CUSTOM SAWING.—Robert Smith has purchased a portable mill, and is prepared to do custom sawing at the Durham Foundry.

DOES anybody know the whereabouts of Mr. Neil McGillivray, recently of 23 Ontario St., Toronto? The CHRONICLE to this address has been re-directed to Owen Sound and remains uncalled for. We would like to find out where he is.

THE Grit papers throughout the province are making considerable kicking over the removal of some of the former Ontario Government officials. There may be some instances where changes are not called for, but may be considered unjustifiable, and their long term of office and their extremely offensive partisanship is quite sufficient in many cases to unseat the pompous little roosters who have held sway so long.

THE B. Y. P. U. gave a social in the Baptist church Tuesday night. Although the attendance was small nevertheless a pleasant evening was spent in solos, duets, choruses, readings and recitations. At the close of the program ice cream and cake were served. Mr. Bell was the chairman and everything went off right. The following took part: Mrs. Newton, Miss A. McKenzie, Miss Clara Siegner, Miss Dora Burnett, Miss Ada Browne, Miss Rita McComb, Miss Lily Walker, Miss B. Browne, Miss Aggie Cameron, Mr. F. Search and Mr. A. Bell.

AFTER spending six weeks with the Goodison people, of Sarnia, Mr. David Smith returned on Saturday night. David is an inventor, and recently secured a patent for a new straw cutter, to be attached to the rear of ordinary threshers. The Goodison people make "blowers," and Mr. Smith arranged with them for the manufacture of his new device, one of which he made and had thoroughly tested while in Sarnia. The contrivance works well, and is likely to meet with good sale. This, with the blowing attachments, will save the trouble of straw cutting, and enable farmers to store their fodder in the smallest possible space.

THE boys are in trouble again. We haven't heard the names of any of them, but a gang it seems have been giving annoyance to Mr. Jas. Falkingham, who has them up before the bench. The case is to be heard in the Town Hall, this Wednesday evening after we go to press. We stand for law and order, but at this stage we have nothing to say, as we might have a tendency to prejudice the result of the investigation. Some of our boys who were punished on previous occasions have been benefited by the lesson, and the improvement in their conduct since has often been commented on. A boy's apparent enemy is sometimes his best friend, and if he ever gets old enough to have sense he will look back with gratitude on the individual who checked him in his foolish career.

THE Firemen's Concert to-night, Thursday, May 4th, is one for which we must bespeak a very liberal patronage. The boys have always been ready to respond to the call of the fire bell, and those who have watched them in the discharge of their duty, know full well their willingness to hazard life and limb, to save property. We feel proud of their achievements in the past, and all the more do we admire them, because they are not a paid institution. All who have a particle of loyalty to a volunteer, self-sacrificing, home organization, should make an effort to help the boys along and do so by their presence to-night, in filling the hall to overflowing. No citizen is sure that he may not be the next to need the firemen's assistance, and we can only imagine how small a person should feel, who puts the slightest obstacle in the way of their

THE Durham Manufacturing Company presents a veritable hive of industry, over forty men are busy engaged on Oxford Cream Separators.

QUARTERLY meeting services will be held in the Methodist church on Sabbath next. The hour of worship in the morning will be 10:30, and at the close the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered.

WORK is going on clearing up the debris at the furniture factory, and a gang is engaged laying a foundation for one of the new buildings. A few weeks will make quite a change. The greater portion of the old machinery has gone to the scrap heap, to be made use of in Smith's foundry.

IN the report of the result of the examinations at Queen's University, published in the Kingston papers last week, we were glad to see that Miss Lizzie Scott succeeded in passing with credit the examination in Junior Mathematics, and that Mr. N. W. Campbell secured first-class honor standing in Philosophy, Mediaeval and English Constitutional History. These are the first who have written at the newly opened centre at Durham. We congratulate them on their success, and trust they may have many worthy followers, whose names shall bring honor to our town.

ON Sunday, Rev. Mr. Farquharson discussed the question of the Lord's Day from the text "How much, then, is a man better than a sheep?" After showing that man's superiority to the sheep demanded a rest suited to his exalted nature, he proceeded to urge the need of an earnest and enlightened public sentiment as the chief bulwark from the human side of the rights of the toiler. He vigorously scored the idle sentiment that will talk on the street, but give no real substantial support to any movement to help. "There are none of you" he said, "who look at your fellows going out on Sunday with their everyday apparel doomed to a bondage more galling than that made by the pit into which the sheep fell, but feel a touch of pity in your hearts. Necessary as some of the work may be, you cannot but pity the men who are deprived the society of home, and the privilege of the sanctuary, to attend to the ever devouring furnace, and the ever turning wheels. Yet how much does your sympathy count? How much of your own pleasure are you foregoing to give those depending on you the day of rest? How many do the demands of society in city and country keep on duty to minister to the wants of company that are entertained on the Lord's Day? How many indolently put off consultation with the physician till the Lord's Day, and then find it convenient to call in on the way to church, at the very time the physician who holds himself in readiness to attend to you by day or by night needs repealing for his own spirit in the services of the sanctuary? How many have enough of real interest to turn out when there is a meeting of the Lord's Day Alliance, and its representative comes all the way to present the subject for your consideration? Rest assured your influences will be measured not by the talk you do at the wrong of others, but by the sacrifices you are personally willing to make. If you must have your own conveniences met as you find them press on you, do not suppose your words will ever influence others to turn from a course which you yourself practise while you condemn it. If you have not interest enough in the movement to come out and help to give weight to the movement by your presence, do not be surprised if the powers that would invade our Sabbath nights count you on their side, on the principle that those not against us are for us. If, at an election contest, a candidate came to meeting after meeting and found but a few of his supporters present, would you be surprised if he resigned in utter disgust? Yet there are those, who in this great subject, do all they can by their absence, to weaken the bands of their leaders who would cry out in holy horror if these leaders followed their example and did nothing. These

SOME people don't seem to understand us when we say we will not publish obituary poetry only at the advertising rate of ten cents a line. No matter how good or how bad it may be we'll refuse it if unaccompanied with the cash. We'll treat all alike without intentional offence. Obituary poetry is poetry about dead people.

THE loose way in which some of the Toronto hotels have been conducted must cease under the new order of things. The Globe says: "The Toronto Board of License Commissioners seem to have begun their work in a manner which will secure the hearty endorsement of the vast majority of citizens." Three hotels have been ordered to be closed out and three others must change owners or also close. Besides this, fourteen others have been given time for repentance. The three hotels to whom licenses were refused, are allowed from one to three months to sell out their stock. The houses, licensed only on probation, have, in some cases, to make repairs satisfactory to the Board, when the extension of their licenses will be again considered by the commissioners. The Globe says further: "In the general statement which the commissioners have issued, they refer to the fact that out of 150 or so hotel licenses issued, at least 100 do not comply with the law regulating hotels and are in reality only drinking resorts. In so far as the commissioners desire to close up the mere drinking places, their views seem to be shared by hotel men as well as by temperance workers."

THE laxity of manner in which hotel men themselves observe the law, has long, in our opinion, been the source from which springs the great bulk of temperance agitation, and we further state, as we have often stated, that our present license system, properly enforced, is not a bad law after all. Let the License Commissioners, the License Inspectors, and the hotel men unite in doing their duty, and the agitation of temperance workers will be rapidly reduced.

Means your trouble is deep seated. To delay is dangerous. All the inflammation will be drawn out in one day by applying Nerviline.
