Will You Help It?
THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN

For it Cares for Every Sick Child in Ontario whose Parents Cannot Afford to Pay For Treatment.

The Hospital for Sick Children, College Street, Toronto, appeals to the fathers and mothers of Ontario for funds to maintain the thousand sick children that it nurses within its walls every year.

The Hospital is not a local institution—but Provincial. The sick child from any place in Ontario who can't afford to pay has the same privileges as the child living in Toronto and is treated free.

Every dollar may be the translator of your kind thoughts into the Hospital kind deeds. Everybody's dollar may be the Friend in Need to Somebody's child.

SPORTS OF FILIPINOS.

Amusements in Vogue Among Women, Men and Boys.
In a letter to a friend in Washington Mrs. Annie Pike Smith, formerly of Washington, but now with her husband, Captain A. T. Smith, U. S. A., at Camp Jossman, Iloilo, Philippine Islands, writes thus concerning the native sports, says the Washington Star:

"Among the women rope jumping is a pastime. Is this to be wondered at in a country noted for its hemp? They make a game of it. To each woman, including those that turn the rope, is given the name of a flower or tree. The one that acts as leader calls out the name, and the proper one takes her turn. Should the 'flower name' of one of the girls turning be called, then there is a great scramble, while another is taking her place, and she makes her jump. It reminded me of the noisy game called fruit basket which I played in my childhood on the streets of Washington.

"Among the boys—and older men, too—a favorite sport is the tossing of a hollow ball made of bahooka, a species of bamboo. They toss this ball from one to another, never touching it with their hands, but using only the muscles of the back, hips and legs. It is really wonderful how long they can keep it flying back and forth in the air. The youngsters enjoy the regular old game of hopscotch. A plot outlined in shape is laid out with a circle divided into equal spaces. The game is to hop on one foot from one division to the others, at the same time kicking a stone. But cockfighting reigns supreme. Almost any day you may see a crowd of small muchachos in a circle watching a fight on which a few pesos have been hazarded. These fights are generally without the gasps. How the Filipino loves his muntio!

Supply of Oxygen For Firemen.
An experiment has recently been made in Paris with an ingenious apparatus, invented by M. Guglielminetti and M. Draeger, by means of which it is possible to remain without fear of asphyxia in places where it would otherwise be impossible to breathe. The apparatus is automatic—that is, it has no connection with the air outside. It is composed of a tube containing a provision of oxygen sufficient to last a man for breathing purposes for more than an hour and a helmet of aluminum fitting the head exactly by means of a pneumatic pad. The oxygen is supplied automatically to the man's mouth and the air exhaled is received in a compressible bag.

A Disappointed Dog.
Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) tells of a dog that travels with his shows that is the most ill tempered beast in the world. He has good reasons for his ugliness, according to what the narrator says: "He sleeps in the ticket wagon. Now, every night before he is shut up the ticket seller gives him a bone, which he promptly conceals in a hole dug beneath the wagon. Then he goes to bed, and, falling to realize that almost every night his house is shifted over the road, he can't understand why the morning's search for the bone is futile. Then he's mad. He thinks some one has stolen it, and it isn't safe to go near him for several hours. Sometimes we stop several days in a place, and then, of course, he finds the bone, and it's just enough incentive to keep him digging holes. He's planted bones all over this country and the greater part of Europe and has lost ninety-nine out of every hundred."

Engineers' Watches.
It is vitally important that railroad engineers should have accurate timepieces. One is seldom seen with an expensive watch unless it has been presented to him by the company as a memorial of long and faithful service or for some deed of heroism. A dealer tells me that the works in engineers' watches are of standard make, costing the uniform price of $18. The style of the case depends on the purchasing ability of the buyer, the price ranging from $2 to as many hundreds as one wants to waste on gold and gems. Most cases are silver. For many years the works were manufactured by a firm in the west. Ere long wireless electric clocks will be used in engine cabs, so that the time all over the road will be the same to a fraction of a second. There will be fewer accidents then.—New York Press.

