The only pressing necessity which at this moment exists for coercing Egremont, is to enable Mount Forest to offer a tempting bait to the Directors. The arguments to be used are, firstly, Egremont must set the example, and then there will be less difficulty in making an onslaught upon Normauby; and secondly, that without something like $80,000 from these towaships, we cannot hope to scent the trail up to the attracting point.

An Incident of the Prince's Visit to Ottawa.

An amusing little incident in the inner life of Rideau Hall occurred during the Prince's visit, resulting in his Royal Highness having been kept waiting for his breakfast for a full hour and a half It appears that in the household there is a protegee of Lady Young, deaf and dumb, who has been with her ladyship some three or four-and-twenty years .-This individual is a person of great authority in the establishment, which is said, on not very rare occasions, to cling to so pertinacionsly as to the exed them upon Lady Young's breakfast table. Our friend of the exclusive right rection it took was to lock up the room. put the key in her pocket, and retire to muse over the wrong done her in her to persuasion were long employed, but in starving Prince might feed. An hour of and a half elepsed, and Lady Young had to send her three or four notes (she is communicated with entirely by writing) before she could be mollified and fast; and then, it was only on condition that the offending cakes should be removed, and the offending lady's maid terference with sacred and inviolable rights. The breakfast, when it was obtained, was a merry one indeed. The Prince and his companions, when told the cause of the delay, were highly amused; and I have little doubt that the story of the delayed breakfast will be told, and much better than I have done it, in many a courtly circle, in many a distant land, - Canadian Illustrated
