Taverston.
 (Intended for last week.)
 A fair face shows fairer, and a sweet voice sounds sweeter, amid the rustling leaves of a night in June." The boys say Sir W. Scott's words are more than true.

Miss Marion McNabb, who has been home during the winter and spring, left for Toronto on Thursday, after enjoying a big time at the Anderson-Marklow wedding. Her sister, Mrs. John McGillivray, is gradually recovering.

We have a tough ox good to crack over the fellow's head who set up the type for our last week's budget.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Reed, of Paisley, are visiting among relatives in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Richard Haley has been suffering for some weeks with a growth on her shoulder arising from inflammatory rheumatism.

Miss Allie Davis, as fair a maid as we have in the vicinity, arrived unexpectedly from Toronto last Thursday. Hearing of her father's illness hastened her home.

Hayward's Falls will soon be a memory of the past. Mr. Minnis has an expert blasting the rocks and he, already, has the cavity at the foot of the falls levelled up with the surface. A powerhouse will be erected where the tumbling waters leap.

On Tuesday morning of next week, June 14th, the meat bags and baskets will be early on hand at E. W. Hunt's. Mr. Boyle's is the first here to be relished and the inspectors say she's a good un.

In the tree-embowered, old stone house of Mr. John Fallice, Sr., on Thursday of last week, a most happy union took place. 'Twas the marriage of his adopted daughter, Miss Mary Marlow, to Mr. Adam Anderson, both of the 5th con. The ceremony took place in the lilac-decked parlor at 12 o'clock. Rev. Wray R. Smith coming up specially from Conference to perform the ceremony. Miss Annabel Blair softly played the Wedding March and Jeanie and Norretta Fallice made two very pretty flower girls. The bride was most handsomely gowned and never looked more fair and sweet. It was a glad day for Adam and he looked the true-hearted, honest lover. He is one of our most stalwart youths, well-read, popular, an up-to-date farmer in good circumstances. Miss Mary has the reputation for being one of the best cooks and housekeepers on the line, so the pair have a bright future awaiting them. About forty guests witnessed the nuptials and partook of the good things provided. The presents they brought bespoke generosity and goodwill. A group of gay spirits accompanied the bridal party to Ceylon, where they took the evening train for King township to spend a few days. We venture to say Adam hasn't all the rice shaken out of his wedding garments yet. The neighborhood is one in heart and mind in wishing them life's most treasured blessings.

Meat on the Farm.
 Much valuable information regarding butchering, curing and keeping of meat is given in farmers' Bulletin No. 183 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, entitled, "Meat on the Farm." The many illustrations enable anyone to follow closely the directions for killing and cutting up cattle, sheep and swine. The general advice given is worthy of close attention by all farmers who do not depend on the butcher for their meat supply.

Selection of Animals. The author of the bulletin points out that in the selection of animals for meat health should be given first consideration. No matter how fat an animal may be or how good its form, if it is not in perfect health the best quality of meat cannot be obtained. If suffering from fever, or any serious derangement of the system, the flesh will not be wholesome food. Flesh of animals that have recovered from the ravages of disease before slaughter is not likely to cure well and is very difficult to keep after curing. Bruises, broken limbs, or like accidents all have the same effect on the meat as ill health, and, unless the animal can be killed and dressed immediately after such accident it is not best to use the meat for food. A raise of two degrees or more in the animal's temperature at or just previous to slaughtering is almost sure to result in stringy, gluey meat and to create a tendency to sour in curing.

How It Spreads.
 The first package of Hem-Roid (the infallible Pile cure) that was put out went to a small town in the State of Nebraska.

It made the cure of a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and although this was only two years ago the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonhards of Lincoln, Neb. the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is being sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of Piles There is a month's treatment in each box.

Sold for $1.00, with absolute guarantee. It is for sale at Darling's drug store.

Edge Hill.
 (Intended for last week.)
 Crops are looking well now, despite the late spring and if present conditions continue there will likely be as good a crop as last year, with the exception of fall wheat which is not up to the average.

Mrs. Jas. Staples and son Fred visited friends in Owen Sound recently.

Mr. Jos. Firth is jacking up his barn to-day (Monday) and will build a stone foundation under it. This will afford him much better accommodation for stock.

The Edge Hill Union Sunday School is in operation again this year with the same staff of officers as last year. The attendance is about fifty.

Mr. and Mrs. Corlett, of Dornoch, were guests of Mrs. Thos. Greenwood the beginning of the week.

Miss Lily Jopp, who has spent the winter with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Edge, returned to her home in Moosomin, Assa., on Monday of last week. She drove to Owen Sound and was going to take the boats from there to Port Arthur. Her pleasant disposition made her many friends during her stay among us.

The Edge Hill Fresh Beef Association will deliver the first beef of this season on Wednesday morning, June 15. The people of this part would not do without the beef ring now for any money.

Mr. Chas. Moffat leaves this week on a trip up the Lakes as far as Port Arthur. He will spend some time with his son Harry who is farming near Port Arthur and then probably return by rail by way of Toronto. We wish Mr. Moffat a pleasant journey.

