Tinned meats are now plentifully imported; the perfection of this branch of industry will be arrived at when we can get the meat without the tin.

A person in prison was asked by a friend what it was for. "For telling lies," he replied. "Telling lies? how is that?" demanded the other. "Why, telling people I would pay 'em, and not keeping my word!"

Size of Great Lakes.

The latest measurements of fresh water seas are as follows:

The greatest length of Lake Superior is 335 miles; its greatest breadth is 160 miles; mean depth, 900 feet; elevation, 627 feet; area, 23,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Michigan is 390 miles; greatest breadth, 108 miles; mean depth, 910 feet; elevation, 274 feet; area, 23,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Huron is 200 miles; its greatest breadth, 160 miles; mean depth, 600 feet; elevation, 174 feet; area, 20,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Erie is 350 miles; its mean depth is 84 feet; elevation, 555 feet; area, 6,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Ontario is 170 miles; greatest breadth, 95 miles; mean depth, 500 feet; elevation, 264 feet; area, 6,000 square miles.

Old Boots as a Desert.

Prudent housewives should be made aware of the fact that it is the shereest waste to fling old boots and shoes into the scavenger box. They should be preserved for nobler uses, and made to contribute to the delactation of the palate. That this can be done, has been illustrated at a meeting of the New York Liberal Club by a scientist, who exhibited for the information of the members, a pudding or rather a jelly, made out of an old boot. Subsequently the learned gentleman explained the process of manufacture, which we reproduce as a matter of interest to housekeepers generally. "Skins," said the professor, "are nothing else but gelatine; but after they are exposed to the action of tanning, they become leather, and are in that condition insoluble. If, however, the leather of a boot is put into a close vessel with lime and water, where it can be subjected to the pressure from the steam of about two atmospheres, the tannin unites with the lime, and the leather is resolved back into its original gelatine, and can then be cast in a mould and served up to the table." Certainly the process is an easy one, and we may expect a famine of old boots.

Mrs. Teazle.

Mrs. Teazle lives at the upper end of the High Street, as if destiny posted her there in order to keep her weather eye open on the sayings and doings of that little country town. What Mrs. Teazle does not know about her neighbors is certainly not worth knowing. It seems, at times, that information must come through the keyhole of her front door, of itself, thoroughly she is acquainted with the minute particulars of transactions which most people, as a rule, feel inclined to keep to themselves. She knows what the Brown's had for supper, and what the Green's are likely to have for breakfast; she can tell you the exact price of Mrs. White's last new dress, and the reason why the bonnet Mrs. Black had ordered from London, through her milliner, did not come. She understands all about Smith's failure in business, and Thompson's divorce from his wife. The history of Mrs. Jenkins' new brass staircase is no mystery to her; and as for the piano that has been sent from London, to the surgeon's wife, she knew all about that before the idea of purchasing it even entered the surgeon's head. Regarding these ostich feathers that Miss Belle Wiggins wears, Mrs. Teazle could tell you a tale if she choose, that would make your hair stand on end with terror; and those who wish to know the full particulars of the unseemly quarrel in the church choir, that has set the Dorcas Society and half the town by the ears, had better come to her.

Mrs. Tezlo is especially severe upon the young people, and in her eyes they can do nothing that is correct. If a young couple take a moonlight stroll of a summer's evening, she wonders 'what her mother would have said to see her and Mr. Teazle going on like that.' Dancing, in Mrs. Teazle's eyes, is one of the seven deadly sins; and on private theatricals, acting charades and tableaux, she looks with eyes of horror. 'People never thought of wickedness like that in my young days,' she sighs. 'And what this world is coming to, in the young people are to go on in this manner, who shall say?'

Mrs. Teazle calls herself a good neighbor, and is very anxious to be called in, in case of sickness. If any one is unwell enough to do this, they are invited to call, and she offers to have them for ever after. For Mrs. Teazle pokes and prides in every direction while she stays, and cries the town with her discoveries when the patient is killed or cured by her care. "The things I found out when I was there my dear! Ah, it isn't for nothing that Mrs. Jones has red eyes now and then, I can tell you! There were bottles on the top shelf of the pantry! She said there had been medicine in them. I say nothing—but there were bottles there, and a good many of them, that's all!"

So she goes on—from east to west, from north to south—leaving the black trail of slander wherever she may pause. Mischievous, heart-burnings, and sorrow attend her footsteps, homes are laid waste and loving hearts are wrung to agony; but what cares Mrs. Teazle for such trifles? nothing.

One day all this will end, for she must die, like the rest of us. Who will stand a real mourner, beside that grave? Whose tears will fall for her? Not mine.

Miss Lucy Lee advertises in a Mississippi paper that she is of good birth and education, and is willing to marry an officer, believing herself able to support him.

Dominion & Provincial Directories

To be Published in October, 1870.

NOTICE.—Learning that my name has been unwarrantably used in connection with Directories now being canvassed in the Provinces, and entirely distinct from my works, and that in other cases it has been stated that my Directories have been abandoned, I would request those desiring to give a preference to my works to see that persons representing themselves as acting for me are furnished with satisfactory credentials.

WILSON, BOWMAN & CO., SEWING MACHINE MANUFACTURERS, HAMILTON, ONT.

Would call the attention of the readers of the DURHAM CHRONICLE to the fact that they are now manufacturing a NEW LOCK-STITCH SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE, called after its inventor, MR. C. CHINE, which has, in the short time during which it has been in the market, become WONDERFULLY POPULAR. Although only a little more than three months have elapsed since its first introduction, the "Lockman Patent" in that short space of time has found its way into over 1200 CANADIAN HOMES. A feat WITHOUT PARALLEL in the Sewing Machine annals of the Dominion, if not of the world. Strong has the demand for their Machine become, that the manufacturers have been compelled to ENLARGE THEIR PREMISES, and INCREASE THEIR STOCK OF MACHINERY, to the extent of making the producing capacity of their Establishment

SECOND TO NO OTHER IN THE DOMINION.

The secret of the great success of the "Lockman Patent" is to be found in its EXTREME SIMPLICITY, GREAT DURABILITY, ADAPTABILITY, WONDERFUL CAPACITY, AND EXTRAORDINARY CHEAPNESS, Though notwithstanding this cheapness the WORKMANSHIP IS EXCELLENT, AND THE FINISH UNSURPASSED BY THAT OF ANY OTHER MACHINE.

THE "LOCKMAN PATENT" Has all the attachments which have been found of use by long experience. EVERY MACHINE IS BEST OUT IN PERFECT WORKING ORDER. With all the usual accessories, and accompanied by FULL INSTRUCTIONS AS TO USE AND MANAGEMENT. CIRCULARS Are sent anywhere, on application. CLERGYMEN Will be supplied with this excellent Machine AT A LIBERAL DISCOUNT. CONGREGATIONS Could offer no more acceptable a gift to their Minister than a "Lockman Patent" Sewing Machine.
