THE PEOPLE OF DURHAM.

The citizens of Durham will assist Mr. Irwin of the Durham Chronicle to help bear the expense of the recent libel action reported in the Post. They recognize that the Chronicle was not fighting its own battles, but the battle of the town, and they very generously and properly came to his aid .- Hanover Post.

The people of Durham and shareholders in the Cement Co are raising the money by subscription to pay the $500 and costs the editor of the Chronicle was mulcted as a re ult of the libel suit instituted against him. As the troubles arose through the Chronicle's vigorous work on behalf of the town and shareholders, it is but right that those who received the benefit should come to the rescue -Shelburne Economist.

A number of the shareholders of the National Portland Cement Co , of Durham, who reside in Shelburne, have requested the Free Press to state that if the shareholders of the company in general will assist pay the judgment and costs against the editor of the Chronicle that they will put up $1.00 each. This is a move in the right direction and if each shareholder contributes one dollar the Chronicle man will be relieved of a heavy responsibility.-Free Press, Shelburne.

The citizens of Durham recently held a public meeting the object of Mr. Irwin, editor of the Durham Chronicle, who was assessed $500 and costs, in all about eleven of twelve hundred dollars, as a result of a libel suit in which Stephen Ludlow, late chemist of the Durham cement works, was the plaintiff Committees were appointed to secure from citizens private subscriptions to an indemnity fund, the justification of course being that he got into the trouble while engaged in the newspaper fight on the cement question. These committees are at work this week and we hope will meet with the success they deserve. The I. O. F and I. O. O. F. societies are also contributing. -Bruce Times.

The people of Durham are indignant over the late libel suit which resulted in a judgment being given against the Chronicle for $500 and costs. The people of Durham recognize that the Chronicle was not fight ing its own battle but a battle in the interests of the town and the stock holders in the Cement Company. At a public meeting held last week a make an individual appeal to every stockholder of the company. The action of the people of Durham is to be commended. If the Chronicle got into trouble over fighting for their interests they certainly set a worthy example in undertaking to pay a share of the costs .- Meaford Mirror.

According to the Chronicle the pecple of Durham will help its editor to settle the libel suit against him. which was brought on by Mr. Lud. W. Grahlmann, F. Christoffer. low, of Owen Sound, in the cement question. In our opinion the people Grochofske, M. Byers. of Durham and the shareholders have a perfect right to settle it as Mr. Irwin was fighting a battle for the shareholders and the town and not for himself. We are pleased to see the people of Durham acting so wise. tosh, D. Tinkham, S. Mitchell. they appreciate the good work done Nuhn. by Brer. Irwin in keeping the cement mill in their flourishing little town. Brer. Irwin can also thank his stars he has some friends for it's not every country editor that can lay his hands on eleven or twelve hundred dollars in such a burry .- Gorrie Vidette.

SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE

The Builder of the Canadian Pacific.

Sir William Van Horne, Control of the Board of Derectors of the Canadian which was to secure assistance for Pacific R. R., is the most versatile man in Canada. He is a marroad builder who defied obstacles that would have daunted most able men; he is a collector of paintings and is a painter of ability; he is a deep student and a pleasing talker; he is a successful amateur farmer; he is the head and prime mover in dozens of big enterprises which he handles simultaneously with the case of a Japanese juggler tossing balls into the air; and he is invading Cuba and Guatemala with the great advanceagent of civilization-railways.

He was born near Joliet, Ill., in 1843, a lineal descendant of one of the Dutch founders of New Amsterdam, the germ from which the great city of New York has evolved. At fourteen the death of his father made it necessary for him to secure the living the world owes to everyone who works day and night to collect the ceb. He was first telegraph operator on the Illinois Central, then went into the service of the Michigan Central where he remained six years, leaving to be train dispatcher of the Alton, there rising successively to the position of superintendent of telegraph and divisional superintendent. He afterward occupied managing positions on the St. Louis, Kansas City and Northern, Southern Minnesota, Chicago and Alton, and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railways, going from the latter to the Canadian Pacific as general manager.

The inception of this, one of the world's greatest railway systems, was due to the patriotism, courage and enterprise of Lords Mount Stephen and Strathcona and other capitalists; but the virtual building of the road and putting into the completed work the soul of a mighty purpose, the boundless energy, vitality and brain that have made it what it is, was the work of Sir William Van Horne. In 1884 he became vice-president of the road and four years later was made president His splendid organizing ability, his mastery of detail, his infinite resourcefulness, his conquest of obstacles—all find their lasting monument in this splendid work. He has the visions into the future that distinguish all great leaders; he sees the oak in the acorn, he sees in imagination the busy town with its teeming population, where other men see only a possible good site for a town. For him to see a need, is to plan; for him to plan, is to execute.

