because ofitably

to do so

This is , for we modest in our Town,

-known

t on hand

DURHAM

MINION

III EUNG

TITE.

of this

BIOOD, @

ion. I have got rell I was glad 👩

D., MONTREAL @

0000 ouy an article

ice in accord-always low honest profit

gone astray

h not keeping nem to us and

Jeweler

right.

ERTY

DURHAM,

g a valuable W

and many elegib

G. R., Township o

oining Town plo

purchase money is the only

LE

EDGE.

Hill, P.O.

E. Montreal

ents, in-

AS GOOD AS GOLD.

CHAPTER XXVI.

It chanced that on a fine spring morning Henchard and Farfrae met in the Chestnut Walk which ran along the south wall of the town. Each had just come out from his early breakfast, and there was not another soul near. Henchard was reading a letter from Lucetta, sent in answer to a note from him, in which she made some excuse for not immediately granting him a second interview that he had desired.

conversation with his former friend on he knows himself. Jopp, too, had had their present constrained terms; nei- a convenient experience; he was the ther would he pass him in scowling silence. He nodded, and Henchard did the who knew that Lucetta came truly daged his face with a handkerchief as twice, that you can never be sure of same. They had receded from each from Jersey, and but proximately from if he were suffering from toothache, other several paces when a voice cried "Farfrae!" It was Henchard's, who used to do business that way. Oh yes see the prophet within, preparing his stood regarding him.

"Do you remember," said Henchard, and not of the man which made him sufficient. speak; "do you remember my story of that second woman-who suffered for her thoughtless devotion to me?"

"I do," said Farfrae. "Do you remember my telling 'ee how it all began, and how it ended?"

"Yes." now that I can; but she won't marry -I put it to you?"

"Well, ye owe her nothing more now," said Farfrae heartily.

went on. That he had looked up from a letter to ask his questions completely shut starve him out. I've capital, mind ye, here." He threw open the door and out from Farfrae's mind all vision of Lucetta as the culprit. Indeed, her present position was so different from frae as the man who had once usurped that of the young woman of Henchard's his place, while it made him a willing ception by Samuel; he remained in sistory as of itself to be sufficient to tool, made him, at the same time, com- lence for a few moments, then throwblind him absolutely to her identity. chard could have chosen. As for Henchard, he was reassured by Farfrae's words and manner against a suspicion which had crossed his mind. They were not those of a conscious ri-

Yet there was a rivalry by some one he was firmly persuaded. To discover -he exerted himself to the utmost to

Farfrae.

she could not help knowing almost evthe town.

chard.

"Yes," said Lucetta.

"We both know him," said kind Elizadivined embarrassment.

one at the end.

and-half-somebody between gentle and wheat-crop within his own horizon, of scorn. "You have given me a simple," said the corn-merchant to him- and the wheat-crop by the weather. crown because you've one too many self. "I shouldn't wonder therefore if Thus, in person, be became a sort of But won't you join me at supper, now it is he." In a few seconds surely flesh-barometer, with feelers always di- 'tis waiting and all?" enough Donald walked in.

and flutters, which increased Hen- to him; the atmospheres of other coun- from the cottage into the porch with chard's suspicions without affording tries a matter of indifference. The such appetising distinctness, that the any special proof of their correctness. people, too, whow ere notf armers, the meat, the onions, the pepper, and the He was well-nigh ferocious at the sense rural multitude, saw in the god of the herbs could be severally recognized by won't let me have any fun in these of the queer situation in which he stood | weather a more important personage | his nose. But as sitting down to hob. | clothes till I get 'em spoiled." towards this woman. and now he than they do now. Indeed, the feeling and-nob there would have seemed to sat at her tea-table eager to gain her of the peasantry in this matter was so mark him too implicitly as the weath- to prove that my client is mentally deattention, and, in his amatory rage, intense as to be almost unrealisable in er-caster's apostle, he declined, and ficient." "Certainly," replied the exfeeling the other man present to be these equable days. Their impulse was went his way. a villain, just as any young fool of a well-nigh to prostrate themselves in The next Saturday Henchard bought in showing that as long as he has painting of the two disciples supping to be poor. at Emmaus. Lucetta, forming the serve from afar all things.

