Exchange Echoes.

Geo. German, who is employed in W. G. Rowland's store, met with an accident on Friday last which came very near depriving him of one of his eyes. He was stooping down and turning quickly around. A rod used for displaying goods caught his eye as he turned and broke the white portion of that organ and Dr. Rooney found two stitches necessary to repair the damage. At last accounts no permanent injury was anticipated.—Shelburne Free Press.

Mrs. James Baird, of Arnott, met with a distressing accident on Monday. Finding water dripping through the kitchen ceiling she went up into the attic, which is not floored, to discover the leak, and missing her footing she fell through the ceiling to the floor below, alighting on her side on a child's chair breaking some ribs and bruising her head and face. If it had not been for the chair the probability is that she would have been killed. Mr. and Mrs. Baird have surely had their share of trouble of late years.—Chatsworth News.

Mr. "Dug" Munro, of Durham, left the Hanover depot last week for the west. "Dug" is well known among the sporting fraternity here in consequence of his prowess as a lacrosse player. He is one of the best lacrosse men that Durham ever turned out, and athletic circles in the sister town will miss him greatly. No doubt he will be heard from again, as it is good betting that he will be shining on some western aggregation. By the way, we hear that Durham's outlook for lacrosse is not very bright.—Hanover Post.

The Walkerton town council ought to be happy now for the station blackboard, which was causing them so much worry, has been securely nailed up in a conspicuous place on the station wall. But will it do anybody any good? It doesn't look like it. On Monday night Harry Day telephoned up to find out when the train would arrive. The reply he received was: "It's on the board, come up and see," and Harry had to go as he was advised. We do not suppose that a station agent is paid to shout through a telephone.—Walkerton Telescope.

In the report of the Provincial Auditor for 1903 we notice he makes these remarks on the finances of the T. of Elderslie and its treasurer, S. M. Ewart: Total receipts for 1902, were $13,552.86, and payments $12,877.59, leaving a balance of $675.27 in Western Bank, Paisley. Total assessment of township was $1,300,000. Tax rate, 4 6-10 mills, excluding school rates, Collector's roll, $11,247.14, all paid. The liabilities were practically only $2,500, school debentures, and the assets above the same. The Treasurer had only been in office about eight months when I saw him. I think he is likely to prove a good officer. His salary is $90 per annum at present.—Chesley Enterprise.

