Have Moved

Yes, it was our "move" and we jumped across the street to a more commodious "home" in the Middaugh House Block, lately vacated by Mr. Hunter as a Flour and Feed Store.

We are now busy placing goods in position but will be always ready to wait on our host of customers the same as heretofore. Come and see us in our new "home."

Glenmont.

Miss Mary Halfpenny, one of our best young ladies, has gone to fill an appointment in Toronto. As Glenmont is a superior place to Toronto we expect her to return in the near future.

Bees and their attendant hops and halloos are of frequent occurrence. Hooper's and McDonald's were the latest on two succeeding nights, but this did not prevent some from attending both. What will humanity endure if you can only persuade them it is all for fun and frolic instead of being for some good purpose!

Abe Jones formerly of this place, is back on a visit. We are pleased to hear of his miraculous escape from being killed when the C. P. R. snow plough jumped the track followed by four engines going 60 miles an hour at Shelburne. Abe was in the plough when it came to a halt in a sandbank with the foremost engine looking in at him through the rear end of the plough. Abe is good stuff or he would have fainted.

War has been declared between Watsons and Reynolds and in the first engagement three of the latter were killed and flayed. They did not get time to repent of having slain so many chickens.

Distemper of a malignant type has been causing much trouble to some horses and their owners, but there has been no fatal cases.

Mrs. John Weir has been in Durham for a week visiting her mother who is much better than she was a few months ago.

Some young men are going West this Spring while others are engaging in the neighborhood at good wages. Archie McKinnon goes with Alex. Henderson on the 16th con Egremont.

Hugh McKinnon and family are moving to the Hinks farm in a week or two.

The weather? O yes, I forgot to say we get our share of it every day.

The snow too reminds us of Abe Lincoln's big hay crop. It was so plentiful that they stacked all they could outside and put the rest in the barn. We have about all the snow there is room for outside now and we are just thinking that if any more comes we will have to put it in the barn. It is reported here that the G. T. R. Co. is even more concerned about the snow than we are for they have in some places given up looking for the railway track and have started to shovel out the telegraph wires.

Henry's Corners.

Owing to the heavy storms this winter and the blocking of the railroads there are a good many things rather scarce. Some need flour and some need sugar, but we don't hear anybody making a great fuss about the scarcity of whiskey.

Thomas Brown had quite a run-away last week. When he was preparing to go to Dromore with chop he left his team at the door while he went to get his mits and robe. Off they went, but owing to the depth of snow they did not get very far till he found them in a heap. No harm was done.

Rumor says that Wm. Hunter, Jr., visited friends in Dundalk last Sunday. Will still has a sneaking regard for the old haunts.

Mrs. Robert Henry is somewhat under the weather, but we hope soon to hear of her being well again.

We hear that the trustees of S. S. No. 12 have engaged a lady teacher to take the place of Mrs. Hunter who is leaving at Easter.

James Hamilton, of North Dakota, who has been visiting his many friends around this part, intends leaving on the 19th of March for his home.

We are sorry to report this week the illness of R. J. Matthews, who had an attack of appendicitis, but owing to good nursing and the careful treatment of Dr. Sneath we hope soon to see him around again.

William Hunter purchased one of those prize winning thoroughbreds at Mr. Cornish's sale. Mr. Hunter had always an eye for good cattle.

A sleighload drove over from the 2nd one night recently and spent a very pleasant time at Peter Reid's.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Paterson, of Glenelg, visited with their cousin, Samuel Paterson, a short time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Merchant and sister, of the 16th, visited James Matthews.

James Boakes has the contract of putting the foundation under Peter Reid's barn.

Fred Foote intends leaving for the West on Tuesday if the train is running.

John Henry purchased a fine young horse the other day from Jim Parks in Bentinck for the handsome sum of $130.

A few of the old people around the Corners gathered at A. Henry's one night last week and spent a very enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. James Allan spent a couple of days visiting at Swinton Park.

A few from around the Corners attended the party at Henry Denney's last Wednesday and by all appearances had a very pleasant time.

A. Henry traded a cow for one of his brother Bob's spanking drivers.

George and Grace Reid visited friends at Swinton Park and took in the parlour social at W. Richardson's Friday of last week.

Samuel Paterson, Sr., sold one of his black horses to H. Caldwell.

Jack Adams said that Wat Ferguson told him that Will Henry said that J. G. Johnston nearly ran himself to death. Hearing alarming cries from the sideroad he at once set forth to lend a helping hand. When he arrived on the scene to his surprise he found J. H. stuck with a bag and a half of chop. Jack took the bag and J. G. took the half, pried out the sleigh and Jack with a half satisfied smile once more mounted the sleigh and to the chimes of those silvery bells sang sweetly the old refrain "I won't go there any more."

Sackett's Corners.

Mr. Editor it is some time since we sent any items to your valuable paper and our best reason for not doing so was the scarcity of anything to write about but snow blockades. If we get mail every two weeks we think we are doing well.

Sam McMurdo lost a valuable sow this week leaving six little motherless pigs to be cared for.

Neil Clark is busy drawing hay to the farm he bought from his brother-in-law, John McMillen, near Swinton Park.

Miss Violet Dunn, from Markdale, paid a visit to her cousin, Mrs. S. McMurdo.

Miss Hemphill, of Dundalk, spent a pleasant evening at Angus McDougal's recently.

G. Lane purchased a young horse at W. Kinsman's sale at a reasonable price.

We are sorry to hear that our old and respected neighbor, D. McFarlane, now living near the Rob Roy has been under the weather of late. We will be pleased to hear of him being around in his usual health again.

John McDonald's sale was a success, a very large crowd was present and prices ran high. Mr. McDonald's son Sandy is starting for the North West as soon as the snow blockade is over which we hope will be before the 12th of July.