cetta to Henchard and Farfrae equally, regard as disagreeable they then beheld ed; the sunlight, which had been like holding out between them a plateful of as furious. long slices. Henchard took a slice by It was June, and the weather was paz. The temperament of the welkin

"Oh—I am so sorry!" cried Lucetta, laugh; but he was too much in love to see the incident in any but a tragic light. "How ridiculous of all three of them!"

said Elizabeth to herself. Henchard left the house with a ton sible. of conjecture, though without a grain of proof, that the counter attraction was Farfrae; and therefore he would not make up his mind. Yet to Elizabeth-Jane it was plain as the townpump that Donald and Lucetta were incipient lovers. More than once, in spite of her care, Lucetta had been unable to restrain her glance from flitting across into Farfrae's eyes like a bird to its nest. But Henchard was constructed upon too large a scale to discern such minutiae as these by an evening light, which to him were as

But he was disturbed. And the sense of occult rivalry in suitorship was so much superadded to the palpable ri-added an infaming soul. bridge domiciliation-itself almost a bridle-path, the bridle-path a foot- a man must be a fool to mind the comproof that a man had reached a stage way, the foot-way overgrown. The when he would not stick at trifles.

Way, the foot-way overgrown. The but he had to enter the Caster-when he would not stick at trifles.

John came after dark, by the gates there, and stumbled over the bridge Bank that day for reasons which awaiting him. "I am again out of a foreman," said the corn-factor. "Are you in a place?" "Not so much as a beggar's, sir."

"How much do you ask?" Jopp named his price, which was very

"When can you come?" "At this hour and moment, sir," said Jopp, who, standing hands-pocketed at the street-corner till the sun had faded the shoulders of his coat to scarecrow green, had regularly watched Henchard in the market-place, measured him, and learnt him, by virtue of the power which the still man has in his stillness Donald had no wish to enter into of knowing the busy one better than chard and the close-lipped Elizabeth

> -have often seen ye there. "Indeed! Very good. Then the thing said. "Was living there when you of need possibly did not occur to Hen- to come in was responded to by the chard. Jopp said, "Thank you," and country form. "This will do, thank ye," stood more firmly, in the consciousness after which the householder has no althat at last he officially belonged to strong eyes into Jopp's face, "one thing ed the stranger in the porch, shutis necessary to me, as the biggest corn ting the door behind him. "Well, I have offered to marry her and hay dealer in these parts. The Scotchman who's taking the town trade so bold into his hands must be cut out. me. Now what would you think of her D'ye hear? We two can't live side by side-that's clear and certain." "I've seen it all," said Jopp.

"By fair competition I mean of course," Henchard continued. "But as ed the visitor with a start. "It is true," said Henchard, and hard, keen, and unflinching as fairbid against him for the farmer's cus- thinking you might be leery from your price of admission." tom as will grind him into the ground walk I laid two supper plates-look ye and I can do it."

"I'm all that way of thinking," said the new foreman. Jopp's dislike of Far- plate and mug, as he had declared. mercially as unsafe a colleague as Hen- ing off the disguise of frigidity which he must have some glass that he sees | Now, for instance, can ye charm away next year in. He has such a knack of warts?" making everything bring him fortune." "He's deep beyond all honest men's discerning; but we must make him shallower. We'll under-sell him, and overbuy, him, and so snuff him out." night as well as by day."

