Does the town of Durham, with all its enterprise, its great Cement mill, flourishing Separator works. and its once splendid furniture factory never think that there is one addition that would add more to the comfort, contentment and happiness of a greater number of people than all these industries together, and that is an elevator and better yard accommodation. It is a disgrace to the town to have so inconvenient a place to unload stock or grain.

We have been in holts with the Gander and have slain him, extracted the oil, and bottled and labelled it "Ganderine." Should the Goat require any to rup his rheumatic joints | just apply to the Darkey Corner Crow, who was last seen making a [2] nest out of cement.

The complaint that the country is flooded with foreign pedlars is by no means a new one, but the number who are at the business is increasing through the icflux of a foreign population that is of no value to the country. They are largely Russian Jews who have come to America to escape persecution and military ser vice; others being Assyrians who are here from a similar reason The county council by law which has fixed the license fee up to a point just inside of being prohibitive, provides for a substantial reward for securing conviction of unlicensed pedlars, does not appear to be worked to the limit, and so long as the general public will take chances in dealing with these wandering characters, there is little use of attempting to suppress the nuisance unless a speific official is paid to give the matter his undivided attention. But while the pedlar is a nuisance he has his counterpart in the junk gatherers who are multiplying too rapidly for honest employment. A Sydenham resident gives an instance that has doubtless been repeated dozens of times in this vicinity. While in town on Tuesday one of these gentry called at his house and gathering up several pairs of old rubbers paid the little daughter of the household the magnificent (?) sum of two cents There was a pair of her father's good rubbers near and the little giri laid them aside. She protested that two cents was too little and the sum was doubled, but when the lather reached home it was found that the good rubbers had gone also. Neighbors tell of sim lar depredations, and it is now scarcely safe to leave a small article outside the doors. If the pedlars need to be licensed, the junk
