WATER IN YOUR BLOOD?

Lots of people have thin watery blood—they eat plenty but don't digest. When digestion is poor, food is not converted into nourishment—in consequence the body rapidly loses strength. To positively renew health, nothing equals Ferrozone. It excites sharp appetite—makes the stomach digest, forms life sustaining blood. Abundant strength is sure to follow. If you need more vitality, extra energy, better nerves, then use Ferrozone the medical triumph of the age. Fifty cents buys a box of fifty chocolate coated Ferrozone Tablets.

The Country Editor.

He is the hardest, worked of men,
A busy chap is he;
He wields the hatchet or the pen
With great facility.
He chronicles that "Bessie Brown
Has married William Goode,"
Then to the woodpile hustles down
And splits a lot of wood.
He writes two columns of advice
To cure the people's ills.
Then dons his apron in a trice
And prints a hundred bills;
And if some callers then there are,
His ink hands he'll wash,
And trade a year's subscription for
A "porkin'" or a squash.
He states "Hi Higgins is in town
Upon a load of rye!"
Then takes the upper cases down
And fixes up the "pi."
And when the "pi" is straightened out
The furniture he dusts—
Then sets a stick or two about
The tariff and the trusts.
His paper cheers us every week—
It does what'er it can
To keep the slush of Freedom's peak
And save the rights of man.
So come ye freeman of this land,
And let's be thankful for
This bulwark of the nation,

The Opening Of The Hanover Church.

In the lull after the storms of last week the Hanover Presbyterian church was duly dedicated to the worship of God. The overflowing congregations that assembled morning, afternoon and evening, showed not a trace of the war of the elements, though parts of the programme had to be modified. As announced a week ago the honor of the opening was to be given to the Rev. Dr. Stewart of Clinton. On Saturday Mr Budge duly started for Clinton expecting to meet Dr Stewart by the way, but when he got to Stratford he found that the line to Clinton was blocked and that Dr Stewart was comfortable at his home. He hardly knew what to do, but after a fruitless attempt to find a man for the occasion in Stratford, he took the return train for Hanover getting in at two in the morning. A message from Walkerton informed him that Mr Wilson, who was to preach in the afternoon, was in bed sick, and so all the well laid plans were overturned. But "a good swordsman is never in want of a weapon" and so Mr Budge addressed himself to the work of preaching in the morning. Mr McLaughlin of the Methodist church, Hanover, was secured for the afternoon, and efforts was made to reach Durham for Mr Farquharson for the evening. Five times the telegraph wires ticked out the number for Durham, but Durham was not thus to be reached. After dinner a special messenger brought the summons but Mr Farquharson in turn hesitated to leave his evening service. The letter however contained the suggestion that the kindness of Mr N. W. Campbell could be relied on to see the evening meeting over. The suggestion was not in vain, and though with reluctance, Mr Campbell felt the claim of impertunity and consented. But how was Mr Farquharson to get to Hanover? It was half past five, service was at seven, and the road was not suited for fast driving. The fastest horse from Caldwell's livery was secured and Hanover people say that Mr Budge was never seen with a happier smile than when he recognized the man from Durham pushing his way to the pulpit at twenty minutes past seven just in time to fill his part of the programme. So the connections were made, and the Hanover people say all the preachers of the day were, notwithstanding the peculiar circumstances, at their best. All the services were well attended, but in the evening after every place for sitting or standing was filled many turned away unable to get in.

The Monday evening meeting was not less successful. A sumptuous tea was served by the ladies. The choir, swelled by representations from the other church choirs of the town were the admiration of all. Speeches were given by Rev. Farquharson, Bray, Leslie, McLaughlin Creusot and the venerable Mr Gardner, and the openings of the Hanover Presbyterian Church were over. The offerings were liberal, amounting to over five hundred dollars.

The new church is a neat building, proximately square with a basement containing coal furnace and Sunday School class rooms. The main auditorium is entered by a door at the south west corner and an inside stair, and by another door at the west side, the latter being the entrance to the choir, gallery and also to the vestry. The windows are gothic and filled with stained glass. On the west and south there is in the centre of each wall a large window with one of smaller dimensions at each side, while on the east there are three windows corresponding to the smaller ones on the west and south. On the upper part of each of the smaller windows is wrought a symbolic figure. On the east side there are the open Bible, a star and a crown. On the smaller windows to the west there are the dove with wings outspread and the Anchor hope's symbol, while on those to the south are a cluster of grapes and the burning bush.

The chief window is the large one to the south looking out on the main street. On the upper part of it there are reproduced all the symbols appearing on the other sides and in the centre below is a figure of the Good Shepherd, with his crook. He bears a lamb in his bosom and the sheep stand by his side.

On a series of scrolls held in the stalk of a lily like flower there is to the left the text: "I am the Good Shepherd," while on similarly supported scrolls to the right there is the corresponding text: "He giveth his life for the sheep." Below reads the touching inscription: "In loving memory of Nellie Mearns by her father and mother." This beautiful window was the magnificent gift of Dr. and Mrs Mearns and not only commemorates their own dear daughter, but presents the Good Shepherd who alone can soothe the cares and heal the wounds of all the sorrowing children of men.

The pews are of the Dundas make with gothic ends in quarter oak. The choir occupy a gallery below the pulpit seated with opera chairs, and fronted with a wooden railing. The pulpit is of quarter cut oak with arches in front and in the sides, the book board being made adjustable to the height of the speaker. Altogether Mr Budge and the Hanover congregation are to be congratulated on the comfortable and beautiful building they have erected.—Com.