They then entered into specific details whose presence that was-whether re- of the process by which this would be ally Farfrae's after all, or another's accomplished, and parted at a late hour. see her again; and at length succeeded. father. She was so fully convinced that know?" At the interview, when she offered he was not the right man for the place "I've worked it out already, and you him tea, he made it a point to launch that, at the risk of making Henchard can know at once." (The fact was that For it is still alive to-day. angry, she expressed her apprehension five farmers had already been there on a cautious inquiry if she knew Mr. to him when they met. But it was the same errand from different parts done to no purpose. Henchard shut up of the country.) "By the sun, moon, the Oh yes, she knew him, she declared; her argument with a sharp rebuff. your their scheme. The time was in swallow, the smeli of the herbs; likeerybody in Casterbridge, living in such the years immediately before foreign wise by the cats' eyes, the ravens, the a gazebo over the centre and arena of competition had revolutionized the leeches, the spiders, and the dung-mixtrade in grain, when still, as from en, the last fortnight in August will the earliest ages, the wheat quotations be-rain and tempest.' "Pleasant young fellow," said Hen- from month to month depended en- "You are not certain, of course?" tirely upon the home harvest. A bad "As one can be in a world where all's harvest or the prospect of one, would unsure. 'Twill be more like living in double the price of corn in a few weeks; Revelations this autumn than in Eng- engaged to him after but five hours' and the promise of a good yield would land. Shall I sketch it out for ye in acquaintance?" "Certainly. How much beth-Jane, to relieve her companion's lower it as rapidly. Prices were like a scheme?" the roads of the period steep "Oh, no, no," said Henchard. "I don't engagement.
There was a knock at the door; lit- in gradient, reflecting in their phases altogether believe in forecasts, come to This world is erally, three full knocks and a little the local conditions, without engineer- second thoughts on such. But 'I--" ing, levellings, or averages.

"That kind of a knock means half- The farmer's income was ruled by the stood," said Wide-oh, without a sound rected to the sky and wind around him. Henchard would gladly have joined; Lucetta was full of little fidgets The local atmosphere was everything for the savour of the stew had floated lamentation before untimely rains and grain to such an enormous extent that employed you as his lawyer." They sat stifly side by side at the tempests, which came as the Alastor there was quite a talk about his purdarkening table, like some Tuscan of those households whose crime it was chases among his neighbors, the law-third and chief figure, was opposite weather-cocks as men waiting in ante- able days. When his granaries were them; Elizabeth-Jane, being out of the chambers watch the lackey. Sun elat- full to choking, all the weather-cocks game, and out of the group, could ob- ed them; quiet rain sobered them; weeks of Casterbridge creaked and set their of watery tempest stupefied them. faces in another direction, as if tired "More bread and butter?" said Lu- That aspect of the sky which they now of the south-west. The weather chang-

one end and Donald by the other; each very unfavorable. Casterbridge, being, passed from the phlegmatic to the feeling certain he was the man meant; as it were, the bell-board on which all sanguine; an excellent harvest was alneither let go, and the slice came in the adjacent hamlets and villages most a certainty; and as a consequence sounded their notes, was decidedly dull. prices rushed down. Instead of new articles in the shop- All these transformations, lovely to with a nervous titter. Farfrae tried to windows, those that had been rejected the outsider, to the wrong-headed cornin the foregoing summer were brought | dealer were terrible. He was reminded out again; superseded reap-hooks, bad- of what he had well known before, that furbished up as near to new as pos- those of a card-room.

astrous garnering, and resolved to base the turn of the flood for the turn of the his strategy against Farfrae upon that ebb. His dealings had been so extenreading. But before acting he wished sive that settlement could not long be -what so many have wished-that he postponed, and to settle, he was obligcould know for certain what was at ed to sell off corn that he had bought present only strong probability. He only a few weeks before at figures was superstitious-as such headstrong higher by many shillings a quarter. natures often are-and he nourished in Much of the corn he had never seen; it his mind an idea bearing on the matter; had not even been moved from the ricks an idea he shrank from disclosing even in which it lay stacked miles away.

