ALL Persons having claims against the late James M. Hunter are requested to send them in to Mrs. Hunter, who is anxious to settle everything once.

TO RENT.—A desirable property Upper Town, Durham, cottage and stable on the premises. Apply to Mary McIntosh, Durham, P. O., or McDougall, Mulock, P. O.—3p.

OUR last issue contained a mathematical problem. This week we would like to have the opinion of our readers on the following:—"The difference between an old maid and a married woman." As a starter, we will say that "one makes some man happy for life and the other doesn't." Which is it?

ON the 2nd of November the last G. Women's Institute meeting for the year was held at the home of Mrs. W. Matthews. Both topics were well treated and all questions in Question-DRAWER were fully discussed. At this a letter of condolence was read. Mrs. A. Picken on the loss of her mother, Mrs. Grady, who died a short time ago. Singing of the National Anthem brought one of the most interesting meetings of the year to a close.

THE town is about to have a new dust-draw and ere long may be called for a loan. Mr. Charter Smith, if gets proper support, intends to enlarge his business here and go into the manufacture of school desks, gasoline engines and threshing machines. To be in the enterprise he wishes to get a loan from the town, and we presume a certain amount of tax exemption. This has been done in other cases of the precedent whether good or bad already established. With regard to Mr. Smith, we must say he is an honorable deserving gentleman, and has always been willing to assist every enterprise for the town's benefit. The scheme he has in mind will be fully formulated and the ratepay will be honestly advised of the nature of his plans and what he proposes to do. He has already started in gasoline engine business, and in course of a short time the first engine of the kind ever made in Durham will be in operation at the works here. He has secured the services of an expert gas engine man in the person of Geo. M. Henderson, Member of Institute of Mechanical Engineers when his plans are properly matured. Mr. Smith will give employment twenty or thirty skilled workmen whole year round. The distribution of two or three hundred dollars a year in wages alone is a strong inducement for the town to give assistance to industry. Until the matter is brot before the public more fully we have but little to say.

Death of Mr. J. M. Hunter.

Durham loses one of its estimable citizens in the person of Mr. J. M. Hunter, who passed away on Tuesday forenoon at the age of about seventy years. The deceased was born in the County of Armagh, Ireland, and came to Canada when a boy. He attended the London Academy where he received his education, and subsequently came to Durham where he has been a resident for nearly forty years. He was always of a retiring disposition, a man who loved his home, and a kind, indulgent husband and father. Mrs. J. E. Smith, his only child, was present at his deathbed and will take the body to her home in Brandon for interment, leaving here this (Thursday) afternoon. After the severe trial through which Mrs. Hunter has passed during her husband's illness, she is scarcely able to go West just now, but intends doing so in the course of a few weeks. We extend our sympathy to the mourning widow and daughter.

DIED

KINNEE.—In Calgary, Oct. 20th, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson H. Kinnee, aged 16 months lacking 3 days.

HUNTER.—In Durham, on Tuesday, October 31st, James M. Hunter, aged about seventy years.

THE STANDING SUPPER.

As Jolly as a Picnic and Much More Comfortable.

The standing supper is the proper social function nowadays for families whose hospitality surpasses their conveniences for formal entertainment or for those who cry out for a relief from set conventionality.

The big table is moved out of the dining room or is made smaller and pushed up at one end against the wall. On it are arranged plates and cups and saucers and spoons and glasses and a hundred and one things. Every room in the house has been levied upon for chairs until the room is almost filled with them and with stools and floor cushions.

Everybody comes in and drops down anywhere, three or four favored souls helping the hostess and the maids to dispense napkins and plates—"the foundations of the feast," as somebody called them.

LAMP SHADES.

How Some Very Pretty Ones May Be Made at Home.

Grass cloth shades are very pretty and are easily made at home. They are plated every inch and put on to a wire frame. A design, stenciled or painted on them, is an improvement if you have the artistic ability to decorate them. They are pretty made of cream color, which allows the light to come through. An attractive shade is made of Japanese bronze colored silk, with a small design running all over it. When lit up it looks like old Damascus brass. A little yellow shade on a small lamp might have a piece of lace just the width of the shade pulled slightly at the top, having no fullness at the bottom.

You need not throw away your old shades. After ripping the paper off you paste Japanese figured silk in place of the paper and they look very different. A very pretty one can be made of the raw silk. If a heavy green is selected this would only do for a reading lamp. It should be lined with an extra shade of soft paper, which comes for this purpose. This would serve to throw the light on to the table. This paper should be treated with a solution of silicium of soda to prevent its catching fire. The cretonnes and glazed chintzes are also very effective.

THE THANKSGIVING HUNT.

One little bunch of sports hid them to Dornoch, and the adventures they had would fill a large book. All day they hunted, and large was their capture. Hare? Well, I should snicker. Not one wagon, but two or three, would be required to haul the fruits of that day's hunting to Durham town, and we believe it too, because—they told us so. And who would tell a fib over a hare or two.

Strolling along, over the hills, the party smied a huge monster of the gorilla type, basking in the sun on the opposite hillside.

"What the deuce is it?" asked one of the party.

Some said it was a moon, others a bear, while some one else suggested it might be a lion, hedge-hog, wolf, or coyote. Just then the timid man of the party suggested that the animal might be a Kentucky Owl, only that it had wings like a bat. His companions, never having seen an animal of the Kentucky type before, did not dispute the point, but decided to wait until the guide came up, when they felt sure they would be fully enlightened. Now, the guide was an old-timer who had hunted everything the forest could boast of, from beech nuts to crinkle root, and was an authority on almost any old thing. On his arrival, Frank was asked to give his opinion as to the name of the monster before them. Looking the beast over carefully, and with a kind of pitying expression on his face for the ignorance of his companions, he said in a voice of authority:

"I'll tell you, boys, that's what you call a flying porcupine, and it won't do to take any chances with him. The best thing to do is to throw a volley or two into him while he's asleep."