In 1894, Queen Victoria, recognizing the marvelous impetus he had given to Canada, conferred on him an honorary knighthood, which he modestly accepted as a tribute to his railroad, and has since carried his honors with the simplicity, committee was appointed to ask for grace and dignity of a large-minded, broad-gauge man.

A STITCH IN TIME.

Twas but a rusty little nail, And on it hangs this tale, For on it some one caught and tore The pretty new frock that she wore, But some one only tossed her head. "I'll mend it by and by," she said. Another hour in play was spent, And then the tear was quite a rent. Alas, before the day had flown The rent into a hole had grown, So big that mother had to spend Quite half a day that hole to mend. And now that pretty frock she wore Is not so pretty as before. So recollect this rhyme of mine And that a stitch in time saves nine.

MANAGING HUSBANDS.

Some Eighteenth Century Ideas on This Interesting Subject.

Most quaint is some of the advice to women contained in an old book published in 1737. The volume describes itself as "an infallible Guide to the Fair Sex, containing Rules, Directions, and Observations for their Conduct and Behaviour through all Ages and Circumstances of life; as Virgins, Wives, or Widows, with Directions how to obtain all Useful and Fashionable Accomplishments suitable to the Sex." If the lady's husband was choleric she was told how to secure her own way by dexterously "yielding everything till he begins to cool, and then by slow degrees she may rise and gain upon the Man," or "when other Remedies are too weak, a little Flattery may be admitted, which, by being necessary, will cease to be criminal." With a covetous husband, pride, ambition, vanity, anger, kindness or even a dose of wine may be expected 'to open or enlarge his narrow Mind." "The wife's business must be to watch for critical moments, and not let one of them slip without making her advantage of it." And a wife may be said "to want skill if by these means she is not able to secure herself in Good Measure against the inconveniences this scurvy Quality in her husband might bring upon her." All the frailties of poor, erring husbands are here set forth, singly, in plain, unmis- THE HANOVER CONVEYANCER takable language, neatly docketed, each with the recipe for cure appended

There are other interesting passages in the same book. Of spinsters the author says: "An old maid is now thought such a curse as no poetic fury can exceed, looked on as the most calamitous creature in nature. Modesty and Obedience, though necessary to all, are yet in a more eminent degree required here. Their Look, their Speech, their whole Behaviour, should own a humble distrust of themselves." Concerning amusements this: "The reading of Romances seems now to be thought the DURHAM RESIDENCE, belonging to Mr. tends going west and wishes to dispose of it. peculiar and only becoming Study of young Ladies. event as harmless." Of another vanity: "There is also another great devourer of Time-we mean Dressing. Sure 'tis allowable upon a soberer account that those who design EUSINESS DIFFICULTIES arranged. Marriage should give themselves the advantage of decent Ornaments and not by the negligent Rudeness of their Dress bely Nature and render themselves less amiable than she has made them. But, all this being granted, 'twill by no means justify that excessive Curiosity and Solicitude, that Expense of Time and Money, too, which is more used."

The Power of His Eye.

It is told of Van Amburgh, the great lion tamer, that on one occasion while in a barroom he was asked how he gained his wonderful power over animals. He said:

"It is by showing them that I'm not terian church where they awaited in the least afraid of them and by keep-

"You see that fellow? He's a clown. I'll make him come across the room to me, and I won't say a word to him." Sitting down, he fixed his keen, steady eye on the man. Presently the fellow straightened himself up, rose from his seat and came slowly across to the lion tamer. When he was close enough he drew back his arm and struck Van Amburgh a tremendous blow under the chin, knocking him clean over the chair, with the remark, "You'll stare at me like that again, won't you?"-London Standard.

Hallam's Portrait.

Of a recently published portrait of Arthur Hallam, immortalized by Tennyson's "In Memorian," a writer says: "It dates from the prephotographic days, of course, but it does not show signs of the flattery so common in portraits of that time. The face that bore those 'azure orbits heavenly wise,' those 'ethereal eyes,' is pictured as rather gloomy, rather lowering, that of a somewhat heavy youth. This head was Tennyson's hostage to heaven throughout the stress of philosophic doubt and was so half a century later, when the aged poet died in the faith that his boy friend was 'not dead, but
