These our reporter declared too dry for nice poetry like the rest of the speeches:

> THE CONCERT. Some learned Liberals from our town Went out to shine in speech, To tell the Farmers how to vote,

And farmers' sons to teach, At old Rob-Roy their chargers stood, And six good Grits and true, Got out and entered Learning Hall Their speaking to pursue.

John A. the chair was asked to take, J. D. was called to speak, And told us of a surplus large And tall as old Pikes Peak.

He praised A. S. and Harcourt too, And plagiarist, Geo. Ross; Condemned the fellows who would think Of changing his "Grit boss." A farmer, Young, but brave came next.

He spoke out loud and bold To show that Patrons taught us how To save our precious gold. He talked of salt at eighty five;

Coal oil at fifteen cents, And thought that every farmer there, Would show his common sense By voting straight for farmer Dave, Our present M. P. P., But not a word of railroad "pass"

Or "tenders" once spoke he, A voice was heard from near the door, When he said "garnishee," And standing straight upon his feet Was legal friend J. C.

An answer he was bound to have; He stood up straight and strong, Till chairman, John rose up and said : "Your chance will come ere long." The law was laid, and next Laidlaw, Brave as a lion, bold Came out and faced the httle crowd And truth he plainly told. Of squandered surpluses he spoke Of Licenses and such.

The Tumber Question slightly touched, But for J. D. too much. The Heelers, who the jobs did boss, Received much higher pay. Than all the men who did the work and bore the heat of day. Convincing speech conviction brought, And all went home ere long, "Put Hardy out and Whitney in," They sang both loud and strong.

To say his "little piece" out loud John A. catled on J. C. And strutting like a peacock proud, Stepped forth our LL, D. He tried to "roast" the "corn cure" man The orator from town,

Who spoke for "Doc" and Whitney too And 'mid applause sat down. An evil "spirit" then did take Possession of his head; But when on figures he got mixed,

He faced the crowd and said: "The truth I'll tell, sure as I live I'll not lead you astray" But ere his story was half told "Time's up", called out John A.

And stepping down into the pit, Tom Lawrence cried, "Well done" And Secretary Jim was pleased And laughed at all the fun. And now three cheers for Good Queen Vic, We'll all give 'fore we go. But one cheered louder than the rest, And closed the Rob-Roy Show. -FAIX.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

To Institute officers and delegates sent to address meetings .-GENTLEMEN :- The general elections which have been recently announced will doubtless interfere with the work of the Farmers' Institutes. I beg to call your attention to the following clauses of the Act and Rules governing Farmers' Institutes, and respectfully request that you will do all in your power to have these clauses faithfully carried out whenever meetings are held in your district. All political discussions and all references to political topics either directly or indi ectly, should be studiously avoided at all Institute meetings. The Farmers' Institutes are, non-political in the strictest sense of the word. Please see clause 25 of the Act and Rules, which reads as follows :- " No subject shall be presented at an Institute meeting or discussion allowed, of a politicator sectarian nature; nor shall any speaker be allowed in his lecture, essay, or speech, or in any discussion, to advertise wares or schemes in which he has a direct or indirect pecuniary inter est. The delegates and officers of the Institute shall see that the exercises are not subordinated to any low or frivolous entertainments; or to the aggrandizement of any individual, party, or sect," The attention of Delegates is called to clause 7 of the Rules Governing Delegates. -"Long speeches, or those calculated to advertise the property of the speaker, are contrary to the rules governing Institutes. Party politics in any form shall be avoided by each speaker when out on Institute work. The chairman of each delegation and the officers of each Institute are expected to see that nothing of this kind occurs. Instute speakers are expected to teach agriculture. nothing else." Delegates are urgently requested not to discuss political questions or politics in any form before or after the meetings. It is not even necessary or desirable for a delegate to make known his or her political allegiance. It is very desirable to make the Institute system of value alike to all classes without any regard to politics.

The attention of Secretaries is called to clause 50 of the Act and Rules, which reads, "The Secretaries shall, when possible, retain the manuscript of all papers read at meetings of the Institute by local talent, in
