, by private bargain, 400,000 feet Seasoned first-class Lumber. Cattle, grain, or reliable Notes will be taken in exchange. ROBERT DALGLISH, 3rd con. N. D. R. Beattie, May 19, 1860.

H. H. STOVEL, CONVEYANCER, Fire & Life Insurance Agent, MOUNT FOREST.

UNION HOTEL, General Stage Office, FERGUS, BY R. D. COULSON.

STAGES leave this house for Guelph, Arthur, Mount Forest, Durham, and Owen Sound DAILY.

Travellers' Home Inn, BY THEODORE ZASS, Township of Arthur, 26 miles from Durham, 10 from Mount Forest, and 17 miles from Fergus.

ALEX. B. McNAB, POSTMASTER, Conveyancer, Commissioner in Queen's Bench and Commission General Agent.

THE Canada Landed Credit Company, BENTINCK POST OFFICE, DURHAM, COUNTY OF GREY Durham, Dec. 2, 1858.

INSURANCE.

The subscriber is Agent for the Corn Exchange Fire and Inland Navigation Insurance Co. SURPLUS, OVER $28,000.

DR. CRAWFORD, DURHAM, CORONER FOR THE COUNTY OF GREY.

ARGYLE HOTEL, DURHAM, BY A. McFARLANE.

BAR AND LARDER WELL SUPPLIED Good Stabling and attentive hostler. Durham, 28 June, 1859.

SAUGREEN HOTEL, PRICEVILLE, BY E. B. McMILLAN.

MAY'S HOTEL, BAY STREET, OWEN SOUND, C. W.

THIS Hotel has all the advantages of a first class one, and is the most convenient to the Seaboard Landing and Curt House. Stages leave this house daily for Durham and Saugreen, also for Collingwood, daily, during Winter.

ROB ROY HOTEL, PRICEVILLE, BY G. E. SIMPSON.

THIS HOUSE HAS LATELY BEEN REPAIRED in an efficient manner. The bar is supplied with the best wines and liquors and a Lard &c will at all times be found suited to the wants and tastes of the travelling community.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT APPLICATION will be made to the Municipal Council of the Township of Gleng, at its session to be held on the twenty-first day of January, 1860, or some subsequent session, for establishing a new road affecting lot No. twenty-eight, in the seventh concession of the said township of Gleng, as shown on a plan of survey, filed in the Clerk's Office.

FOETRY. The Private of the Buffs. BY SIR F. H. DOYLE.

"Some Sikhs and a private of the Buffs, having remained behind with the grog carts, fell into the hands of the Chinese. On the next morning they were brought before the authorities, and commanded to perform the kotou. The Sikhs obeyed; but Moyle, the English soldier, declaring that he would not prostrate himself before any Chinaman alive, was immediately knoeked upon the head, and his body thrown upon a dunghill."

Miscellaneous Reading.

$500 PRIZE STORY. DANESBURY HOUSE. BY MRS. ELLEN WOOD. CHAPTER XV. A GRACELESS SON, AND AN EVENING IN A PALACE. (Continued)

she shrilly cried, turning to the shopful. "He won't trust for a pally half-quarter, and we have laid out pounds with him. You avicious old Brimstone! I know who'll get his own some day."

"A good many do; it can't be denied. But sir, there are other things that do them harm as well as drink. Look at the low trash they are always reading, the bad, pernicious literature that they buy up and devour, the women especially. It's awfully demoralizing, and destroys their minds faster than drink destroys their bodies. Good night to you, sir."

"I don't know," returned Arthur, with an amused look. "If you contrast my 'stamina' with that of those I now see around, I think mine would not suffer in the comparison."

"Thank you, no. This gentleman may be in and gone in a minute, and I might miss him. I will stand aside and wait here."

"I am dying for it," she went on. "I had a taste in my lips this day, and I'm just fainting for the want of it. He ain't coming out o' quod yet; when he does, I'll pay you. Let's have it."

"I question if you would know him by name. I believe not."

"I have had too much anxiety and care upon me to think seriously of it," he said, in a low tone. "And I do not know that I could afford it."

"I wish you would," earnestly spoke Arthur. "It will come. Rome wasn't built in a day. Some of these days I may rise in my place in the House, and astonish the Lords by avowing that I have taken up the temperance cause, and call upon them, as good men and true, to legislate for it."

"I pray that I may live to see the day," aspirated Arthur Danesbury. "Much depends on you, of the higher orders: you make the laws, you are set in lofty places, you are the mighty counsellors of England's Queen. You might effect much if you gave yourself heart and spirit, to look into, and strive to check, this monster evil."

