DURHAM CHRONICLE
W. IRWIN, Editor and Proprietor.

DURHAM, JUNE 12TH, 1902.

The elections are over, practically, and to all appearances Premier Ross is to guide the helm of state for another four years. While he may pull through with a parliamentary majority of two or three it can not be very gratifying to know the majority of the electors pronounced for Mr. Whitney by a popular majority of between six and seven thousand votes in the province. The recounts so far have made no difference in the result, the official declaration of the returning officers being sustained with little alteration. It was thought, no doubt, by both sides of politics that Liberals having a very small margin to work on would go to the wall in a recount. Lennox is perhaps the most notable example where the majority of two given to Mr. Madole was reduced to a tie and the seat given only by the vote of the returning officer. At time of writing the result is not known in North Grey where a recount has been asked regarding the election of Mr. MacKay, whose official majority was only nine over his opponent, Mr. Boyd. Whether or not the recount will reverse the situation remains to be seen, but in the event of Mr. MacKay receiving the position a protest is likely to be entered as it is alleged that grave irregularity existed in some parts of the Constituency, notably at Shallow Lake where the ballots ran out and the polls had to be closed from 3.45 to 4.45 p. m. This and other matters, however, will likely be sifted in the courts in due time.

Now that the election campaign is over, it is highly gratifying to us to have strong Liberals give the opinion voluntarily that we conducted our part with becoming courtesy. We certainly endeavored to do so and from first to last it was our aim as a local publisher to say nothing that would leave a sting in the bosom of the opposing candidate. While we endeavored to say a good word for Dr. Jamieson, and the party he represented, it was not necessary, nor indeed would it be wise, to make a personal attack on Mr. Binnie, against whom no reasonable person, so far as we know, can say an evil word. No doubt he made a good fight, and we believe an honorable one so far as he was personally concerned, but we regret to think the same can hardly be said of some of his lieutenants, about whom it is possible that more may be learned should a protest be made against the Doctor's election. Circumstances are such that there was evident collusion between the party heeled and the scrutineers of the Liberal party, otherwise how could they spot so well the parties against whom charges could be made to prevent their voting by having them sworn. That the payment of certain moneys in Normanby is not the work of Conservatives, is we believe generally believed, whether so exposed or not we look upon bribery from any source as an offence against the sacred right of the franchise and one that should be punished whenever detected.

We notice in last week's Review an assertion to the effect that intimidation was used in the Furniture Factory to secure support for Dr. Jamieson. This is absolutely incorrect as neither Dr. Jamieson, nor any one in his behalf ever solicited a vote in the factory. On the other hand, however, we have it on good authority that during the absence of Manager Catton a director of the Company was in the factory canvassing against the Doctor.

CORRECTIONS.

In last week's report of election returns in South Grey the following errors occurred:
In Proton, No. 7 Polling Division, should be "Kingscote" and No. 8 should be "Proton Station." In West Ward, Durham, Dr. Jamieson got 135 and Mr. Binnie 30 the numbers being transposed in our report. The majority of 105, however, in West Ward was correct. As seen elsewhere the majority of 12 for Mr. Binnie in the Tobermory Ward, Bentinck, should have been 6 majority for Binnie instead of 12, but the error in this case was not ours.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT.

The following are the principal terms of settlement in Boer War, now ended:—
(1) The burgher forces lay down their arms and hand over all their rifles, guns, and ammunition of war in their possession or under their control.
(2) All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to South Africa without loss of liberty or property.
(3) No action to be taken against prisoners, except where they are guilty of breaches of the laws of war.
(4) Dutch is to be taught in the schools, if desired by the pupils, and used in the courts, if necessary.
(5) Rifles are allowed for protection.
(6) Military occupation is to be withdrawn as soon as possible and self government substituted.
(7) There is to be no tax on the Transvaal to pay the cost of the war.
(8) The sum of three millions sterling, $15,000,000, is to be provided for re-stocking the Boer farms.
(9) Rebels liable for trial, according to the law of the colony to which they belong, rank and file will be disfranchised for life. The death penalty will not be inflicted.

