

A WOMAN'S SUFFERING

Was Troubled With Palpitation of Heart, Extreme Weakness and Headaches.

In the little hamlet of Monmouth, N. J., resides a lady who writes to me that she was troubled with palpitation of heart, extreme weakness and headaches. The subject of this testimony is Richard Hanna, an estimable lady, who has resided in that locality for many years. A reporter seeking an interesting view of Mrs. Hanna's condition, gave me full details of her sufferings. I was taken ill. I attributed the trouble at the time to an influenza, but it did not get better. My condition was such that I was unable to do any work, and my heart, extreme weakness, palpitation and terrible headaches, were so severe that I was unable to get out of bed. I was so weak that I could not get up, and I was so nervous that I was unable to sleep. I was so weak that I was unable to get up, and I was so nervous that I was unable to sleep. I was so weak that I was unable to get up, and I was so nervous that I was unable to sleep.

The public is cautioned against cheap imitations of the genuine in boxes. The genuine is in a box, and the wrapper is in the shape of a book. It is in the shape of a book, and the wrapper is in the shape of a book. It is in the shape of a book, and the wrapper is in the shape of a book.

Established in London on October 6, 1859.

The practice of insuring human life has come into use two hundred years ago. It was first introduced in 1666, and since that time it has become one of the most important and profitable branches of business.

Dr. William Assheton, of London, is the author of this book, and he was so impressed when he first saw it that he at once took steps to form an insurance company. He succeeded, but not without much difficulty, and among the provisions of the first company were the following: "The insured man, not more than thirty years of age, should be insured for £1,000, or more than forty for £500, and not more than sixty for £250."

His Master by Gently Scratching His Face. A Bristol cat a few days ago proved the means of saving a whole family from destruction by fire. At half-past five in the morning a shopkeeper named Schmiedermann was aroused by a tabby, which was gently scratching his face.

One of the cats of the lodge, the taking puss with them, reaching from which they escaped to the yard. Just as the flames came through the spiral staircase, the cat had stopped to put on his back, and then, leaping over the fire, he leaped into the second story window. He then leaped from the window, and was taken into the yard.

NO WONDER. Small boy—I don't wonder that your head is often ached. Little girl—Why? Small boy—Every time they see any of their children they've got to think of some reason for not letting them do what they want to.

THE CRESCENT.

It is the Symbol the Turk Has Used for Thousands of Years.

The origin of the Turkish crescent is lost in antiquity. As the emblem of progress and increase it figures in the warship of Astarte, the chief goddess of the Phoenician Pantheon, who, under various names, was adored by every Semitic race. It is not, therefore, surprising that the crescent should be the chosen emblem of a conquering and spreading people. The hordes of Genghis Khan carried it on their banners from the great wall of China to the Indus and the Volga in the thirteenth century, yet these were Mongols and enemies of the very people with whom the crescent is generally associated. The Ottoman Turks, who first got lands in Asia as a reward for assisting the Seljuks against the Mongols, seem from their arrival in these regions to have displayed the well-known symbol. It appeared on the banners of the Janissaries, the Sultan Orkhan, in the fourteenth century, and subsequently the Crusades fixed it in the eyes of Christendom as the counter-emblem to the cross. It is sometimes held that the Turks borrowed the crescent from the Byzantine Greeks, but this is evidently not the case. On the contrary, the Greeks had probably at an early period adopted it with other religious symbols and ideas from the East.

Football Championship for 1895. The knowing ones are speculating on the football possibilities of the season. Ottawa is not likely to retain the honors of the championship, as Queen's will put in a team sure to smash all records. It is often the case that very slight causes will lose a victory. It is stated that a painful corn made useless one of the best American players. It follows that no team can hope to win this year that neglects to supply its members with Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, the only safe, sure, and painless remedy for corns.

BENT OF HIS INDUSTRY. Mrs. de Cohen—I hear you've got a very industrious husband. Laundress—Yes, mum; he's always finding something for me to do.

CANDID. A bachelor farmer a little past his prime, finding himself hard up, thought the best thing he could do would be to marry a neighbor of his who was reputed to have some bawbees.

Meeting with no obstacles to his wooing he soon got married. One of his first purchases he made with part of her money was a horse. When he brought it home he called out his wife to see it.

After admiring it she said: Well, Sam, if it hadna been for my siller it wadna ha been here. Jenny, Sam replied, if it hadna been for yer siller, ye wadna ha been here yerself!

SNOWSTORM STARTED A FIRE.

In February of the present year a farmer living at Hebuterne, Belgium, placed a quantity of quicklime near a shed on his farm, and left it there all night. In the course of the night snow fell onto the line, and the heat thus developed became so great that it set the shed on fire, completely destroying it and its contents. The matter is simple enough when explained, but it would otherwise not be easy to regard a snowstorm as a probable cause of fire.
