A muscular Irishman strolled into the civil service examination room in a physical test.

initiated.

"Get your clothes off; be quick about it," said the doctor.

The Irishman disrobed, and permitted the doctor to measure his chest and legs and pound his back.

"Hop over this bar," ordered the doctor. The man did his best, landing on his back. " Now double up your knees and touch the floor with your hands." He sprawled, face downward, on the floor. He was indignant, but kept silent. "Jump under the cold shower," ordered the doctor.

"Sure, that's funny," muttered the applicant. "Now run round the room ten times to test your heart and wind," directed the doctor. The candidate rebelled.

"I'll not. I'll stay single." The dector looked surprised.

"What's more," continued the Irishman. "I don't see what all this fussing's got to do with a marriage license."

He had strayed into the wrong bureau. Later he got a license, giving the name of Joseph McGlynn.