"The government might effect more than it does," said Lord Temple. "It might render the laws and the duty, affecting spirits, more stringent; it might close up some of these beer and gin shops; it might help in other ways. But, to suddenly convert the British community, from a toping people, into a sober people, is not in their power. Government cannot say to a man, 'I will not permit you to touch beer, spirits, or wine, for they are not good for you?'"

"I myself. I wanted to see a person on urgent business, and was told I might catch him there. I waited there for hours. And the scenes I witnessed kept me awake all night. I never closed my eyes till daylight. Misery, misery, nothing but misery. There lies an awful responsibility for guilt, somewhere."

"The question is, with whom does lie the responsibility?" remarked Lord Temple. "It might do some good. Temple, if you would move that the House should cause a bill to be made, for one whole year, of all the crimes, accidents, and offences committed by parties when under the influence of intoxication," said Arthur, after a pause.

"I should get one of the Commons to do that," laughed Lord Temple. "It is in their department."

"I have been in practice," said Arthur. "I have not."

"I have had too much anxiety and care upon me to think seriously of it," he said, in a low tone. "And I do not know that I could afford it."

"I wish you would," earnestly spoke Arthur. "It will come. Rome wasn't built in a day. Some of these days I may rise in my place in the House, and astonish the Lords by avowing that I have taken up the temperance cause, and call upon them, as good men and true, to legislate for it."

"I pray that I may live to see the day," aspirated Arthur Danesbury. "Much depends on you, of the higher orders: you make the laws, you are set in lofty places, you are the mighty counsellors of England's Queen. You might effect much if you gave yourself heart and spirit, to look into, and strive to check, this monster evil."

"The government might effect more than it does," said Lord Temple. "It might render the laws and the duty, affecting spirits, more stringent; it might close up some of these beer and gin shops; it might help in other ways. But, to suddenly convert the British community, from a toping people, into a sober people, is not in their power. Government cannot say to a man, 'I will not permit you to touch beer, spirits, or wine, for they are not good for you?'"

"I myself. I wanted to see a person on urgent business, and was told I might catch him there. I waited there for hours. And the scenes I witnessed kept me awake all night. I never closed my eyes till daylight. Misery, misery, nothing but misery. There lies an awful responsibility for guilt, somewhere."

"The question is, with whom does lie the responsibility?" remarked Lord Temple. "It might do some good. Temple, if you would move that the House should cause a bill to be made, for one whole year, of all the crimes, accidents, and offences committed by parties when under the influence of intoxication," said Arthur, after a pause.

"I should get one of the Commons to do that," laughed Lord Temple. "It is in their department."

"I have been in practice," said Arthur. "I have not."

"I have had too much anxiety and care upon me to think seriously of it," he said, in a low tone. "And I do not know that I could afford it."

"I wish you would," earnestly spoke Arthur. "It will come. Rome wasn't built in a day. Some of these days I may rise in my place in the House, and astonish the Lords by avowing that I have taken up the temperance cause, and call upon them, as good men and true, to legislate for it."

"I pray that I may live to see the day," aspirated Arthur Danesbury. "Much depends on you, of the higher orders: you make the laws, you are set in lofty places, you are the mighty counsellors of England's Queen. You might effect much if you gave yourself heart and spirit, to look into, and strive to check, this monster evil."

"The government might effect more than it does," said Lord Temple. "It might render the laws and the duty, affecting spirits, more stringent; it might close up some of these beer and gin shops; it might help in other ways. But, to suddenly convert the British community, from a toping people, into a sober people, is not in their power. Government cannot say to a man, 'I will not permit you to touch beer, spirits, or wine, for they are not good for you?'"

"I myself. I wanted to see a person on urgent business, and was told I might catch him there. I waited there for hours. And the scenes I witnessed kept me awake all night. I never closed my eyes till daylight. Misery, misery, nothing but misery. There lies an awful responsibility for guilt, somewhere."

"The question is, with whom does lie the responsibility?" remarked Lord Temple. "It might do some good. Temple, if you would move that the House should cause a bill to be made, for one whole year, of all the crimes, accidents, and offences committed by parties when under the influence of intoxication," said Arthur, after a pause.

"I should get one of the Commons to do that," laughed Lord Temple. "It is in their department."

"I have been in practice," said Arthur. "I have not."

"I have had too much anxiety and care upon me to think seriously of it," he said, in a low tone. "And I do not know that I could afford it."