We have just been informed of the death on Friday last at North Bruce of Mr. — McIntosh, father of Mr. Norman McIntosh, late of the school staff and Cream Separator Works here. Interment took place at Port Hope on Sunday last.

LAST week Mr. Thomas Davis, Licence Inspector, received a hastily call to Toronto to see his daughter Annie, who was taken suddenly with appendicitis. No time was lost in getting the young woman to the hospital and a skilled surgeon on the scene when a so-far successful operation was quickly performed and the patient placed on the road to rapid recovery. The young lady is about twenty years of age, in excellent health, and will be round again soon if no complications set in.

In the township of Miscampbell, on Thursday, July 5th, there was erected the largest log house in the township on the farm of Chas Gadd. There were sixteen men besides Mrs. Gadd and family. The building is one storey and a half high, 24x18, all erected in one day. The day was enlivened by gramophone and accordion music and singing. Meals were served in the shade of birch and evergreen trees. All enjoyed themselves as well as if they had been at a picnic.—Fort Francis Times.

A liquor case was tried here on Monday last that caused considerable interest. It grew out of an information laid by Inspector Davis, which involved two charges against Mr. Thos. O'Neill, of Holstein in the township of Egremont, a township under Local Option. The first charge was for selling liquor and three witnesses, who were supposed to have bought and paid for intoxicants were examined before Magistrates Telford and Chas. McKinnon. No evidence was elicited on which a conviction could be made and case No. 1, was dismissed. Case No. 2 was a charge against the defendant for keeping on the premises a keg of wine containing more than the law allowed and of a higher percentage of spirit. The Provincial Inspector made an examination of the premises a short time ago and took a sample of wine from a keg in the cellar, and had an analysis made by Prof. Amyot, Provincial Analyst. This showed the wine to contain 14.1 per cent proof spirit and much stronger than it should be to be classed as a non-intoxicant. The Inspector also swore that Mr. O'Neill told him the wine he sold was from this keg and his evidence was confirmed by the other witnesses. Mr. O'Neill absolutely denied this statement. Crown Attorney Armstrong, of Owen Sound, conducted the prosecution in an exceedingly gentlemanly spirit, and the case of the defendant was in the hands of Hon. A. G. McKay. Judgment was reserved for a week.

PURSE LOST—Flat leather, black, reversing inside with cross bands. Containing over thirty dollars. Finder will be rewarded by leaving at this office or returning to the owner, Elijah Armstrong. Supposed to be lost near owner's home.

A SINGULAR case was tried here Friday morning last before Police Magistrate Telford. Last week a cow belonging to a Mrs. Barnes was found in the garden of Mr. J. H. Brown, who turned her into his stable and kept her over night intending to advertise her or put her in pound next morning, as he did not know who owned her. In the morning, however, the cow seemed uneasy as if she wished to be milked, and Mr. Brown decided to let her go and follow her home. Mrs. Barnes was milking when he arrived and enquired if the cow belonged to her. The answer being in the affirmative, he told Mrs. Barnes about the cow destroying part of his garden and asked her to look after the animal. Mrs. Barnes became indignant, and an altercation ensued, at which she pushed Mr. Brown away violently and subsequently struck him and used profane language according to the evidence. The town Constable got wind of the affair and laid information against Mrs. Barnes, who was tried summarily and fined five dollars and costs or twenty days in jail at hard labor. Time was given to the 16th inst. to pay the fine. In his charge to the defendant, Mr. Telford characterized the attack as cowardly treatment to a gentleman who kindly brought the animal home, and stated that he would be lenient as this was her first appearance.

