THE NEW AGRICULTURE.

Farming as a Business.

Improving The Farm Home

We are moving out the old conditions, said Prof. C. C. James, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Agriculture, at the Maritime Winter Fair. When our settlers first came to Canada they faced the primeval forest, and during all the clearing period the old agriculture held sway. With a new generation, conditions began to change; live stock came in, large barns were built, butter and cheese began to be made, and we gradually changed all our methods. This building and the exhibit it contains are proof that we are trying to keep up with the demands of the times and to compete with other countries by following the New Agriculture.

The New Agriculture must be conducted upon business principles. In old times it did not seem so necessary to pursue these business methods; in fact, with the surroundings then existent, there was no chance to do so. In our towns and cities the merchant and the manufacturer has also had to change his methods of business. The farmer is just as much a manufacturer as the man in town who makes boots, cloths and hardware. The manufacturer in town finds it necessary to make the kind of goods that the customer demands. It is also one of the conditions to day that the farmer should produce what his customers want. We must consider what our district is best capable of producing, and work along that line. Grow the crops and keep the live stock that thrive best where we live.

The manufacturer must produce economically. Our best saw mills, for instance, are now run with practically no waste of material; even the dust is used. One of the best examples of economical manufacturing is seen in the great stock yards of Chicago, where absolutely every part of an animal is turned into a remarkable product. So the farmer must endeavor to convert to a profitable use all his products. He should see to it that there is no waste land under weeds, under fences, or in careless cultivation. The farmer has, perhaps, in his operations greater problems to meet than any other manufacturer, if he would avoid unnecessary waste.

The New Agriculture must be conducted upon scientific principles. There should not to-day be any objection to book farming, for the intelligent man can from agricultural papers and books get the valuable experience of other men who have done the work he is trying to do. Our people are wisely beginning to lay aside their prejudice against books and to try to get the best information from every available source. Scientific men have been and are studying and finding out truths about plant growth, the constituents of our soils, the breeding and feeding of animals, the growing of fruit, etc., and it will pay us to learn what these men have found out.

The farm work of the future will be a great deal more enjoyable. In Ontario the farmers are very seldom referred to as "old hayseeds." The intelligent man who watches closely all the results of his work is interested and takes a pleasure in it. The world has lately found out that the farmer can be benefited by an education applicable to his business.

A few years ago in Ontario we first found out that the farmer had a wife, and we are doing what we can for the betterment of the woman on the farm. In the past she has had a hard life, her work has been practically unending and she has not had the benefit of labor-saving devices to the same extent as her husband. We are trying to relieve the farmer's wife of all the drudgery possible by our system of women's institutes and domestic science teaching. We have also found out that their are children on the farm, and we are inaugurating a movement to try to provide the right kind of education for these children.

The home is where our agriculture starts and is nurtured. The reformation of the agricultural home is the start after all of our New Agriculture. Establish a farmer with an inclination to knowledge, a wife who knows how to make the most of her opportunities, and children getting a rational education, and I care not how poor that farm is, it will succeed. With these conditions, we shall hear no more about the "old hayseed," but we shall see the farmer walking the streets of our towns as well dressed as anyone, and respected as one of the best citizens of Canada.

To the Electors of South Grey.

GENTLEMEN,—

I respectfully request your vote and influence at the approaching Provincial Election on 25th of January, 1905.

Should you honor me by electing me as your representative, I will faithfully do all that I can to promote the best interests of our Riding, and the welfare of our Province, by supporting only such legislation as will tend to honest, efficient and economical administration of Provincial affairs.

Believing that the will of the people should be faithfully respected, I will oppose and strenuously condemn all electoral corruption; convinced that majorities must rule, I will make it a first rule of my conduct to see that they are honest majorities.

Trusting that I may be honored by your support, and wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

John McKechnie

Liberal Candidate.

What Is Home?

Four walls, a roof, a floor;
Some windows and a door;
Chairs, tables and a bed
To rest their limbs and head;
Some pictures on the wall—
And yet that is not all.

Two eyes to watch for me,
Two lips to smile in glee,
Two arms to hold me tight,
A face with love alight,
A heart as true as steel
That would no thought conceal
From me a merry laugh
Light as the wind-borne chaff—
Kisses as honey sweet,
My hungry lips to greet.

Four walls, a roof, a floor;
Some windows and a door;
These ne'er a home would be
For poor world-worried me,
These soulless things take life
From her I love—my wife!