FEARFUL CHICAGO HOLOCAUST

Nine Men and one Woman Perished in the Flames in a Burning Sanatorium.

Nine men and one woman were killed and about thirty persons were injured in a fire which destroyed the Sanatorium conducted by the St. Luke's Society in Chicago. The greater portion of the patients were seeking cure from the drink habit, and those who were addicted to the use of drugs, of whom some were strapped to their beds, and whom it was found impossible to save. The fire originated in the basement and shot up almost instantaneously through the elevator shaft to the upper storeys. Several of the patients sprang from their beds, rushed to the windows and jumped to the pavement below. The firemen were soon at the scene, but their first efforts were to save a number of the inmates, during which time the fire gained much headway. The awful situation of the inmates can only be imagined. Alderman Kent was in a room on the fifth floor with his attendant. The attendant, who has been totally blind for many years, was in a strait jacket, and his hands were manacled to a belt that passed around his waist. When the alarm of fire was sounded, Wattles, his attendant, ran to investigate. He found the elevator shaft a mass of flames, and ran back to help the attendant, who blind and unable to do anything with his hands, was almost mad with fear, and was shouting like a madman. He groped his way to the door, and by the time his attendant had reached him had fallen to the floor overcome with smoke. Wattles seized him and tried to drag him to a place of safety, but Kent had become so crazy that it was impossible to do anything with him. Finally Wattles was compelled to flee for his life as the flames were already scorching his clothing. He and two others reached a window and were saved by the firemen, but a fall on the sidewalk, and the shock received from fright, leaves him in a condition from which he is not likely to recover. Kent was left lying on the floor of his room, and evidently died of suffocation. His body was badly burned after death, and three hours afterwards his body was found on the floor, one leg burned to crisp and the head burned off.

A LIVING FAITH.

SERMON BY GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief, but was strong in faith.—Romans, iv., 20.

The difference between the man of faith and the man of no faith is practically the difference between paradise and purgatory.

A man does not need to believe many things, just enough to give him a safe anchorage in stress of weather. Long creeds are tiresome, and the longer they are the more tiresome they become. As spiritual helps they are of very little value. If a man's theology consists of a few simple propositions there is small chance of his having a controversy within himself, whereas a complicated creed introduces many points of doubt.

If a man believes in little else than an honorable life, but believes in that at all hazards, and stands by it in all emergencies, he will make a good citizen, a loyal friend and cannot miss the approval of God. Such a man could not go to any other place than heaven, even if he wanted to, for he does not belong in any other locality. In like manner, if a man believes only in the law of gravitation, but believes in that with might and main, he will not put up a building that is likely to tumble down and bring him ruin. What he does build will be strong and solid. It may not be specially ornate, but it will last.

It is better to be absolutely sure of one essential thing than half sure of a dozen things. And so I venture to say that if a man is thoroughly convinced that he is in a world governed by law, and that behind the law is the Law-maker, that right is everlastingly right and wrong always wrong, he has a sure clue to lead him through the intricacies of life, its bereavements, its poverty, its hardships and the strange change which comes when he falls asleep at last. The whole of religion, all that is necessary to keep him in the high road to heaven, will lie like a panorama in full view. A few certainties, and after that he may speculate as much as he pleases, for his many speculations will not interfere with his few certainties.

The difficulty with the man who has no distinct belief is that he is not a safe guide for himself. He is not only adrift, but adrift. There is nothing he can depend on, very little of that patience and resignation which make things easy and a good deal of that rebellion which makes them hard. He has more responsibility for himself than he can carry, and keeps watch on the bridge night and day, not knowing that there is a captain at the helm.

