THE CHRONICLE, DURHAM, Sept. 28th, 1899.

The Big Show GOOD CROWD—FAIR WEATHER—FINE EXHIBITS—GATE RECEIPTS $315.00. Poultry Show, the Largest yet.

The Durham Fair held on Tuesday and Wednesday has again passed into history. The day was fine and a large number assembled to witness the exhibits and attractions.

The samples of wheat exhibited by Messrs. H. Brigham, W. Willis and J. Hillis, successful old timers in every department of Agriculture would be hard to beat.

The list is a long one and want of space and time prevents us going into fuller details, something we believe it would be well to do in the interest of progressive agriculture.

The farmers in this vicinity are wide awake and very few of them neglect the details that go to make success. It may be regretted, however, that a greater number do not come to the front, cast aside their modesty and swell the entries. We hope for a "growing time."
