CRIME THE RESULT OF NEGLECT.

"Sometimes a great deal of surprise is shown when a child goes astray and commits some overt act that brings him under the attraction of the police officials," writes Mr. J. J. Kelso, "but just as the blossom of a plant takes months of culture to develop; so the crime committed by a child is usually the outcome of long-continued neglect. In nearly every case where children have shown a decided tendency toward crime there has been a steady growth of hurtful character going on for years. Absence of religious or moral training, late hours on the street, truancy from school, bad companionship, are some of that tend to produce criminality in a child."

Such is Life.

The editor of The Holdenville (Ind. T.) Tribune has evidently walked along the "rose strewn" pathway of the country newspaper editor, and he expresses his gratification as follows: "How'd you like to be an editor, and in the sanctum roost, and skim through old exchanges and write for Jones a boost; and give Young Sport a calling down. Old Skads a ripping up, describe Miss Dash's new silk gown and praise Bill Syke's bull pup? To take in three-odd dollars and pay out sixteen more, to scheme to make two dollars do the work of more than four; to clip and paste, and sweat and swear, and in your pants big holes to wear; to cuss your luck and write hot stuff, be slow to anger, quick to bluff, dun old subscribers, ne'er get blue, go chase up news at 7.02. I think it just lovely, and so, no doubt, do you?"

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

COUNCILLOR MORAN and S. F. Morlock are having water pipes connected with their residences on Lambton street.

MRS. WARMINGTON while scrubbing got a needle under her finger nail, a few days ago. Dr. Gun removed the broken piece and she is all right again.

The inside of the furniture factory begins to look like business again. Many pieces of furniture are in the finishing room and will soon be ready for shipping. A full staff will soon be at work. Mr. Catton is busy day and night getting out a full line of new designs. In this respect there will be a complete change in the output. We wish them every success.

Now is the time to subscribe for your next years papers. We offer to new subscribers THE CHRONICLE to the 1st of January 1907 for $1.00. By arrangement of the General Assembly, next Sabbath is to be observed as Children's Day in the Presbyterian Church. In the morning there will be a sermon for the children with appropriate music and in the afternoon the Assembly's Children Service will be used and short addresses given. Children from town and country are asked to meet in the basement five minutes before eleven in the morning. It is designed to make the day a rally for both old and young. "What touches the child never fails to reach the parents heart."

The Big Durham Fair is in progress as we go to press to-day, Wednesday. To-morrow is, of course the big day, and as none of the prizes have yet been awarded we are unable to give them this week. To hold the paper over till Friday would throw it two days behind the usual time and even then there would be little chance of giving a full account. The report will keep till next week. Prize takers themselves will know the results and it will do their friends no harm to wait.

ARCHIE McNEE, President of the Canadian Press Association, while on the annual outing of the above organization, related the following story: "Two of his Scotch friends, Sandy and Donald came to town one day, and after attending to their personal business, prior to leaving for home, Sandy invited Donald to have a drink of pure hot Scotch. Sandy being of a religious turn of mind and believing sincerely that whether we eat or drink, we should do so to the glory of the Great Father, closed his eyes and fervently asked the Lord's blessing on the whiskey—but when he turned to appropriate the cup of blessing, he found it empty, and Donald saluted him thus: Sandy the good book tells us to both watch and pray, and you have been negligent in your duty."

We have just added a new job press to our plant, and beg to announce that we are in a better position than ever to give prompt service. Try us with your next job.

GRAND CONCERT in the Town Hall, show night 21st. Mr. F. Slater Davidson, of Detroit, Concert Baritone; Miss Lillian Clark, Guelph, Elocutionist; Dr. Browne, Holstein, and other talented vocalists, will present a first class programme. EIGHT of the young people of the Methodist Church League started out for Waiterton Tuesday afternoon, to hear Revs. Crossley and Hunter. On reaching Hanover they pulled up at one of the hotels to let a shower go by. Whether they managed to keep "dry" or not, we don't know, but they never struck Waiterton.