Saving Money Orders.
The postal authorities have discovered that the money order system is now being extensively used by people who like to hoard their money. Those who formerly used their stockings now purchase money orders and lay them away. The order is payable within seven years and unless destroyed or defaced is as good as a government bond without the interest within the period named.

TRUTH.
When first I trod in wistful gropings lonely,
And felt for God, in crude impassioned youth;
I longed to know Thee and Thy spirit only
Thou great, clear-orbed Truth!

For Thee alone I sought mid earth's confusions,
By Thee, and Thee alone, I measured life.
Mighty or petty; drew its deep conclusions,
Plumbed its abysses, felt its ebb and strife.

I sorrow o'er myself for I have wronged
The greatness that He made me, and have turned
Aside in dreams, where lighter fancies
Lingered,
Or deeper channels where earth's passions burned.

But Thou, still onward is Thy fixed unturning
Betwixt the olden ill and bitter moan.
Dost tread the true old way, Thy lamp
Still burning.
Led by Thy light alone.

And round and round in Thy great orbit flaming,
Like the fixed planets, Thou dost circle still.
Mid life's confusions, olden loves defaming,
And murky mists of those who work Thy will.
—W. Winifred Campbell.

MORLEY IN THE UNITED STATES.
How Great Free Trader Came Finally to Joke About It.
Business men in England listen reverently to the theories of John Morley and accept his utterances as the oracles of eternal truth.

"Business men in the United States look upon Mr. Morley as something in the nature of an entertainment. They banquet him and enjoy his quips and jests and think that his glorification of free trade is funnier than all his other jokes put together.

At Mr. Morley's earlier appearances in New York he seriously attacked protection and was politely laughed at, but at the farewell banquet last Saturday night the guest of honor joked on the sacred subject as follows:
"I am not going to say a word about free trade to-night, not a word."
"We remember the time of the delicate adjustment in the principality of Neuchâtel of the controversy regarding eternal damnation. In the course of the differences over the matter, an appeal was made to the Emperor, who thus pronounced judgment:
"In Neuchâtel, those who do not wish to believe in eternal damnation, so be it. Those who wish to be eternally damned, let them eternally be damned." (Laughter.)

A spirit in which the United States captains of commerce and industry receive the amateur opinions of Mr. Morley was illustrated by Senator Depew when he said:
"If Mr. Morley is right and protection is the policy of eternal hell—then hell has been misrepresented—it is undoubtedly a prosperous and progressive sort of a place." (Applause and laughter.)

The King's Lost Claim.
Had he but preserved the life of a mining claim that was deeded to him about two years ago, His Majesty King Edward VII. would now be on a fair road to increase his private fortune by the addition of a considerable quantity of virgin gold taken fresh from the auriferous gravels of the Yukon, says The Yukon World.
It was on February 10, 1903, that Mr. Sparling, in a spirit of generosity and loyalty to his King, determined to deed to His Majesty the Eureka Creek claim, upon which the depth, breadth, extent and richness of the pay streak was yet to be ascertained. So a quit claim deed was made out wherein J. K. Sparling was nominated as the party of the first part and His Majesty King Edward VII. as the party of the second part. It was duly signed, sealed and acknowledged; $2 was paid for the recording of the same, though the regulations were violated in not demanding the date and number of His Majesty's license, and to-day the book of records for Eureka Creek shows the transaction to have been made in due form and in perfectly proper manner.
That is the last entry in the book. The work required by the regulations has not been performed, and the claim is open to relocation. In other words, any old sort of a man may jump His Majesty's ground, and he will have no more redress than the commonest, most itinerant of his subjects, and posterity might have forgotten the fact that their sovereign had at one time their neighbor had it not been for the persistent prospecting of those who own the adjoining land, which is very valuable.

RETURNS BY TELEPHONE.
Election Results Known This Year Earlier Than Ever Before.

There never was a presidential election when the people at large knew so well "how things were going" on election night and had positive information of the final results so early as this year. The reason was simply that the news was distributed more promptly and more widely than ever before, and this was made possible by the remarkable extension of the telephone system within even the last four years.

