Another significant fact is the large movement of Chinese which has been in progress for some years, to other parts of their own empire, particularly to Manchuria and Mongolia, where they have carried not only enterprise, but wealth, and are developing trade to their own advantage and marches with these vast domains, and whose railroad is now pushing fit for use. through Manchuria. On the whole, there is no doubt that the large Chinese immigration to other Asian countries is advancing their development, for, next to the Japanese, the Chinese are the most enlightened and energetic of the Asiatic races; and the western world is already reaping material benefits in the growth of trade, due to the influx of Chinese in neighboring lands.
