OUR last issue contained a mathe- matical problem. This week we would like to have the opinion of our readers on the following:—"The difference be- tween an old maid and a married wo- man." As a starter, we will say that "one makes some man happy for life, and the other doesn't." Which is it?

ON the 2nd of November the last S. G. Women's Institute meeting for this year was held at the home of Mrs. W. Matthews. Both topics were well treated and all questions in Question Drawer were fully discussed. After this a letter of condolence was read to Mrs. A. Picken on the loss of her mother, Mrs. Grasby, who died a short time ago. Singing of the National Anthem brought one of the most in- teresting meetings of the year to a close.

THE town is about to have a new in- dustry and ere long may be called on for a loan. Mr. Charter Smith, if he gets proper support, intends to enlarge his business here and go into the man- ufacture of school desks, gasoline en- gines and threshing machines. To aid in the enterprise he wishes to get a loan from the town, and, we presume, a certain amount of tax exemption. This has been done in other cases and the precedent whether good or bad is already established. With regard to Mr. Smith, we must say he is an hon- orable deserving gentleman, and he has always been willing to assist in every enterprise for the town's benefit. The scheme he has in mind will soon be honestly advised of the nature of his plans and what he purposes to do. He has already started in the gasoline engine business, and in the course of a short time the first engine of the kind ever made in Durham will be in operation at the works here. He has secured the services of an expert gas engine man in the person of Mr. Geo. M. Henderson, Member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers and when his plans are properly matured, Mr. Smith will give employment to twenty or thirty skilled workmen the whole year round. The distribution of two or three hundred dollars a week in wages alone is a strong inducement for the town to give assistance to such industry. Until the matter is brought before the public more fully we shall have but little to say.

IN our brief reference last week to the death of Mr. J. M. Hunter we might have added that he was a de- voted Methodist, a staunch Conserva- tive and a loyal Orangeman. The re- mains were taken to Brandon for in- terment. A short service was first held at the house, Rev. Colling officia- ting, after which the Orangemen took charge and conveyed the body to the station.

AN interesting letter from Mr. Cochrane appearing in this issue has been copied by permission from last week's issue of the Durham Review. It is so much to the point that we think our readers will be benefited by a perusal of it. Moreover, we are told by Mr. Cochrane that the letter was suggested by a hint we let fall in his hearing one evening.

REV. THOS. WILSON delivered for the second time in the Adelaide Street Baptist Church his illustrated lecture on "Dr. Paton's work among the Can- nibals of the South Sea" Thursday night. The church was filled and the audience, young and old, was spell bound for nearly an hour and a half, as he told this thrilling story. This was the twenty-third time that Mr. Wilson has given this lecture in Lon- don and the interest in it increases.—London Free Press. At the Presby- terian church on Monday, Nov. 13th.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath when the Rev. T. Wilson will preach both morning and evening. On Monday evening at 8 o'clock Rev. Mr. Wilson will give his lecture on "Thirty Years With the South Sea Cannibals," being an account of the work of Dr. John G. Paton in the South Seas. The lecture will be illus- trated by vivid pictures which are fit- ted to give a realistic impression of the scenes described. No admission fee will be charged but an offering will be presented at each service to be de- voted to the Manse fund.

THE Town Council met in regular session on Monday night last. The business consisted in passing the usual grist of accounts and making provision for the impounding of animals found at large in the streets of Dur- ham. It seems there is no pound this year, and all stray animals may now be taken to one of the hotel stables. The damage done lately has caused much righteous indignation on the part of those who suffered and it seems high time for the Council to be- stir themselves and have the Cattle by-law strictly enforced.

"SHAREHOLDER" in another column condemns the action of the Gas and Oil Company for making an assign- ment without consulting the share- holders. We advise all interested to attend the meeting and sift out the whole thing. There's something funny about the business.

