Warning-Farmers beware of your stock. For about the past two years several thefts have been made, chiefly in stock, a short distance north of Holstein. The chief sufferers were D. Naismith of a bin of fall wheat; J. Brooks, a fine two-year-old heifer; John Brown, a young animal this summer; John Main, a good lambbut the climax of andacity reached its height last Sabbath night, or early Monday morning, Dec. 17th or 18th, when a party entered the premises of the writer, and took possession of a two-year-old heifer. The morning being almost as clear as day, the snow being easily impressed; the dog doing his duty faithfully. the peor animal bawled twice giving her parting farewell, but net being suspicious we did not stir and did not discover our loss till about a half after five o'clock. The tracks were those of a man wearing large stoga Lower Town, Durham boots. He closed the gate and burned north and as the animal was not used to being led, she would not stay on the road, hence, I was sure of securing the thief, and he will never have such a narrow escape until he is caught. We tracked the footmarks about two miles when a severe struggle had taken place, the animal had been thrown, but here the track was lost. I believe the rope got off and she escaped, and returned and entered a neighbor's yard at six o'clock a. m. having struggled nobly for her life and gained the victory. Should this meet the eye of the culprit, I hope the narrow escape will be a warning and produce repentance or should this meet the eye of any of your readers who saw this man and give me such information as will lead to his apprehension and conviction, I will give him twenty-five dollars for such information. I feel I would not be doing my duty were I not to give full publicity to this marauding adventure.

Thanking you. Mr. Editor, for occupying so much of your valuable space I remain, Yours etc. D. ALLAN.
