OPEN REBELLION. TAKEN BY STORM!

A negro boy stole a crying doll in Petersburg, Va., the other day. Hiding it under his coat it squeaked, and bleached him white with fear at the merciful witness against him.

A story has been going the rounds of the American press to the effect that the widow of the late President Lincoln, now sojourning at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, was about to be married to a German Count with some terrible long name which we do not now remember. The correspondent of the New York Times, however, contradicts the story, and says:

"She occupies a small apartment in the immediate neighborhood of the boarding-school, attended by her youngest son. She lives in the humblest style, does not mingle in society, wears mourning up to the present day, receives no gentleman visitors, has never resided in the Grand Duchy of Baden, nor been at or near the Baden Court, and is entirely unacquainted with the Count with whom her name has been coupled."

BLEEDING FROM THE NOSE.—Put a piece of paper in your mouth, chew it rapidly, and it will stop your nose from bleeding. This remedy has been tried frequently, and it is stated always with success. Physicians say that placing a small roll of paper or muslin above the front teeth, under the upper lip, and pressing hard on the same will arrest bleeding from the nose, checking the passage of blood through the arteries to the nose.

POETRY.

Bonnie Scotland.

Mr. Glumm confesses to have got stuck for once in his life. The other night in the dark he mistook his miscellaneous bottle for his oil. His hair has since presented the appearance of whalebone—very like his wife's corsets.

The breaker of the Nottingham mine, at Plymouth—presence of the Avondale calamity, Pa., fought fire on Thursday, when fifty miners were below. No information was given to them of the danger they were in, till the fire was extinguished. The miners came up and heard what had occurred, and the danger they had been in they unanimously refused to re-enter the mine, and compelled the owner of the mines to take greater precautions, and make better facilities for their escape from the mines.

This having been done, they again pro-

The Russians have become alarmed, fearing that the trade with China will pass through the Cape Canal, and thus the overland trade now carried on by Russian Merchants. To prevent the anticipated disaster, they have petitioned the Czar to build a Railway to China, through Siberia. It is also said that the Government regard the enterprise with much favor. At the nearest points the road would be one thousand miles long, beginning at the Ural Mountains.

There is no difficulty of an engineering nature to prevent the construction of such a road. The whole country between the Ural Mountains and China being exceedingly flat and level.

It is reported in the English papers that Mr. Gladstone's Government have recently completed their scheme for the settlement of the Irish land question—consequently one of the most difficult questions was ever called upon to deal with. It is said the principle of the scheme is that of a "bright" plan, in which the peasant proprietorship will be omitted in the Government scheme. An attempt will be made to guarantee leaseholders and adjust the relations of landlord and tenant by means of the courts.

The settlement of this vexed and difficult question will settle the strings of the Gladstone Ministry to the utmost, and it is possible it may not be able to bear the tension.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

Editorial Life.

An editor, like a woman's work, is never done. The constant renewal of demands necessitates a continuous flow of brain power. Men expressed to be moved, edited, instructed and benefited a dozen ways by the productions of the press to emanate from the editorial sanctum. An infinite variety of his tastes to be met and provided for by poor pen. Your jolly man expects to be baited with choice bits. Your matter-of-fact man expects to be baited with substantial facts. Those who cater to the physical wants of people generally expect to be baited with news of the day. If it don't offend your editor, you must be content with that; not so the man who reads his paper for the distinction of a public. If a man doesn't happen to fit the columns filled with what is most palatable to him he yawns and pronounces the newspaper dull.— Perhaps he brows his neighbor's copy, and borrows a journalist as soundly as though he was the most liberal of freemen. He yawns, but his editor gains his point by some means or other. If it don't offend your editor,