THE sidewalk is completed between Lambton Street Bridge and the Middaugh House, and the railing is being put on. This reminds us that there are some other places where the sidewalks are so high that protection of some kind is needed. The Town Council should see to it before accidents occur one of these dark nights when the lights go out. The cost of an accident would build quite a stretch of wire fence.

Here is a literary curiosity: "Sat- or arepo tenet opera rotas." It is curious because it spells the same word backward as forward. The first letter of each word placed consecutively spells the first word, the second letter of each spells the second word, and so on. The last letters read backward spell the last word, street.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

A man wishes for sons, but he gets his happiness out of daughters.

All a man has to have never to become a great man is a sense of humor.

The only thing that makes a woman madder than to say her best friend is not good looking, is to say that she is.—New York Press.

hair food. It feeds, nourishes. The hair stops falling, grows long and heavy, and all dandruff disappears.

"My hair was coming out terribly. I was almost afraid to comb it. But Ayer's Hair Vigor promptly stopped the falling, and also restored the natural color."

Poor Hair

Keep the Faker Out.

The experience of past years is likely sufficient to warn the Directorate of the Fair to keep away the Fakers. We have seen more than once in this town the fakers and the fools grouped in one bunch the fool trying to beat the faker at his own game. A year or two ago a visitor living not many miles away had his pocket lightened and it is quite likely he remembers the lesson. The fakers are no fools no matter how foolishly they act, and knowing the weakness of human nature amongst the young "smarties," somebody must protect them, and those best in position to do so now are the Directors of the Society. Keep the faker out.

THE PEPPERS.

An Opinion on the White, the Black and the Snappy Cayenne.

The so called white pepper is an abomination. Give me the old fashioned black pepper of our daddies. It has both flavor and odor and is most appetizing, while the white is nauseating. For real snap and go give me cayenne. None of your paprika! Did you ever sift pepper in your soup and notice its peculiar behavior? The black kind concentrates, all the particles rushing to a common center. The red settles, as if each grain were at enmity with every other. Try the experiment. It means probably that black pepper is astringent, while red is laxative. The people of the tropics consume large quantities of cayenne and are not accustomed to dyspepsia. I never heard of one suffering from impaired or imperfect digestion.

Let us approach these things understandingly. The medical term for black pepper is "piper," and this same piper is regarded as a stomachic. A stomachic is a stimulant for the stomach. Red, or cayenne, pepper is "capsicum" and is an irritant as well as a stomachic. If a person afflicted with cholera morbus takes thirty drops of the tincture of capsicum in water the entire alimentary tract will immediately be congested, which should prove that red pepper is not a laxative. And this looks like a contradiction.

THE SMOKER'S PARADISE.

A Continual Use of Tobacco in the Rule in Holland.

Holland is the smoker's paradise. Not only is the climate one which almost compels indulgence in tobacco, but the fragrant leaf may be had in abundance and at small cost.

The humidity of the climate leads naturally to continual smoking, and so common is the habit that instead of measuring distances by miles it is customary for the boatmen to declare a place to be so many pipes distant.

On entering the house of a friend a cigar is offered you, the host sees that you are kept well supplied during your visit, and a fresh cigar upon leaving is as necessary as a hat. Old friends are not permitted to depart until their cases have been refilled, and the necessity for this becomes apparent when it is known that a smoker usually lights his fresh cigar from the stump of the previous one, keeping one in his mouth continually.

Pipe smokers are equally devoted to their habit, taking their pipe to bed with them and only laying it down when they become sleepy. Should they awake during the night they indulge in a short smoke before going to sleep again, and they always light their pipes before getting out of bed in the morning.

Gain and Loss.

He—You women are queer. For instance, a girl cries when she's getting married, as if she were losing a husband instead of getting one. She—Yes, but she's losing a lover.

Nothing Ventured.

Ada—Timid, isn't he? May—Awfully. He's so afraid that she'll say no that he won't give her a chance to say yes.

Love of our neighbor is the only door out of the dungeon of self.—MacDonald.