THE C. P. R. construction is still going on and a deep cut on the "Parker" farm opposite the cemetery is now completed. Considerable work is being done also in the vicinity of Priceville where a steam shovel is actively engaged and heavy cuts and fills being rapidly made. Much speculation exists as to location of the road through the town and though not officially informed in the matter we understand it is about definitely arranged now that the track will cross Garafraxa Street about midway up the hill where an overhead driveway will be placed and the school grounds skipped. From the first we never said much about the school grounds as, in fact we had almost a personal anxiety that the property would be taken by the company, school and all, and give the citizens an opportunity to erect a decent looking and up-to-date school building. The company, however, is not built in such a financial mould that they will pay more than a thing is worth just for the sake of a cut here and a fill some place else. The probabilities regarding the station being in the vicinity of the school are not very sure and may go west on the old site of Crawford's saw mill. We admire the action of the company from the start and fully believe that they are endeavoring to do the best they can for the town's interests as well as for their own. We have not yet been out to see the men at work on the road, but understand they have to keep moving, and that some of the teams were taken off as the work was too heavy for them.

Mr. Norman McIntosh is in town enjoying a social interview with his many old time friends. He was accompanied by his brother Dan, of Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. David McClocklin, was in Guelph last week and was highly honored as one of the old boys. The old gentleman is a mason by trade and spent many years in and around the Royal city.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie McDougall, (see how it looks in print) arrived in town Tuesday afternoon, and are receiving congratulations. Archie has resumed his position at the case again and looks as though he will survive the ordeal.

Mr. W. J. Porter, who has been visiting friends here for a couple of months, returned to work in New York city on Tuesday afternoon. He was a frequent and welcome caller at this office where he served his first days in the printing business, and, we really miss him since he's gone. Mr. Porter is a high class art printer and we learned a good deal by his vacation here. We hope he'll call again.

Lyman Caldwell left last Friday morning on a trip to Alberta. Lyman is one of the list of Durham "tourists" who has been over a great portion of world and isn't satisfied yet with what he has seen. Like the other members of the gang his periodical peregrinations are not marked by the accumulation of any considerable quantity of the filthy lucre and while we admire the young man in some ways we are sorry he lacks enough stick-to-itiveness to settle down to something and stay with it. Advice is useless and the only thing that can be done, apparently, is let such fellows have full swing hoping all along that some day they may have more sense.

We referred last week to an increased offer in salary made to Miss McKerracher to take a position in Sydenham High School. To get off she secured the services of Miss Forfar as a substitute and left Saturday morning for her new field of labor. We wish them both success in the very trying work of teaching the young idea how to parse.

THE large 12x14 photograph given away with one dozen cabinets is well worth a dollar and a half. F. W. Kelsey, Photographer.—July 12th. tf.

We hope it isn't necessary to use any strong arguments to bring out the citizens of Durham and the residents of the surrounding townships to witness the South Grey Fair, the best of everything provided in the country. The directors are anxious for success financially as well as in the character of the exhibits. The town is anxious to see a large crowd out, not because the business men expect a record-breaking day for business, but because it shows interest and activity in Agricultural pursuits which after all we may say, do and think is the main spring which moves the wheels of progress and the most independent pursuit in which any man can engage. These big days are not big days for sales by the merchant. Most people come in to see the exhibits to see their friends and neighbors, and have a general good time once a year. It is a sort of reunion day a day, in which friends meet who may not have met one another since last fair day. It would be folly to say that our fair would compare with the big city shows, but a hearty co-operation on the part of Directors and exhibitors will have a tendency, at least, to make it the best of its kind. The financial gain to the prize-winner may not go far towards inflating his cash account, but it may have the effect of stirring up others to a greater degree of agricultural activity. We believe we are safe in thinking that farmers, as a rule, do not sufficiently appreciate the high and lofty position in which they are engaged as tillers of the soil. The work may be hard, the face may be sun-burned and the hands horny, but the smell of the new tilled soil and the new mown hay, and the breathing of the purest and most fragrant atmosphere under the canopy of heaven, are heritages that belong to the agrarian worker in a greater degree, perhaps, than to any other class. The farmer should feel himself the most important man on earth, no matter what view may be taken by the town snob who hasn't the faintest idea, it may be, where his next honest meal will come from. If any man is in a position to hold up an independent head it is an honest farmer, and it pains us often to hear them talk about the lowness and drudgery of their spheres in life. The farmers have advantage of us all, but the different lines and callings of life are so co-existent and interdependent that no one class can call himself absolutely independent of the other. Sept. 19th and 20th are the farmers days in Durham, and we hope to see them out in large numbers.
