Pretty Sees
with Many Eyes.

"My face is my fortune," said the pretty maid in the old English ballads. She had proper appreciation of the value of a face in the matrimonial market. Eyes make or mar a face, the other features be ever so comely, a pair of weak red, inflamed or itching eyes will spoil all beauty. Properly adjusted eyes will cure most of these troubles. Our qualifications and equipment for eye examination are the most thorough and modern, our choice of lenses and taste for fitting is unexcelled.

SHORT Wood for Sale.—Apply to James Marshall, Middaugh House.—tf

WERE it not for a few green badges worn by the boys, St. Patrick's Day in Durham might have passed unnoticed.

CUSTOM SAWING.—Robert Smith has purchased a portable mill, and is prepared to do custom sawing at the Durham Foundry.

THE Harrison Tribune is about the only paper on our exchange list that is ready to swallow the North-West Antonomy Bill in its entirety.

FOR SALE.—A splendid draught filly, rising three years, or a fine mare five years old, in foal. Apply to Geo. Ritchie, Edge Hill.

OUR CORNER CONCERNS correspondent stated recently that Mrs. Dennet had rented her farm. This turns out to be an error, though she would like to rent with the privilege of staying on the farm for another year.

MARKDALE council has voted an appropriation of $150 for salaries of reeve and councilmen, $25 for each councilman, and $50 for reeve. The Standard says the action is causing more or less adverse criticism.

WE notice by the Toronto papers that Rev. Mr. Boone, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Colin McDougall, has resigned his charge as pastor of the Leamington Baptist church, to accept a pastorate in a Baptist church in Detroit.

WE regret to learn of the very serious illness, from pneumonia, of Mrs. Chas. Lawrence, of Hutton Hill. Mr. Lawrence himself is scarcely yet recovered from an attack of the same kind. Mrs. Lawrence was reported unconscious for four days, but a change for the better came Sunday, and we are pleased to learn she is on the mend.

OUR advertising patrons think we're hard when we refuse changes of advertisements later than Tuesday noon. Dunlark Herald says "copy for changes must be in not later than 6 p. m. on Mondays." The Herald is perfectly right in this, and since Monday is the busiest business day in Durham, there seems very little reason why they couldn't accommodate us by giving their changes at the same time.

In a letter to his mother, dated March 1st, Mr. R. J. Scott, of Great Bend, Saskatchewan, is loudly praising the western country. In part he says: "How are you for sleighing? Ours is all gone and we have beautiful warm weather. People were harrowing the last days of February. The country is still booming here. Last week there was a farm of 320 acres, with hardly any improvements, sold for $6000.00. The train is at Baltimore, 8 miles from here. The town lots of Goodrich were put on the market at $25 each."

THE Advertising Agencies have more cheek than a canal mule. We have just received an offer asking for six inches of set up matter every week, top of column next to reading matter and all the other conditions the Agency knows about to hold the printer down to hard pan. "do" him out of his space and have him turn out a paper that would one of a rag carpet on a sump fence. The magnificent offer of $9.00 net is what the generous Agency offers for the work for one whole year of fifty-two weeks, reserving to themselves, of course, the right to do any amount of kicking. Now, we need money bad enough, but it will be a long time before the pills take effect if the Agency waits for us to advertise at such rates, and on such conditions. We have up our circulation to about 1500 and we don't propose to throw away our space to build up the business of a pill factory.

FOR SALE.—A span of good young driving mares. Apply to George A. Watson, lots 5 and 6, con. 4, S. D. R., Glenelg.—3pd.

MR. HEFFERNAN, of Marden, sold a valuable carriage horse last week to Mr. Robert Kennell, of Dromore. This animal was a prize taker in his own class whenever shown, and is said to be a very valuable stock horse.

It doesn't seem as if operations in the building line were going to be exceedingly brisk during the coming summer. Prices of material and labor have gone up so high of late that many are putting off for the present. The days of cheap lumber in this part of the country are rapidly passing away, and building material is not likely to go down much in price. Though there is no pressing demand for houses, a number of cheap, comfortable houses would soon find tenants.

