Miscellaneous Reading. THE CRIMINAL WITNESS. [FROM THE BUFFALO EXPRESS.] In the spring of 1814 I was called to Jacksonville, Alabama, to attend court, having been engaged to defend a young man who had been accused of robbing the mail.

At this juncture, when the mistress was upon the witness stand, a young man came and caught me by the arm. He was a fine-looking man, and big tears stood in his eyes.

For which the rent will be given (from the mail bag. He gave them to me, and, having selected one, I returned the rest and told him I would see he had the one kept, before night. I then returned to the parlor, and the case went on.

Mrs. Naseby resumed her testimony. She said she intrusted the room to the prisoner's care, and that no one had access there save herself. Then she described the missing money, and closed by telling how she found only five dollars of the missing money, in the prisoner's trunk.

Mrs. Naseby said I, 'had you any reason to believe that the prisoner had taken it?' 'No, sir,' she answered.

Mrs. Naseby left the stand, and Nancy Luther took her place. She came up with a bold look, and upon me she cast a defiant look, as if to say, 'Trap me if you can.' She gave her evidence as follows:

She said that the night the money was taken she saw the prisoner going up stairs, and from the sly manner in which she went up she suspected that all was not right. So she followed her up.

Elizabeth went to Mrs. Naseby's room and shut the door after her. I stooped down and looked through the key-hole, and saw her take out the money and put it in her pocket. Then she stooped down and picked up the lamp, and as I saw that she was coming out I hurried away.

Then she went on, told how she had informed her mistress of this, and how she proposed to search the girl's trunk.

'You said that no one, save yourself and the prisoner, had access to your room,' I said. 'Now could Nancy Luther have entered the room, if she wished?'

'I saw that Mrs. Naseby, though naturally a hard woman, was somewhat moved by poor Elizabeth's misery.

'Could your cook have known, by any means in your knowledge, where your money was?'

'Yes, sir; for she has often come to my room while I was there, and I have often given her money to buy provisions of market-men who happened to come along with their wagons.'

'One question more: Have you known of the prisoner having used any money since this was stolen?'

'No, sir.' 'I now called Nancy Luther back, and she began to tremble a little, though her look was as bold and defiant as ever.

'Miss Luther,' I said, 'why did you not inform your mistress at once of what you had seen, without waiting for her to ask about the lost money?'

SEWING FACTORY. I have ears, and so had a group of Northern heroes not yet fledged at Bull's Run. A few days passed, and Miss K— was on her way to her friends in Virginia.

Queen Elizabeth dies, and dies of grief.—It has been the fashion to attribute to her—I know not why—remorse for Essex's death; and the foolish tale about Lady Nottingham and the ring has been accepted as history.

THE LAST DAYS OF QUEEN ELIZABETH. Queen Elizabeth dies, and dies of grief.—It has been the fashion to attribute to her—I know not why—remorse for Essex's death; and the foolish tale about Lady Nottingham and the ring has been accepted as history.

Now, your honor, I said, as I gave him the letter, and also the receipts, 'you will see that the letter is directed to Dorcus Luther, Somers, Montgomery county. And you will observe that one hand wrote that letter and signed the receipt, and the jury will also observe. And now I will only add, it is plain to see where the hundred dollars went to—Seventy-five dollars were sent off for safe-keeping, while the remaining twenty-five dollars were placed in the prisoner's trunk for the purpose of covering the real criminal.

THE CASE GIVEN TO THE JURY IMMEDIATELY following their examination of the letter.—They had heard from the witness's own mouth that she had no money of her own, and without leaving their seats they returned a verdict of—'Not guilty.'

WISDOM FOR WINTER. Never go to bed with cold or damp feet. In going into cold air, keep the mouth resolutely closed, that by compelling the air to pass circuitously through the head and nose, it may be cooled before it reaches the lungs, and thus prevent those shocks and sudden chills which frequently end in pleurisy, pneumonia, and other serious forms of disease.

NEVER stand still a moment out of doors, especially at street corners, after having walked even a short distance.

NEVER ride near the open window of a vehicle for a single half minute, especially if it has been preceded by a walk; valuable lives have thus been lost, or good health prematurely destroyed.

NEVER wear India Rubber boots in cold dry weather. Those who are easily chilled on going out of doors should have some cotton batting attached to the vest or outer garment, so as to protect the spaces between the shoulder blades behind, the lungs being attached to the body at that point; little there is worth five times the amount over the chest in frost.

NEVER begin a journey until breakfast is eaten. After speaking, singing or preaching in a warm room in winter, do not leave it for at least ten minutes, and even then close the mouth, put on your gloves, wrap up the neck, and put on a cloak or overcoat, before passing out of the door; the neglect of these has laid many a good and useful man in a premature grave.

NEVER speak under a hoarseness, especially if it requires an effort, or gives a hurting or painful feeling; for it often results in a permanent loss of voice or a long life of invalidism.—Halls' Journal of Health.
