Temperance.

It will be gratifying to temperance workers to know, and that on very reliable authority that Canada is the most temperate country in the world as to the consumption of alcoholic liquors. Mr. H. Bruce Jones in a paper read before the Royal Statistical Society in London, England, on the 24th of April last, said that while in Denmark the consumption of spirits in the form of whiskey, brandy or rum is three gallons a head, in France, Holland and Germany two gallons a head and in the United Kingdom, Russia and the United States about one gallon a head, in Canada the consumption of spirits has declined from 0.95 gallon in 1890 to 0.55 gallon in 1898. But whether in lieu of the stronger stimulants the consumption of coffee has increased in the same period from 8 lbs. per head in the United States to 11 lbs. and in Canada from 0.64 lb. in 1890 to 0.97 in 1898. In the other colonies of the Empire very little alcohol is drunk the consumption of wine has diminished even in vine growing countries of Europe, but the consumption of beer has increased by leaps and bounds.

Belgium stands first as a beer drinking country with its 45 gallons ahead per year. The United Kingdom not far behind with 32 gallons a head. The United States 13 gallons, Germany 27 gallons, but the Province of Bavaria has the unenviable notoriety of consuming 45 gallons per head thus topping the list of the beer drinking countries of the world.—Com.

Pat and the Pope.

The beaming countenance of Mr. Patrick McCullough, Barrister of Markdale, was seen on our streets on Tuesday. He left last night, accompanied by Messrs. S. Hill and D. McCullough, for a European tour. He will proceed first to Rome, where he anticipates with pleasure an interview with the pope, from thence he will visit all places of interest. We trust Mr. McCullough will have a pleasant trip, and will return much benefited in every possible respect.—Clarksburg Reflector.—It would be interesting to listen to Pat talking to the Pope on spiritual matters.—Ed.]

It happened this way. A young calf was expressed to Thornbury to a Mr. Wilson. The owner of the calf was a Mr. Wilson, of Kolapore. Word was sent to Mr. David Wilson, of Ephrasia, that there was a calf at the express office for him. Certainly 'his was a mystery to 'Dave,' as a calf by express never dawned upon him. He could not imagine who was so kind and thoughtful as to express him a thorough-bred. However, he came to town and secured his prize and the animal was landed on "Wilsoudale" farm in the highlands of Ephrasia. Imagine the express agent's surprise when the real owner came in and enquired about a calf that answered the description of the one that had gone to "the other Mr. Wilson." The calf has been restored to its rightful owner however, and the express agent is just wondering how many Mr. Wilsons there are travelling on the same name.—Thornbury Herald.
