Ancient Manuscripts.

The manuscripts of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are in many cases almost illegible on account of the fading of the ink. At that time the lampblack inks passed out of use and chemical inks became popular.

A Delicate Mechanical Feat. An expert tool juggler in one of the great English needle factories in a test of skill performed one of the most delicate mechanical feats imaginable. He took a common sewing needle of medium size (length one and fiveeighths inches) and drilled a hole through its entire length from eye to point, the opening being just large enough to admit of the passage of a very fine hair.

The Weaver Bird.

The first clothmaker was the weaver bird, which, from threads and vegetable filaments, manufactures a fabric quite waterproof and of very dense structure.

Eyeless Worms.

Worms that have no eyes are believed to gain information of the presence of light from some other sense than that of sight. Light is always dangerous to an earthworm, and when taken from the earth and placed in the light a worm will always exhibit uneasiness and make an effort to conceal itself.

Coral Reefs.

The coral flowers, so called, are animals. A coral reef resembles a bed of anemones.

The Australian Sword.

The Australian sword found in use among the aborigines when that country was first decovered by Europeans was modeled after the sword grass which grows wild in that continent.

HOW TO MAKE DIAMONDS.

Description of Process-Sir William

Crookes Gives Laboratory Method. Sir William Crookes, in the course of a lecture on "Diamonds" before the British Association at Kimberley, explained to the assembled company how the precious gems might be manufac.

select pure iron free from sulphur, sili- and Amending Acts, that all persons con, phosphorus, etc., and to pack it in having claims against the estate of a carbon crucible with pure charcoal the said Eleanor Hutton, who died on from sugar." The crucible must then or about the first day of August A. D. be put into the body of the electric 1904, are required to send by post prefurnace. "After a few minutes heating paid or to deliver to J. P. Telford, to a temperature above 4,000 degrees C., Durham, Solicitor for the Adminisa temperature at which the iron melts trator on or before the like wax and volatilises in clouds, the current is stopped and the dazzling, flery crucible is plunged beneath the surface of cold water, where it is held till it sinks below a red heat.

"The sudden cooling solidifies the outer layer of iron and holds the inner molten mass in a tight grip. The expansion of the inner liquid on solidifying produces an enormous pressure, and under the stress of this pressure the dissolved carbon separates out in transparent forms - minutely microscopic, it is true-all the same veritable diamonds, with crystaline form and appearance, color, hardness and on light the same as the natural

Attention was called to the suggestion that the diamond is a gift from heaven conveyed to the earth in meteoric showers. According to this hypothesis, said the lecturer, holes were bored in the earth by the impact of monstrous meteors, the larger masses boring holes, while the smaller masses, disintegrating in their fall, distributed diamonds broadcast.

"Bizarre as such a theory is," observed the great scientist. "I am bound to say there are many circumstances which show that the notion of the heavens raining diamonds is not impossible." In proof of this he showed the audience photographs of diamonds he had extracted from a meteorite. The lecture abounded in interesting passages. Here is one: "It is not uncommon for a diamond to explode soon after it reaches the surface; some have been known to burst in the pockets of miners or when held in the warm hand, and the loss is the greater because large stones are more liable to explode or fly in pieces on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Satthan small ones.

"Valuable stones have been destroyed in this way, and it is whispered that cunning dealers are not averse to allowing responsible clients to handle or carry in their warm pockets large crystals fresh from the mine. By way of safeguard against explosion, some dealers imbed large diamonds in raw potato to insure safe transit to Eng-

By the end of 1904 ten tons of diamonds had come from the Kimberley mines, valued at £60,000,000 sterling. This mass of gems could be accommodated in a box five feet square and six feet high.

The Hanging Judge.

as "the hanging judge." "Ah, my Lord, the Oath of Allegiance. give me a long day," implored a prisoner on a certain 20th of June. "Your wish is granted," said Lord Norbury, with a leer; "I will give you until tomorrow, the longest day in the year." Counsellor O'Grady tells us that the only occasion on which Lord Norbury was known to weep was at a performance of the "Beggar's Opera," when a reprieve arrives for Capt. Macheath! Curran had a sly hit at this side of the judge's character one day at dinner. when the former was carrying a joint of corned beef. "Is that beef hung, Mr. Curran?" queried the Chief Justice. "Not yet, my Lord," was the reply "you have not tried it." Lord Avonmore was a judge who irritated Curran by continually anticipating his arguments. "Mr. Curran," he would say, "I know your cleverness, but it is quite in vain for you to go on. I see the drift of it all, and you are only giving yourself and me unnecessary trouble." One day. after being stopped in this manner, the counsellor said: "Perhaps, my Lord, I am straying, but I have just witnessed so dreadful a circumstance that my imagination has not yet recovered from the shock. On my way to court, my Lord, as I passed through one of the markets-" "Yes, I know, the Castle Market," struck in his Lordship. "Exactly, the Castle Market; and on passing one of the stalls I noticed a butcher proceeding to slaughter a calf. Just as his hand was raised, a lovely little girl came bounding along in all the sportive mirth of childhood, and, terrible to relate-I see the life-blood gushing out still-the butcher plunged his knife into-into-" "The bosom of the child." cried the judge with great emotion. "No, my Lord; it went right into the neck of the calf," replied Curran; "but your Lordship often anticipates."

A Queen Anne Mince Pie. Take a large cow's tongue; parboll it: to three pounds of tongue take five pounds of beef suet, cut the tengue in thin slices and shred it, but shred the suet by itself; when they are both pretty fine put in the suet by degrees, keep shredding them both together till they are as fine almost as flower, then put in three pounds of currans, being first clean washed, pick'd and dry'd; cloves, mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, beat very fine, of all together three-quarters of an ounce; half a pound of white sugar, a pound of dates ston'd and shred small, three ounces of green citron, three ounces of candied orange cut into small thin bits, the yellow rind of two raw lemons grated, three spoonfuls of Verjuice, a gill of Malaga sack, half a gill of rose water; these being well mingled, fill your pyes; have a care they do not stand too long in the oven to dry after they are just enough. -From a Cookbook of 1705.

Oldest of Premiers. With the exception of Lord Palmerston, who was over 70 when called to the position of Premier of Great Bri. tain, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman takes office later in life than any other of his predecessors. Sir Henry is 69. Mr. Balfour was 54 when he took up the reins of power from the hands of the late Lord Salisbury. Sir Henry, who is a son of the late Sir James Campbell and added the name of Bannerman under the will of a maternal uncle, is one of the oldest members of Parliament. He entered the House as long ago as 1868.