In a lonely hamlet a few miles from In the blaze of an early August day the notes of a grasshopper that lie the town—so lonely, that what are call-above the compass of the human ear. the town—so lonely, that what are call-above the compass of the human ear. the town—so lonely, that what are call-ed lonely villages were teeming by comparison-there lived a man of curious he did not guess their intended bearrepute as a forecaster or weather prophet. The way to his house was crookvalry of their business lives. To the ed and miry-even difficult in the precoarse materiality of that rivalry it sent unpropitious season. One evening when it was raining so heavily that moment, appeared to resent the sym-The thus vitalised antagonism took ivy and laurel resounded like distant the form of action by Henchard send- musketry, and an out-door man could turn. ing for Jopp, the manager originally be excused for shrouding himself to his displaced by Farfrae's arrival. Hen- ears and eyes, such a shrouded figure he cried with fierce gaiety. "These chard had frequently met this man on foot might have been perceived traabout the streets, observed that his velling in the direction of the hazelclothing spoke of neediness, heard that copse which dripped over the prophet's touched me tight lately; but is that he lived in Mixen Lane-a back slum cot. The turn-pike road became a lane, anything rare? The case is not so bad of the town, the pis aller of Caster- the lane a cart-track; the cart-track as folk make out perhaps. And dammy, surrounded with a high, dense hedge, rumored soon after that much real own hands, and thatched also by him- which had stood in Henchard's name, self. Here he had always lived, and here was actually the property of his bank-

it was presumed he would die. He existed on unseen supplies; for it | Coming down the steps of the bank was an anomalous thing that while he encountered Jopp. The gloomy tranthere was hardly a soul in the neigh-borhood but affected to laugh at this ed fever to the original sting of Farman's assertions, uttering the formula, frae's sympathy that morning, which surance on the surface of their faces, guised, so that Jopp met with anything very few of them were unbelievers in but a bland reception. The latter was their secret hearts. Whenever they in the act of taking off his hat to wipe consulted him they did it "for a fancy." When they paid him they said "Just a trifle for Christmas," or "Candlemas," as the case might be.

Behind his back he was called "Wide-face, "Mr." Fall. arch over the entrance, and a door was inserted as in a wall. Outside the door the tall traveller stopped, ban-Bath. "I know Jersey, too, sir," he and went up the path. The window shutters were not closed, and he could is settled. The testimonials you show- the door, candle in hand. The visitor dress to Jopp in similar terms till it as if it were the presence of the thought ed me when you first tried for't are stepped back a little from the light, ended in Jopp's dismissal there and and said, "Can I speak to ye?" in sig-then, Henchard turning upon his heel That characters deteriorate in time nificant tones. The other's invitation ternative but to come out. He placed merchant as he disappeared in the the candle on the corner of the dress-"Now," said Henchard, digging his er, took his hat from a nail, and join-

"I've long heard that you can-do things of a sort?" began the other, repressing his individuality as much as he could. "Maybe so, Mr. Henchard," said the weather-caster.

disclosed the supper-table, at which appeared a second chair, knife and fork, it of both of you." Henchard felt like Saul at his re-he had hitherto preserved, he said, "I sometimes think," he added, "that "Then I have not come in vain. . .

> "Without trouble." "Cure the evil?"

-if they will wear the toad-bag by the same as heretofore; tick, tick." "Forecast the weather?"

"With labor and time." Elizabeth-Jane heard by accident that a crown-piece. Now, what is the har-Jopp had been engaged by her step- vest fortnight to be? When can I one breathes at night?"

and stars, by the clouds, the winds, the The season's weather seemed to fa- trees, and grass, the candle-flame and

"You don't-you don't-'tis underyer, the wine merchant, and the doc-After midsummer they watched the tor; also on the next, and on all availtin for weeks, assumed the hues of to-ly-shaped rakes, shop-worn leggins, and a man might gamble upon the square time-stiffened water-tights reappeared, green areas of fields as readily as upon Henchard had backed bad weather, Henchard, backed by Jopp, read a dis- and apparently lost. He had mistaken Thus he lost heavily.

ing on himself) and commiserated him; for since their exchange of words in the South Walk they had been on stiffly-speaking terms. Henchard, for the pathy; but he suddenly took a careless

"Ho, no, no!-nothing serious, man!" things always happen, don't they? know it has been said that figures have

The cottage, comparatively a large one, property, as well as vast stores of prohad been built of mud by the occupier's duce, in the town and neighborhood.

