Ma of Mi-o-na Made Public. Cure for Stomach Troubles.

Leading druggists are very anxious to have Mi-o-na, a remedy which they sell as a cure for stomach troubles, tested rigidly in every case. It cures indigestion, loss of appetite, nervousness, sleeplessness, general weakness and debility, or where digestive organs do not act as should.

Mi-o-na is composed of bismuth, which adds the very best element known for intestinal disorders. It combines with the free acids in the bowels, forming a black substance which is cast off from the body without any pain. It also has a soothing effect on the nerve endings in the stomach.

When this combined cerium oxide, a standard remedy in the treatment of all irritations of the stomach and digestive organs.

When bicarbonate is then added to overcome the excessive acidity present in stomach troubles, it acts as a powerful tonic nerve strengthening powers.

This combination of reliable remedies makes Mi-o-na a positive cure for stomach troubles, and perhaps the only one that can be sold under a guarantee that it costs nothing unless it cures.

STRAY SHOTS FROM SOLOMON.
 (The Shoe and Leather Journal.)

NIBBLED BY MINNOWS.

Almost every month we have to acknowledge the attention of a coterie of critics who, by their very plaints, evidence the fact that the medicine is working upon them. But the most amazing feature of the thing is how these little fellows that nibble at us give themselves away. Let us say for the benefit of the business thugs who deprecate the bringing of the Bible into trade papers, the red-nosed soaks who object to our slang, and the kid-gloved sneak thieves who think our allusions to the penitentiary and jail quite too harsh, that we have been fishing in their particular pond with the expectation of getting a bite or two. Why, if you will believe it, after a strong article on the business crookedness, which appeared in a recent number, we were actually stopped on the public street by a prominent manufacturer and called down for "putting bad in the minds of people." This man was the very man whose name was given to us as being particularly "slippery." Methinks the lady doth protest too much.

KEEP MUM.

Many people would get along well in the world if they only knew enough to keep their tongues still. With some the habit of talking is the result of thoughtlessness, while with others it emanates from a mean and vicious heart. Then there are the "Tom Bluats" who take a pride in saying "just what they think," and when they have crashed some poor sensitive soul with the iron heel of their "opinions," they think they have done God and humanity a service. No wonder one of the Scripture writers calls the tongue a "fire, a world of iniquity, an unruly evil, full of deadly poison." Happy the man who has his tongue well bridled. By far the greatest mischief comes through the thoughtless use of the tongue. Some empty-headed fool drops an innuendo about a business man's reputation or some woman's character, that sends one to disaster and ruin, and the other perhaps to hell. Some old harpy repeats a gossip's yarn, adds a little to help it along, and life-long friends are separated, and whole families disintegrated. Some people are like a pitcher the writer saw the other day, which is all mouth. It couldn't help spilling if it tried. Men should cultivate the habit of saying as little as possible about their neighbors. Says Solomon, "Curse not the rich in thy bedchamber; for a bird of the air shall carry the curse and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."

KEEP CLEAR OF LAW.

Many an unmarked pauper's grave contains the remains of a man who had he respected this precept, would have left at least his name to the world. With some, the mania for "lawing" seems to be hopelessly constitutional. They "law" with their friends, their neighbors, their customers, creditors, and everyone who chances wittingly or unwittingly to cross them. It is from this class of cranks that lawyers reap their richest harvest. We have in mind a man who went to law over a load of cordwood, and carried on the litigation until it absorbed a farm of a hundred acres and as comfortable a home as a man ever had, all for the consideration of less than five dollars. That man died without money enough to decently bury him, and had it not been for the kind offices of those who knew him in his days of prosperity he would have found his last resting-place in the potter's field. Doubtless hundreds of similar cases might be recounted. Hotheadedness is a deplorable weakness that ought to find no palliation with business men. The man who jeopardizes the interests of his family, as well as his own, for the sake of a little pusillanimous spite or thirst for personal satisfaction, ought to be put in a straight jacket. Law is a good thing in its place, and sometimes it is necessary to have recourse to it in settling questions as to the meaning of statutes or in adjusting either difficult matters; but in the majority of cases differences can be arranged with a little mutual patience and forbearance. In any case, "Strive not against a man without cause." Beware of uncalled-for interference with your neighbor.

IT GETS ROUND.