Heretofore he who wanted early information or found in watching the ebb and flow of the great tide of ballots exciting interest must go to the bulletin boards of the newspapers. This year, however, preparations were begun weeks in advance that every telephone subscriber in the Bell system might know the news, if he cared to, as soon as the national committee or the political editor. Special wires were reserved on the trunk lines of the long distance service connecting the large cities which were made distributing points from which the word was carried on to town and village and farmhouse wherever the "speaking wire" ran.

There is always heavy pressure on the telephone wires on election night anyway. Politicians and committee-men, who nowadays make extensive use of the telephone in campaigning, keep in touch with all the strategic points "along the line," getting early and frequent reports from doubtful districts and sometimes issuing their "statements" and comments on the results by means of it. Special arrangements were made for President Roosevelt and Judge Parker to get the news by wire, and in almost every state in the Union similar facilities were furnished for governors, congressmen and party managers.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Cooks.
Feeding the German emperor is no light task. Despite all that is said about the kaiser's Spartan habits there are few monarchs who keep more elaborate tables. He has four chefs—Schliffenstucker, a German; Harding, an Englishman; an Italian and a Frenchman—so that he can have his meals for the day served in the style of whatever nation he may happen to fancy. Each of these chefs has his staff of assistants, while in addition there is an individual who may safely be described as "sausage maker to the kaiser." His majesty is very fond of the huge white frankfurter sausage, and has a supply of them made fresh every day in his own kitchen. When engaged in maneuvering his army on a big field day these frankfurters and bread, washed down with lager beer, invariably form the kaiser's luncheon. In addition to all these cooks there is a special staff to prepare meals for the younger of the princes and the princesses, who are not allowed to partake of the rich dishes the elder members of the family indulge in.—Stray Stories.

Napoleon's Hats.
The seven authentic Napoleonic hats now in existence are all of different dimensions. Prince Victor Napoleon, Prince Louis Napoleon and the Empress Eugénie each have one. A fourth is owned by Armand Dumarescu, a Parisian painter. Another figure in Mme. Tussaud's museum in London beside the guillotine which served to decapitate Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette. The sixth hat of Napoleon was once the property of Meissonier, the military painter, and, after having served as the model in all of that artist's pictures of the emperor, was given by Charles Meissonier, the painter's son, to the Museum of the Army at the Invalides, where Napoleon was buried. The seventh hat of Napoleon is that which he wore at Waterloo, and which is now going to the Conde museum at Chantilly, the magnificent castle and domain left by the late Duc d'Angoulême, lineal descendant of Conde, to the Institute of France as a national monument to commemorate his illustrious ancestor.—New York Tribune.

The Telephone Ear.
A peculiar development of the sense of hearing has been discovered as being the result of the use of the telephone. Most people when using the instrument hold the receiver to the left ear because it comes more natural to adjust the mouthpiece with the right hand. So it happens that from an extensive use of the telephone the hearing of the left ear is sharpened at the expense of the right. In the majority of cases the difference between the two is not very great, but in some persons it is alarmingly so. The sensitive nerves are so irritated by the sound coming directly on them and in a tone which is strange that it sets up a reaction which has a cumulative effect and upsets them.

Typewritten Treaty of Peace.
Probably the first treaty of peace to be typewritten is the South African peace document. The signatures of the Boer leaders form an interesting part of it. They are all in different styles. Louis Botha's is described as being in a fine hand, and, though the others are somewhat rougher, Delarey's is the roughest of all. He has spelled his name split into three syllables, De la Rey. Christian De Wet is also spelled with a small "d."

The Future of the South.
"If cotton brings about 10 cents for the next ten years," said a thoughtful business man in North Carolina the other day, "the south will again become, as it was before the war, the most prosperous section of our country. I know of no industry in the world which will yield larger returns in proportion to the capital and the intelligence required than cotton growing at 10 cents per pound."—World's Work.