"There's nothing in 'em," with full as- Henchard fancied might be satire dishis forehead, and saying, "A fine hot day," to an acquaintance.

"You can wipe and wipe, and say "A fine hot day," can ye! cried Henchard in a savage undertone, imprisoning oh," on account of his reputation; to his Jopp between himself and the Bank wall. "If it hadn't been for your fool's The hedge of his garden formed an advice it might have been a fine day enough. Why did ye let me go on, hey -when a word of doubt from you or anybody would have made me think weather till 'tis past." "My advice, sir, was to do what you thought best." "A useful fellow; and the sooner you help somebody else in that way the In answer to the knock Fall came to better! Henchard continued his adand leaving him.

"You shall be sorry for this, sir; sorry as a man can bel" said Jopp, standing pale, and looking after the corncrowd of market-men hard by.

(To be continued.)

WINTER WRINKLES. He-"Well, your sister is married. Now it's your turn." George! ask papa."

Tourist-"Are we near the falls?" Guide-"Yes, sir. As soon as the ladies "Ah-why do you call me that? ask- stop talking you can hear the roar." "Is your picture in the academy a "Because it's your name. Feeling success?" "That's what I am wonderrather more so. By such a desperate you'd come, I've waited for ye; and ing. Some one said it was worth the

> He—"Jones is all right, I suppose, but he and I do not like each other a bit." She-"Well, that is much to the cred-

> Dabney—"Gilbney started on a century run to-day." Babley-"Where has be gone?" Dabney—"After the fellow who stole his wheel."

Amateur Humorist-"That's a pretty good joke of mine; don't you think so?" Experienced Editor—"Well, it is just as funny now as it ever was."

Robert-"When I get into my new house I mean that everything shall "That I've done-with consideration go like clockwork." Richard-"I see;

Bobby-"Is oxygen what the oxen breathe all day?" Papa-"Of course, "Then take this," said Henchard "Tis and what everything else breathes." Bobby—"And is nitrogen what every

The English language must be tough At lest, that's what I've reckoned, Though murdered every second.

"Why do you hate soap so?" asked inquisitive lady. said Mr. Dismal Dawson. "I simply ignore it. We don't move in the same set; that's all."

Brown-"I wonder who originated the idea that it is unlucky to begin anything on Friday? Robinson-"Probably it was some lazy individual who preferred to wait until Saturday."

"You don't mean to say you become time would you have me devote to one

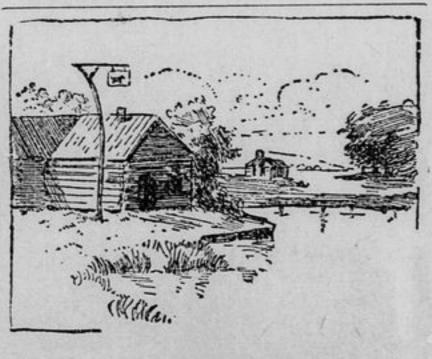

This world is but a fleeting show, And few are they, alas!

Who can rake up a pull that's strong Enough for a free pass.

"Those Eskimos up in Alaska have good, sound, common sense." "How so?" "Why, when they fall in love with a girl they announce it by sending her a sealskin sacque."

Sister-"There you have candy all over your new suit! What will mamma say?" Little Brother-"Well, mamma

"What I want," said the lawyer, "is pert. "There won't be the least trouble

Fifty Years Ago.

