It is learned from these red that he had a keen eye for a pretty girl, but one does not find therein any romantic episode in his life.

This episode was first published in a book entitled "Gaddings with a Primitive People," which appeared in London some time ago. For some reason it did not attract much attention, but now some leading German editors have discovered it, and they are giving wide publicity to the story it contains of Bismarck's first love affair.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

Natura ! ist's Study of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Animals.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts. The best story is hat of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves. A professional wolf-hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a thina dish, cut it into lumps with a sone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in dor-proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood, and avoided treathing on the baits. The baits were picked up. He followed the rack and found that the wolf had lain ill four together and scattered dirt The wolves then took to killing theep. Traps were set to the number of 30 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of raps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust. He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and cratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps, and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down back ward until out of the dangerou ground. He had then sprung som of the traps by scratching clods and stones, backward at them with his hind feet. He was at last caught b dragging over the traps the body of female wolf, the scent of which he fol lowed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, lame grizzly, which in two years ruin ed half the hog-raisers in the Sacra mento valley by his wasteful love pork, was a close second.