Jacob thought he was doing a pretty smart thing when he took the skin of the kid and deceived his poor old father into thinking his firstborn Esau was before him, and thus stole his brother's blessing; but there came the day when his ten blackleg sons brought in the coat of many colors, dipped in the blood of a kid and with almost the identical trappings he had used to deceive old Isaac, deceived him into the belief that Joseph, his pet son, whom they had sold as a slave, had been slain by wild beasts. He sowed a lie and reaped ten with such sorrow of soul that it made him an old man in his prime. David did some clever scheming to get Uriah's wife and committed murder to cover up his miserable crime of adultery. What did he get? Adultery right in his own family and murder on account thereof, in which one of his sons slew the other. These things go round in time. A man can't sow thistles and get wheat; he can't sow weeds and get strawberries. There are some men who wonder that their sons turn out crooked. They expect a corrupt tree to bring forth good fruit. The man who sows deception will get up some morning and find himself one of the worst deceived men in the world. The man who is always tricking his neighbors and making unjust gains will discover sooner or later that his own feet will be fast in the net. The chickens may be a little late in getting back to the coop, but they will come home to roost just the same. Some thief who reads this will sneer at this prophecy, but he will think of it when he gets caught in the toils. "Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein; and that roll-eth a stone it will return unto him."

NO SNAP.

To the man that is looking for a "snap" it rarely comes. What is considered as a snap is nine times in ten the result of such drudging effort as would make the snap hunter weary to contemplate. There is a man who is manager of one of the largest city banks and gets $15,000 a year, and who is the envy of those who imagine good berths are in the gift of the stars. He is reported at business from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., but you may see him almost any evening trudging home about 7.30 to a late dinner with his hand-bag and care worn face. There is the prosperous merchant who has built up a large business seemingly by a stroke of luck and into whose lap commerce pours golden dollars. Just try and get him to give you ten minutes some day to tell you what his present success has cost him—the early and late hours, the anxious cares, the ceaseless vigilance, the impaired constitution. Once in a long, long while fortune seems to favor some aimless, brainless fellow, but the chances for "snaps" without "cracks" are about one in a million. Just start a little calculation on your own account, culled from the pages of personal experience. The penalty of success in hard work and there is no substitution. "Whoso removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby." You have to take your chances in the great melee. It is said that less than ten per cent. of the people who start in business make a success in their ventures. On the toes of the other ninety the stones fall or the axe descends. The knowledge of the dreadful odds does no seem to diminish the aspirants for honor in quarrying or wood-splitting.

HUSBAND TWITTERED.

An Arthur man's wife left him to run the house and get his own meals for a week or two. He cooked as he thought the breakfast food every morning. When the wife returned, says a reliable informant, she noticed that her husband twittered and he himself acknowledged an inclination to warble. It was found that he had cooked and eaten a whole package of canary seed. He says he is always resisting an inclination to sleep with his head under his arm.

THE SOURCE OF NEURALGIA.

It runs hand in hand with poor blood and weak nerves. Health runs down, nerves get irritable, neuralgic torture follows. Every root and branch of the disease it kills. Absolute success in every case. Stop suffering—fifty cents buys Ferrozone. Fifty chocolate coated tablets in a box at any drug store.

DIED IN CHATSWORTH.

Elizabeth B. Breese, aged 90 years, died on Sunday in Chatsworth at the home of her brother, Mr. William Breese, Sr. Deceased was the oldest person in this immediate vicinity, and had passed in years all but a very limited number in the whole Dominion, and had also been a resident of Chatsworth almost during the entire history of the village, being associated with Mr. S. H. Breese as one of the first business people of the place. The funeral took place on Tuesday at the Church of England cemetery. This death has taken a citizen who possessed a unique record as a citizen, and our columns next week will contain a further reference to the departed.—Chatsworth Banner.

Sciatica Cured After Twenty Years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey, of 3322 Clinton St., Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has affected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism why not try a 25 cent bottle of Pain Balm and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale at Parker's Drug Store.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

An accident resulting in the death of Morris Doherty, the four year old son of Mr. Samuel Doherty, 7th line, Euphrasia, occurred about 4 p. m. Tuesday. The little fellow was accompanying his elder brother in drawing manure from the barn to one of the fields. As they were on their way out with a load one of the hind wheels of the wagon got into a rut, causing the load to jolt and throwing the little fellow forward onto the ground. The front wheel passed over him. He was picked up by his elder brother and carried into the house, where his injuries were found to be of a very painful nature. Dr. Williams, of Rocklyn, was summoned and did all he could for the little patient, who lingered in great agony till four o'clock on Wednesday morning when he passed away.—Meaford Mirror.

The raiding of a "blind pig" by the police and license inspector in Owen Sound on Wednesday night is the topic in Owen Sound. The officers have had a line on the joint for some little time, and made the raid when they figured on results without mistakes. In this they were not disappointed. When they approached the stable, for such it was, doors were locked and barred on the outside and everything looked as if there was nothing doing. But the officers soon effected an entrance and then there was lively doings. They captured seven or eight young men, some full and some not so full; four beer kegs, some full and some empty; half a bushel of drinking glasses, and numerous flasks and bottles and other things. John Elliott, who is the tenant of the premises, has been summoned to appear in court to answer to the charge of violating the liquor law.—Chatsworth Banner.
