BASKET BALL.

Expert Notes on Playing the Game by

Howard Crocker. The main point to be noted learning basket ball, with a view becoming an expert player, is that a straight, clean game must be played. One must learn to catch the ball surely, to pass very quickly, and to stop when running at full speed immediately upon receiving the ball. The best way to receive a ball is by jumping for it and landing squarely on both feet. This will require great deal of practice and good judgment so as not to strike an opponent and thus be penalized for charging. The game of basket ball is poor game indeed if there is much individual playing, but the game is improved from a spectator's standpoint, and is faster and better in every way if there is much quick passing. Therefore, you should endeavor to receive the ball and pass it one of your own men as quickly as possible. The most effectual passing is successful when it is passed from the third or fourth man, who, course, must be in the forward line, Principal Grant was called a politiand should be close in under the basfrom his check to get a clear shot at the basket. To pass the ball to a second player does not usually give him a clear shot at the basket, but by the time the third or fourth man receives it invariably that man is unfrom scoring, if he is a good shot. Dribbling the ball is a feature of the game which has been largely cut out. because of the rough play, but sometimes when a person gets the ball everyone of his team is checked and he cannot pass, then a dribble is necessary in order to give the men chance to get uncovered. The man who is going to dribble very much in the game should always try to stop the ball with one hand, then if you dribble you are at liberty to catch it with both hands and pass, so as not to violate rule 11, section 18.

The next good point in the game is that of quick passing in from out of touch. When time is lost by the players it slows the game down, and makes it uninteresting. Another thing, if you are quick in getting the ball in, and your men are quick to receive the ball from you, you very often can get in a position unchecked, and thus have a clear try for goal. If the ball is batted out touch by you, do not struggle for the ball when you know it should not be yours, drop it at once, and leave it for your opponent and get into your | Canada. Now, in closing, there are just two things that I would strongly urge upon all who play the game and intend to play for some time and are anxious to be good players. First always remember that it is the man who sees defeat staring him in the face who becomes rough and ungentlemanly, and begins to play "dirty" ball. Do not ever relinquish the game until time is up, no matter what the score is, and always play the same clean game whether you win or lose. If you lose people will praise you for your manner of playing, and n your own self you will feel that your game was clean. If you win you will realize that you have won hon-

Farms If you bat the ball out of touch do not try to get it, leave it for your opponent. If you run with the ball do not protest the officers' decision, but pass the ball immediately to the captain of the opposing team, that he may take his free throw. Do not ever address an official unless you are the captain of the team. old adage which says, "Say nothing but saw wood," is strictly true with basket ball. Say nothing, but play the game .- J.