More Ways Than Two in Popping The Question.

"Folks wad think, tae hear Durward Lely, that we Scotch hae only the ae way o' proposin'," said Kiltie, "but I could tell o' twa-three masesl'." Noo, there wis as callant I ken't wha had been takin' lank walks wi' a lassie near us, an' whan he thoct it wis time to speak he said tae her, 'Peggie I am going to get marriet!' 'An' wha might it be?' spier't Peggie. 'Tae yerseel, Peggie,' says he, 'or tae naebody ava,' 'Aweel,' says Peggie, 'it winna dae for me tae contradic' ye.'

"There wis a young fairmer I've heard tell o' that managed without wastin' o'wer muckle win'. He took his lassie oot for a walk and sat doon beside her on the bank o' a burn. 'Dae ye lo'e me?' says he. She said, 'Div I no?' he said, 'Gie's a kiss,' an' the modest bit lassie says, 'Help yerseel.' He went tae the lassie's hoose next night an' talked horses an' ploos tae her father, an' the auld man thoct he wis rael guid company. 'Whan he wis gairn awa' Jean went wi' him tae the door. Efter he had bidden her 'Guid e'en,' he thoct for a meenit an' then said, 'Wull ye hae us, Jean.' The lassie said, 'Ay,' an' that wis a' there wis about it.

"Anither lad that didna waste ony time tho' he wis gey blate wis a coter in the north. He didno juist like tae ask the lassie hersel', sae he gied it oot that he an' Kirstie were gaun tae mak' a match o't. Kirstie heard o't, of course, an' starlit tae flyte him about it. She wis juist bleezin'. 'Haud yer wheesh, Kirstie,' says he, 'I'm ready whenever ye are.' An' Kirstie thoct she would be ready in about a month. We a dinna need tae tak' lassies tae a kirkyaird tae tell them whit we think o' them."

We Don't Ken Whaur We're Gaun.

There's a path we canna measure, it's the path o' life we walk,
Nor calculate in figures wi' pencil, pen or chalk;

It's a weary path for puir folk to struggle hard upon
They ken weel whaur they cam' frae, but they don't ken whaur they're gaun.

There's highways, byways, an' many ways thro' life;
There's one way—that I'll say—for every man an' wife,
If they only pull to'ger, wi' bairns by the han';
Be civil and agreeable though ye don't ken whaur ye're gaun.

A workin' man has got a lot o' hardships to contest;
His labour's sair, his day is lang, an' short aye is his rest,
He's doon the hill, but wi' a will he means to reach the tap,
While some are weel contented wi' their luxury an' nap.

I'm wae to say there's misery in mony a hoose an' ha',
In public hoose, ay' lodgin'-hoose, an' gran, hotels an' a',
What a peety we were born in a Christain hard tax'd lan'!
We ken we live in dookits, but we don't ken whaur we're gaun.

Wm J. Bradlev.

A Vision of the West

We have just received the Christmas Number of the Western Home Monthly published in Winnipeg, Man. by the Home Publishing Co.

A bright, interesting and admirably illustrated monthly magazine for the home, it enjoys the distinction of being the only publication of its kind in Western Canada. Already its circulation has passed the twenty thousand mark, and if we may judge by its exclusive constituency and general appearance, the goal of success is within sight.

Fully ninety per cent of its readers are scattered over the vast prairie west of the Great Lakes, thus offering excellent opportunities to the patrons of its advertising pages, whilst the unparalleled development portrayed in its well selected and carefully finished engravings cannot fail to be of the greatest advantage to Western Canada. It is strictly a publication for the home whose monthly advent will be watched with eagerness and anxiety.

We predict an unmeasured success for the Western Home Monthly.

Ferrozone.

"The benefit I derived from Ferrozone," writes Mr. A. P. Whitehead from Moncton, "is really marvellous. I used Ferrozone, and am glad to say my health is better to-day than for many years. I weigh ten pounds more and look and feel stronger. Ferrozone is the best tonic I ever used."

Mrs. Duncan W. Dunham, of Portland, writes: "Last winter I was attacked by neuralgia and was run down in health. I used all sorts of medicines, but found Ferrozone the best. It brought back my appetite and has made me strong, so that I don't expect to be bothered with neuralgia or weak spells again."

The cures of Ferrozone is lasting, because it does its work thoroughly. It is a specific for all forms of skin diseases, kidney, liver and stomach trouble.