LITTLE WILLIE WESTINGHOUSE

Talks about the Hired Girl, and how his pa did the washing on Wash Day.

The last time I wrote you, my pa had just got out of a bad scrape down cellar, and we all thought he was hurt but he said he wasn't, and if he was going down again he'd do it exactly the same way. Now I hate to hear my pa lie like this, cause my ma and our hired girl can do enough for all of us, telling about the big washings they had put out so quick, and how many young men they had on the string, and stuff like this. Pa says that ma was uglier looking than a last year's bird's nest, when he got her twenty years ago, and if she'd get a hoe and take off some of the powder, paint and dirt he'd be darned if he thought she'd changed much. According to pa our hired girl and ma must have looked a lot alike, but I don't want you to tell ma or she'd dust my hip pocket for me, but it is a fact. When our hired girl laughs you couldn't tell whether you were looking in the front end of a threshing machine, or getting a back view of a Kansas cyclone going thru Missouri, and if you watch close you can count how many pancakes she ate for breakfast. Our girl is a warm member, all right, all right, but she can't pull worth a cent with pa, and one morning pa said he was tired of paying out his hard-earned cash for hired girls who couldn't boil water without burning it, and as he wasn't busy, he'd run the kitchen department himself. Ma didn't say anything, but looked kind of scared, and the hired girl borrowed a Sweet Caporal cigarette box that I wasn't using, packed up her clothes, and moved out. Pa said the first thing on the program was the washing, and he was going to do it up quick and show the women that they didn't know it all,—no sir, not by a jug full. He yanked at the tub, but it caught on the corner of our summer cookstove, the handle came off, and pa landed on the dog, as usual, and the dog tried to get away and pa went over backwards and struck his head on the table, and swore he was shot. Just about this time, a can of preserves the hired girl had left on the table, got overbalanced, and hit pa on the head and whiskers, and from the color I guess pa thought it was blood and swore by the great horn spoon we had tried to murder him, and then the dog came back and saw the raspberries on the floor, and thought they were put there especially for him, for he started in to fill up. I guess pa didn't like his company, for he made a couple of passes at him and missed and then got up and made a kick at him, but the dog was too quick for him, and pa hit the old stove with his shin, and we had a circus. Pa said the dog bit him, and if the long-haired, curly-tailed son of a sea cook came on the premises again he'd shoot him. Pa was holding his shin, doing a frog dance and quoting Shakespeare all at the same time, but if Shakespeare had heard him I don't think he'd have recognized himself. Pa had put the water on to heat before he started, and about this time he got dizzy, or something, and bumping against the stove, he knocked a leg out of it, and spilt the water all over himself. The water was pretty hot, I can tell you, and pa got all he wanted I guess, for he hollered and cussed, said the Fenians were after him, and started on a dead run for the stairs, tripped on our best mat, and took a kind of loop the loop dive, and landed on his fifth vest button on the washtub. Pa started to sweat, and I knew he was getting mad, but I suppose he had no wind, or couldn't think of anything good to say, for he lay on the tub as nicely as he lies in bed on a cold winter's morning while me or ma gets up and starts the fire. He didn't do a thing but puff and look at the dog, and the dog knew what was up and didn't feel a bit scared. Pa looked too funny for anything with his whiskers full of raspberries and soap suds, and I had to go out behind the barn and laugh. But then I felt sorry for pa, as he is pretty good to me—far better than ma is. Why, last 12th of July, he gave me a whole cent, and told me to go out and have a good time, stay out all day if I wanted to, buy any darn thing I wanted to, and he would never ask me what I had squandered my money for, because it was the 12th of July, and boys will be boys, so let her flicker, Willie, have a good time, for there's lots more where that come from. Jimminy crickets! but my pa's generous on the 12th of July, ain't he? Yours, WILLIE.