I can speak with confidence concerning this mental attitude, because in my younger years I passed into and through some of the more radical phases of doubt. The sky was not very blue in those days, and I got very little out of life. I was compelled to be honest with myself, and was therefore as miserable as I was honest. When at length I found good holding ground my anchor chain made merry music as it sought the solid bottom. I wanted little, but I wanted that with a yearning inexpressible, for there is a desperation in feeling that you are a stray waif in a strange world, and that you are certain of nothing but uncertainty. One cares very little what he does when there is no God visible and no heaven to go to. With the grave as the miserable terminus of our journey, one grows selfish and discontented. On the other hand, with a horizon line stretching beyond sundown, one is careful what he does, because to-morrow he may be sorry.

A good, plain, square religion which everybody can understand, which appeals to the common sense of mankind, to the logic of the business man, and the research of the philosopher, is the only thing to set this old world right and keep it right. You are bound for a port on the other shore, and you must govern yourself accordingly. There must be no death in our thoughts, for that is fatal to the development and discipline of the higher nature. Nothing makes a man so large, so generous, so unselfish or so noble as a belief in immortality, and immortality must therefore be a fact or the universe is a huge deception. There must be another world somewhere in which these crooked things shall be made straight and these mysteries explained. Surely there will be a chance in some more favorable clime for us to make another effort in the light of a larger intelligence. We must also be able to look forward to a reunion after the hard separations which carry our dear ones into the light beyond the dark.

With such a faith vouchsafed by the Christ and by the longings of human nature we can bear and forbear, because the hour of rest is not far off. There is much more than this to believe if we have time to investigate, but it will serve our purpose.

Miss Mabel Cameron's visit cut short in our midst by a meso from her home in Listowel that sister, Mrs. Greenough, was serious at her home in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hood are proud possessors of a baby boy, arrived early Sunday morning.

The Egremont Creamery Company improved their plant last week putting in a "Victor" comb churn and butter-maker. The was purchased from the Queen Package Co., of Cowasville, Que.

Preparations are being made for grand demonstration on Dominion Day in our village. We hope to be able to give particulars next issue.

The hand of death has again laid on one of our citizens in person of Mr. Robert Herr, carrier of this village. On Monday of week he was not feeling well consulted Dr. Brown, who informed him that he was afflicted with a vere attack of appendicitis. All done that possibly could be done to relieve him, but with no avail was then decided to perform an operation. This was performed by Brown and Chas. and C. A. Jam Thursday, but Mr. Kerr rapidly died and breathed his last about 3 o'clock on Friday p. m., at the age of years. He leaves behind to his loss his wife and six small children, the eldest being ten years. Also four brothers, James and Wm. in Springfield; David and Wm. Bay City; also one sister, Mrs. O'Connell also of Bay City. The remains were interred on Sunday at Reid's cemetery.

The Rev. J. Little, pastor of the stein and Fairbairn congregations was duly inducted on Tuesday last week. The induction services were conducted by the Rev. Wm. Palmerston; Kendall, of Woodville; Farquharson of Durham; and of East Normanby; the Rev. D. Campbell, of Dromore, being inductor. In the evening a very successful tea-meeting was held, after addresses were delivered by the named gentlemen, interspersed with solos by Misses King, of Mt. Pleasant; Renwick, of Dromore; and Brown and W. S. Wood, of Hol also W. Ramage and Rev. J. G. The proceeds of the tea amounted to $62.50. The manse has been thoroughly renovated, and every point to a successful pastorate.

The Rev. J. Trux is at present tending the Methodist Conference at Woodstock, and has, by the draft of the stationing committee been put down for Holstein for another year.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flower, man is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of power to the average woman, that greatest of all jewels, health, often ruined in the strenuous chase to make or save the money to chase them. If a woman will her health to get a coveted gem let her fortify herself against the sidious consequences of coughs, and bronchial affections by the lar use of Dr. Boschee's Gem Syrup. It will promptly arrest the suppurative stages and the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread diphtheria from the system. It is not a cure but it is a certain cure for colds and all bronchial troubles can get this reliable remedy at Darling's Drug Store.