A TRIAL took place last Wednesday before Police Magistrate Telford. It grew out of a fight that occurred in town on the 18th of October, the charge being laid by Chief Carson on behalf of the town. As one of the combatants is apparently very peni- tent and has indirectly requested us not to publish his name, we shall spare his feelings once more and withhold the names of both belliger- ents. The occurrence, however, is public property and there is no need for chicken-hearted leniency on our part. We are in no way obliged to keep the matter secret, nor do we feel we are doing our whole duty in concealing even part of the truth. In fact we think it would have a much better effect if the local press would give full particulars about all these scandalous brawls. The whole after- noon and evening were taken up with the trial. Much contradictory evi- dence was submitted and the whole thing seemed to be quite a muddle. The result was "a dollar and costs" for the minor offender who was never known to be quarrelsome till he licked the other fellow in self defence as he endeavored to show the court. The other offender was taxed "ten dollars and costs and bound over to the peace for one year." The Return of Con- victions will give the names of both and these returns will be published and posted throughout the whole county and destroy our efforts of con- cealment. We hope the punishment may have a salutary influence and be a warning to others who are anxious to scrap.

MARRIED.

MOUNTAIN—MCDONALD—At the Pres- byterian Manse, on Wednesday Nov. 8th, by Rev. Wm. Farquharson, Mr. W. Mountain to Miss May McDon- ald.

LETTER TO EDITOR.

Re Durham Gas and Oil Co., Limited.

MR. EDITOR,—

No doubt a large number of the many shareholders of this Company will be surprised to hear of the assign- ment as stated in your last issue of the Chronicle.

The Company surely can not be in much debt. Why were the sharehold- ers not consulted before such proced- ure? It is very questionable if this as- signment is legal under the circum- stances, and it is certainly not justice to the shareholders.

What have the officers done to col- lect the unpaid stock? There are sev- eral hundred dollars worth of new pipes on hand, and I understand many of them never used. Why were these pipes not sold?

What is the real object of this as- signment? The officers of this Com- pany certainly owe the shareholders an explanation. Is there one of the officials of this Company who would conduct his own business in such a manner?

No doubt the flowing well will be sold for what it will bring, and the Town Council should not allow this great well to fall into the hands of some private parties. The town should purchase it, for there is every indica- tion it will be sold at a very low figure.

SHAREHOLDER.

NO SCARCITY OF MARL YET.

Our cement plant is now on the verge of another huge advertising movement. For some reason un- known to us the Directors of the Com- pany, with the single exception of Mr. Gilbert McKechnie, are working up a cry that the marl supply is rapidly be- coming exhausted. They want to move the plant, and before doing so, the vote of the stockholders must be secured. The best way, of course, to get the stockholders to vote in favor of its removal is to impress upon them the idea that there is no material in sight, and this they are trying their best to do at the present moment.

Before it was decided to erect a mill here, a very exhaustive survey was made of Wilder's Lake and other lakes in the vicinity of Durham. The re- ports that came in were simply excel- lent, and sufficient marl to last for several generations was easily in sight. We believed the reports regarding the marl supply. We believed then that a properly constructed and honestly operated mill in the midst of such de- posits, must be a paying concern. We published every bit of information we could get hold of, and we did so sci- entifically and honestly, and more than that let us say right here that we did all our work without a cent of re- muneratation.

It is a well known fact that $250,000 of the capital stock was appropriated by the chief promoter, Mr. W. F. Cowham, and it is known also that this promotion appropriation was given out to minor lights in the promo- tion field for their assistance in push- ing the thing along. Not a cent did we get, though we have conceit enough to believe that The Chronicle had con- siderable influence in promoting the sale of the stock, and we furthermore believe now that if the editors of the local papers in Durham had been wise enough, and at the same time dis- honest enough, they could easily have held up the whole promotion outfit and retarded for a long time the erection of the mill here. The Editor of The Review may speak for himself but our honest belief is that he fared no better than we did. Of course we both man- aged to dispose of a few hundred pa- pers each when we had what the pro- moters considered a good catchy article on the cement business. Even here there was no effort made to get more than a job-work price for the goods we delivered.

We have now tried to establish the honesty of our utterances during the promotion, erection and manufactur- ing periods of the mill's existence, and we think there are very few who doubt that it is a paying concern if honestly handled. Last April when the mill started work the Company was faced by a debt of $127,000 over an eighth of a million of money. The proceeds of the summer's work were applied to the paying off of the huge burden and to- day only $30,000 of that debt remains unpaid. That means that $97,000 of the debt hanging over the Company in April last has since been paid by the profits from the mill. Besides this it must be remembered that a wage bill