Mr. Dan Edge recently disposed of five head of fat cattle which tipped the scales at 6160 lbs. This is good weight and indicates a thorough knowledge of successful feeding.

On Wednesday last week Mr. Harry Williams raised his barn. Harry is a first rate fellow at a raising himself so everyone worked well although the rain at times made it a little disagreeable. The structure is about 45x60 and was framed by Mr. James Brodie. Everything went together nicely and the raising passed off without any serious mishaps. Wm. Ritchie and Joe Atkinson were chosen captains and divided the men in good shape. The race resulted in a win for the former by a few rafters and the collar tie. The barn when completed, will fill a long felt want for Mr. Williams and will enable him in future to safely house his grain without the troubles necessarily incumbent with stacking.

It's What It Leads to.
 That makes Catarrh such a dreaded disease. If you have Catarrh taint, dropping in the throat, if you hawk and spit and have a stuffed up feeling in your nostrils you should use fragrant healing Catarrhzone at once and get cured. Thousands have been saved from Consumption and completely cured by Catarrhzone, so there is no reason why you shouldn't stamp out your Catarrh also. Catarrhzone will really cure you and prevent the disease from returning. It's very pleasant, just balsamic medicated vapor—no nauseous drugs. Absolute cure guaranteed to users of Catarrhzone; it can't fail, try it. Complete outfit $1.00; sample size 25c.

Racking Pain in the Joints.
 Also every form of rheumatism, Neuralgia sciatica are best cured by Nerviline the quickest relief for muscular pain yet discovered. It's because Nerviline strikes in and penetrates right to the core of the pain that it gives such unbounded satisfaction. 'I caught cold in my shoulders while driving and suffered great pain, writes G. E. Dempsy, of Berlin. I used Nerviline freely and was soon quite well. I have found Nerviline an excellent remedy for rheumatism and neuralgia as well as for cold on the chest. I recommend Nerviline highly and wouldn't be without it.' Price 25c.

Bruises, broken limbs, or like accidents all have the same effect on the meat as ill health, and, unless the animal can be killed and dressed immediately after such accident it is not best to use the meat for food. A raise of two degrees or more in the animal's temperature at or just previous to slaughtering is almost sure to result in stringy, gluey meat and to create a tendency to sour in curing.

Condition. First class meat cannot be obtained from animals that are poor in flesh. A reasonable amount of flesh must be present to give juiciness and flavor to the flesh, and the fatter an animal is, within reasonable limits, the better will be the meat. The presence of large amounts of fat is not essential, however, to wholesome meat and it is far more important that an animal be in good health than that it be extremely fat. It is not wise to kill an animal that is losing flesh, as the muscle fibres are shrinking in volume and contain correspondingly less water. As a consequence the meat is tougher and dryer. When an animal is gaining in flesh the opposite condition obtains and a better quality of meat is the result. Also a better product will be obtained from an animal in only medium flesh but gaining rapidly than from a very fat animal that is at a standstill or losing in flesh.

Breeding and Quality. Quality in meat is largely dependent on the health and condition of the animals slaughtered, and yet the best quality of meat is rarely, if ever, obtained from poorly bred stock. The desire "marbling" or admixture of fat and lean is never of the best in scrub stock, nor do the over fed showing animals furnish the ideal in quality of meat. There seems to be a connection between a smooth, even and deeply fleshed animal and nicely marbled meat that is not easily explained. Fine bones, soft luxuriant hair and mellow flesh are always desirable in an animal to be used for meat, as they are indications of small waste and good quality of meat.

Age for Killing. Age affects the flavor and texture of the meat to quite an extent. It is a well-known fact that meat from old animals is more likely to be tough than that from young ones. The flesh from every young animal lacks flavor and is watery. An old animal properly fattened and in good health would be preferred to a younger one in poor condition. Cattle are fit for beef at eighteen or twenty months if properly fed, though meat from such animals lacks in flavor.

The best beef will be obtained from animals from twenty to forty months old. A calf should not be used for veal under six weeks age, and is at its best when about ten weeks old and raised on the sow. Hogs may be used at any age after six weeks, but the most profitable age at which to slaughter is eight to twelve months. Sheep may be used when two or three months old and at any time thereafter. They will be at their best previous to reaching two years of age, usually at eight to twelve months.

Preparation of Animals for Slaughter. An animal intended for slaughter should be kept off feed from 24 to 36 hours, otherwise it is impossible to thoroughly drain out the veins when the animal is bled, and a reddish colored unattractive carcass will be the result. Water should be given freely up to the time of slaughter, as it keeps the temperature normal and helps to wash the effete matter out of the system, resulting in a nicely colored carcass.

The care of animals previous to slaughter has a considerable effect on the keeping qualities of the meat. In no instance should an animal be killed immediately after a long drive or after a rapid run about the pasture. The flesh of an animal that has been overheated is usually of a pale colour and very often develops a sour or putrid odor within three or four days after being dressed. Bruises cause blood to settle in that portion of the body affected, presenting an uninviting appearance, and often cause the loss of a considerable portion of the carcass. Therefore, a thirty-six hour fast, plenty of water, careful handling, and rest before slaughter are all important in securing meat in the best condition for use.

 Publication Clerk.