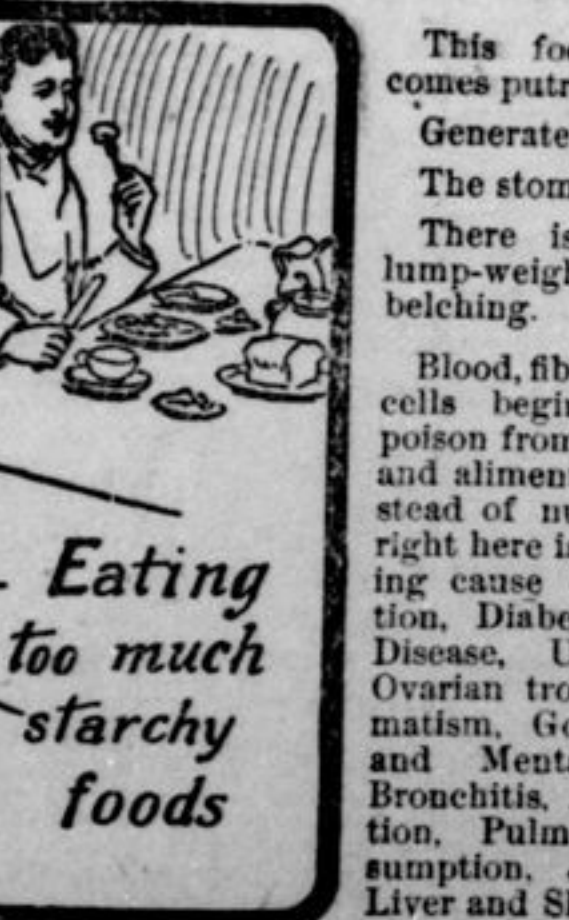

In last issue we reported that on Wednesday an operation for a serious case of appendicitis had been performed on Mr. R. J. Dixon, who recently moved to town from Egrement. Notwithstanding the serious nature of the case he rallied from the operation so satisfactorily that his doctor and nurses had bright hopes of his ultimate recovery until Monday of this week when he began to sicken and about 7 p. m. that day he suddenly expired. Deceased was the fourth son of Mr. J. M. Dixon, of Egrement, and was in his 28th year. Less than two years ago he married Miss Helen Isaac, of Dromore, who is now left to mourn her loss. He is also survived by his parents, four brothers and a sister. His death cuts short a life full of desire for good, he having quit farming and moved to town this winter for the purpose of pursuing his studies for the Presbyterian ministry. The Sunday previous to having been operated on, he had driven out and preached three times on the Cedarville charge. He was a young man whose character was beyond reproach and was a general favorite with all. His young wife and other relatives have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement. The funeral will leave his late residence, Egrement St., at 1 p. m. to-day, for Amos church, Dromore, thence to the Amos cemetery. A short service will be held at the residence to conclude at 1 p. m.—Mt. Forest Representative.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER FIVE HOURS.

Dr. Bouchard, the eminent French physician, has furnished facts which show that if food is retained in the stomach more than five hours it becomes fermentative and putrefactive, —not digestive,—and that this is the starting-point of disease.

Three young Englishmen from the city of Leeds, who were among the Immigration Department's latest importations arrived in town Wednesday, having been promised employment with farmers in the neighborhood of Badjeros. They are tradesmen and farming will be entirely new to them. They report that thousands are walking the streets of the towns and cities of England unable to get work, and many are afraid of Canada owing to the stories told by returned immigrants who did not find life here as rosy as it was pictured.—Dundalk Herald.

A meeting of the Aberdeen Lacrosse Club was held in Dundas's tailor shop on Friday, March 18th, when officers were elected as follows: Hon. Pres., I. B. Lucas; Pres., Dr. L. G. Campbell; Secretary, Geo. Dundas; Treasurer, C. McKechnie; Committee, J. H. Stephenson, A. McPhee, W. Dundas. The treasurer's report showed a cash balance on hand. It was decided to place a team in the junior series of the C. L. A., and Dr. Campbell was appointed a delegate in connection with the same. The colors of the club this year will be white with red trimmings.—Markdale Standard.

The Ayton Cordage Company, that like many other concerns, was tied up during the continued blockade of the past winter, is now making rapid progress towards completion. The machinery is all ready for shipment, and it is expected will be along as soon as the railway companies begin to move heavy freight. All the other supplies have been purchased by the Board and Mr. Bruer, the able manager, is hustling things to a finish, and estimates that he will have the factory in operation by the first of May if no adverse conditions appear to mar his plans. Even with this late start the company can yet turn out from two to three hundred tons of twine for the next season's use. Farmers will kindly note this and keep their orders for the home institution.—Ayton Advance.

John S. Becker the lessee of the Milne farm on townline of Bentinck and Sullivan, was allowed by his landlord to cut down a hemlock stub on the farm for wood. When the hemlock lay prone in its snowy bed John perceived evidences of the truth of that verse of poetry: "How does the little busy bee improve each shining hour?" for the mellifluous food made up by these hard-working insects, was scattered profusely around John got 8 gallon pails and several pails full of honey and left existence in the log to keep the bees in existence till next summer's flowers bloom. The old hemlock like many a crusty-looking old chap of rough exterior, wasn't much to look at, but there was in it a sweetness that did not exist in other trees of fine appearances but which like a miserly old curmudgeon was hard and sour all the way through. Judge neither trees nor persons by appearances.—Chesley Enterprise.

