Holmes, who is a man about fifty three years of age, was alone in the slurry room and was on an improvised platform en g ged in replacing a big belt on a swiftly revolving pulley. In some way his hand slipped and caught and instantly he was whirled round the shaft and the right arm literally torn from its socket at the shoulder. Several ribs were also fractured and he was more or less cut and bruised by the terrible experience, though it is miraculous that he escaped without fatal injuries. He never lost consciousness and with the greate-t nerve cooly called a fellow employee from the next room. When Mr. Dates, the manager, arrived on the scene a few minutes later after hastily summoning a physician Holmes cooly picked up the severed member and with the grimmest humor remarked that he guessed he had lost an arm. He was attended by Dr. Howey and was conveyed to the gen eral and marine hospital in the am bulence, where his physician says he is doing remarkably well.