Not one or two, but seven volleys were belched forth. Still the monster lived.

"Aha!" said Frank at last, "Let me have a crack at him with my rifle."

The first shot went wild. In fact if the moon had been up, the chances are he'd have lost an eye. The next shot struck a rock about fifty feet from the man-eater, tore a corner off the stone and sent it crashing into its brain. Frank, the guide, was the hero of the hunt.

"The death struggles were something horrible," said one of the party. "One of the hounds rushed in and was literally torn to pieces, with the brute's eagle like claws."

The death struggle over, the party waded through the blood, hound hair, and dust, and, taking possession of their hard earned trophy, brought it to town to place it on exhibition at the Middaugh House.

The people of Dornoch may now rest easy, the children roam at will, for, thanks to the boldness and unerring aim of the hunters for whom Durham is noted, her forests are rid of a most savage, death-dealing monster in the shape of a POOR LITTLE HALF-STARVED CHIPMUNK. Poor little fellow. He died hard.

Edge Hill.

Mrs. Doyle of Toronto was the guest of her aunt Mrs. S. Edge for a few days recently.

Our Sunday School closed for the winter on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Edge and two daughters, Alice and Edith, visited friends in Egremont on Saturday.

Messrs. Geo. Moffat and Frank Godwin of Toronto, spent Thanksgiving day with the former's cousin Mr. C. H. Moffat.

Mr. Dan H. Firth is home from Markdale at present. His health has been slightly impaired by over work and the doctor has ordered a good rest.

Mr. Robt. Edge and his cousin, Mrs. Doyle, visited friends in Walkerton on the beginning of the week.

The members of Edge Hill fresh beef association held their meeting at the house of Mr. Robt. Ector on Friday night. This year's business was satisfactorily wound up and the ring organized for 1906, with the following officers: President, Dan Edge; Secretary, Geo. Ritchie; Ratcher, Thos. Turnbull; Inspectors, Archie Ector and Geo. Staples.

Mr. W. R. Edge had his windmill erected last week. It is a Star, manufactured in Indiana. The wheel is 13 feet in diameter but is only twenty-five feet from the ground. Mr. Edge intends to utilize it for driving machinery and for pumping purposes.

Last Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Greenwood and son Herb met with a very exciting experience. They were driving along the base line in a single buggy shortly after dark when Mr. John Colborn's dog suddenly dashed out and frightened the horse, causing it to turn off the road. The buggy was upset and the occupants precipitated to the ground in a rather unceremonious manner. Beyond a shaking up, none of them were very seriously injured, but the harness and buggy suffered slightly. They are to be congratulated on their escape from what might have been a very serious accident.

CAUSE FOR CONGRATULATION

The daughter of the house was pounding away at the piano like a human pile driver, and the faces of the assembled guests bore traces of acute mental anguish. Suddenly the "music" ceased, and the company, in order to remove all possibility of its resumption, burst into a salvo of applause. The proud and happy mother of the performer approached the guest of the evening, old Zwillbier, who was stamping his feet and clapping his hands like an unemployed cabman on a frosty morning.

"And what do you think of my daughter's execution, Herr Zwillbier?" she inquired, smiling sweetly upon the old gentleman.

"Your daughter's vot, madam?" he cried.

"Her execution," replied the somewhat astonished lady.

"Er execution!" shouted the professor; "er execution! Matam, I congratulate you! Ven vos 'ee to be? Ven vos 'ee coming off? I to be present will efery effort make!"

And in his excitement he shook his hostess violently by the hand and almost burst into tears.—Popular Magazine.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS.

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Months' Treatment by Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often the result of catarrh, Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once.

Miss Meeks of Mattewan, N. Y. says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful. I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was very offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists, and can truly say that six months of their treatment is not equal to one month of Hyomei."

A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler will last a lifetime and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expense with the fees charged by specialists.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid on receipt of price. Write to day for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

The terrible news comes from the Western part of the Cherokee nation that a boy climbed a cornstock to see how the corn was getting along, and now the corn is growing up faster than the boy can climb down. The boy is clear out of sight. Three men have undertaken to chop down the stalk and save the boy from starvation, but it grows so fast that they can't hack twice in the same place. The boy is living on raw corn, and has already throw down 400 bushels of cobs.—Checotah Times.

"How to Thrash Your Wife," says Labouchere, in "Truth" has not received in the Press the attention such an important subject deserves. Nothing is more certain to effect the tone of home life prejudicially than errors of judgment in administering correction to the wife or mother. It is so easy to beat your wife too much or too little, or to do it in the wrong way. The use of the poker is apt to lead to serious consequences. On the other hand, while a strap "stings abnormally," it is "never likely to lead to trouble with a coroner's jury." The chastisement of a wife is a delicate business, and should never be undertaken without care and deliberation. If it is bungled or overdone, and the police are called in the whole moral effect is lost.

WE want to give a little problem to our mathematical readers, and shall feel obliged for solutions, to be sent in or handed in at this office as early a date as possible. We have solved it and think our solution is correct but others differ. This is the problem:—"The town of Durham issued ten thousand dollars debentures bearing 4% interest, to be repaid principal and interest in ten equal annual payments, also the face of each debenture for each year and the interest thereon, the first debenture being payable in 1906.