An epidemic of diphtheria and scarlet fever has broken out south of this village and already four deaths have resulted therefrom. There appears to be very little effort made by the authorities to stop the spread of these fatal diseases. The medical health officer has in some instances placarded the infected homes but the inmates mingle with their neighbors as if there was no danger or no bar against their doing so. The result is that this sort of quarantine is falling into disrepute for a law that is not enforced but allowed to be broken at will is worse than no law in so far as the public safety is concerned. Why is there not a meeting of the Board of Health called and have this matter discussed and vigorous steps taken to stop the spread of these contagions? We wonder what this body was instituted for or what reasons can be advanced for its existence if not to meet emergencies of this nature and safeguard the public health. It would appear that somebody is very lax in the discharge of his duty in this matter.—Ayton Advance.

How Long.

Tell us, ye winged wintry winds,
That through our whiskers blow,
Is winter ever going to end?
That's what we want to know.
Will warm weather ever come?
Oh, do not say us nay,
Or must we all be friz to death?
Say, gentle zephyrs, say,
Shall we be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease
Or stand in drifits up to our eyes,
While our marrow freezes?
Come, gentle spring, list to our song,
We'd have you know that if
You don't appear ere very long
We'll all be frozen stiff.

STRAY SHOTS.

(Solomon, in Shoe and Leather Journal.)
You can say some things if you are rich that would bring you a good swift kick if you carried a hol or clerked in a store and said them. Even the church will listen to brazen effrontery or stupid rot from a man who can write his name to a large cheque, while it will promptly put out of the synagogue the poor beggar who expresses a few ideas in regard to the Kingdom of God. "Thou wast altogether born in sin, and dost thou teach us?" is asked in effect by the Christian Church when the presumption of a poor man raises itself against Baal worshippers ecclesiasticism. In a religious meeting the other day a rich, old scoundrel, who made all his own by a crooked failure, got up and unbound his "forty-year" experience and his wearisome twaddle was listened to with respectful attention, because most of the preachers present and others had their minds on the state of the church funds. A laboring man, who got up afterwards to tell how he was saved from the gutter, and in his own language described how he was changed "from a bum into a gentleman," was sung down because his exhortation passed the limit of two minutes. This is the kind of thing that makes the church a tool in the hands of the Devil. "The poor useth entreaties; but the rich answereth mightily." If you want to say things and get a hearing be sure you have a fat pocket book to keep the floor for you.

Get out of the mean, dispicable habit of passing judgment before you have the facts before you. Many a man has been hanged on circumstantial evidence, and many a reputation has been blasted by the fatal habit most people have of jumping at conclusions. There are two sides to every story, and the man who is ready to take a stand before he has heard all that can be said is, to say the least, a narrow-minded ass. Give your neighbor a chance. Go and hunt up evidence of his crookedness before you brand him as unworthy of confidence. It is due to yourself as much as to him to know the truth before you pass judgment. The cruel assassinations of prejudiced judgment will only be known when the mist of time has been dissipated by the dawn of eternity. Be righteous in your judgments, or wisely withhold them. "He that answereth a matter before he heareth it, it is a folly and a shame to him."

"He is slow, but sure," is sometimes spoken in commendation of some person who has spent his life time crawling over about a third of the amount of work an average man should do. Nine times out of ten the slow man is a lazy man, and slowness is only another name for petrifaction. He never got a proper start when he was young, and never since caught up. There is little excuse for slowness. It usually originates in lack of interest, and the remedy is to get some dynamite under the laggard. The only reason why some men never get on is, they are too easy on themselves. Just look at what some men accomplish in one day, and ask yourself if you are doing justice to your age and generation. Some men are still where they were twenty-years ago, because they have never got up, spit on their hands, and made things go. The slow man is like the hypochondriac, he needs heroic treatment. He needs to be thrown into a place where he has to work for his life, and he will soon acquire agility. There is a moral side to the issue. The fellow who is not doing his stunt in the battle of life is not honest. Every man owes it to his neighbors to carry his fair share of the load. What he fails to carry must be borne by someone else. "He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great waster." How much of your time and opportunities are you wasting? Have you, on the other hand, learned the luxury of doing a good day's work. "The sleep of the laboring man is sweet."