Who could imagine that this should be The place where, in eighteen ninety-three That white world-wonder of arch and Should shadow the nations, polychrome ... Here at the Fair was the prize conferred On Ayer's Pills, by the world preferred. Chicago-like, they a record show, Since they started-50 years ago.

~~~~~

Ayer's Cathartic Pills

have, from the time of their preparation, been a continuous success with the public. And that means that Ayer's Pills accomplish what is promised for them; they cure where others fail. It was fitting, therefore, that the world-wide popularity of these pills should be recognized by the World's Fair medal of 1893-a fact which emphasizes the record:

Cure RHEUMATISM

TAKE

Bristol's

SARSAPARILLA

!T IS PROMPT RELIABLE AND NEVER FAILS.

WILL MAKE AOR METI

Ask your Druggist or Dealer for it

HAMMOND'S LIST

She- "Oh FARMS - FOR - SALE

200 ACRES-Con. 13, Proton, 150 cleared, balance bush. Good orchard, well watered, log buildings. Well located and a capital farm. 100 ACRES-Con. 9, Proton, 60 acres, cleared and fit for binder, balance hardwood bush good log nouse, frame barn and log stables Level farm, good soil, well watered. Cheap.

100 ACRES-Range 4, Proton, 70 acres. cleared, 8 acres hardwood bush, balance burned level farm, log bui dings, clay loam, well watered, good orchard. Terms easy.

100 ACRES-Con. 11, Proton, 70 acres clear ed, balance bush, good spring, frame house log house, log barn and statles, good orchard On easy terms.

45 ACRES-Con. 7, Proton, all bush.

15) ACRES-Range 1, N. E. Melancthon, 100 acres cleared, part of balance burned, good frame house and good frame barn with stone stables below, good soil, well watered. Will sell together or in 50 acre lots to suit purchaser.

100 ACRES-Con. 7, Melancthon, 50 acres leared, balance bush, good frame house and rame stable. Easy terms.

100 ACRES-Con. 1, S. W. Artemesia, 73 acre cleared, balance standing hardwood and slash. Watered by good well and spring, good frame buildings, good orchard, good soil. Level farm, 61 miles from Dundalk. Close to school and church, on splendid road. Very cheap.

150 ACRES-Con. 11, Nottawasaga, 90 acres cleared, balance bush, good frame house and barn, orchard, wells, etc. A capital farm.

100 ACRES-Con. 4, N. E. Melancthon, 76 acres cleared, balance bush, frame house and log outbuildings, good well. Farm is new and extra cheap.

100 ACRES-Range 4, S. W. Proton, 50 acres cleared, balance bush, new, good soil, small log house and stables, well and spring. Easy

The above is a partial list of lands placed in my hands for sale, principally in the townships of Proton and Melancthon where farming land is quite new, but is now being improved and ultivated and will shortly be the "Garden of

Come and see for yourself, and, if you short of funds, i will lend you money on farm you buy at lowest rates. Address: D. R. HAMMOND, Estate Agent, Dundalk, ON

--- TO ---

Farmers, Threshers and Millmen

AT THE BRICK FOUNDRY -- WE MAKE --

Furnace Kettles, Power Staw Cutters, Hot Air Furnaces, Shingle Machinery, Band Saws, Emery Machines, hand or power; Cresting Farmers' Kettles, Columns, Church Seat Ends, Bed Fasteners, Fencing, Pump-Makers' Supplies, School Desks, Fanning Mill Castings Light Castings and Builders' Supplies, Sole Plates and Points for the different ploughs in use. Casting repairs for Flour and Saw Mills.

-- WE REPAIR --

Steam Engines, Horse Powers, Separators, Mowers, Reapers. Circular and Cross-Cut Saws Gummed, Filed and Set.

ood shingles. CHARTER SMITH, DURHAM FOUNDRYMAN

I am prepared to fill orders for

THE LUXURY OF SECURITY Dr. LeRoy's Female Pills. The only reliable and trustworthy pra-paration known. Safest, surest and most effective remedy ever discovered for all irreg-ularities of the female system. Scaled circular free. Price $1 per box of druggists, or by mail securely scaled on receipt of price.

Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

LeRoy Pill Co. Victoria St., Toronto, Can.

The Chronicle is the most wide