Investigation of the Horse Industry of Ontario by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

At the last session of the Legislature the Minister of Agriculture secured an appropriation for the purpose of making an investigation into the condition of the horse industry in the province of Ontario. This work is now being undertaken by the Department of Agriculture of Ontario and will be commenced early in Oct. The object of this investigation is to obtain information to be used in deciding as to the best policy to adopt to encourage more extensive breeding of a better class of horses.

Following are the principal points which will be considered in the course of the investigation:

- (1) The number, type, quality and breeding of stallions and brood mares in the Province.
- (2) What conditions have affected or are affecting the quality and number of stallions and brood mares in the various sections of the Province, and if the effect is for good whether or not the same conditions could be applied in other sections; and if the conditions have not a good effect what could be done to improve them.
- (3) What class of horses can most profitably be raised in different sections of the Province under the natural conditions found in those sections.
- (4) The system of owning horses by a syndicate and any other plan at present adopted in Ontario other than private ownership.
- (5) The views of horsemen generally as to the advisability of a Stallion Inspection Act.
- (6) Suggestions from those interested in the horse business as to what can be done to improve conditions of the horse business generally.

In order to procure this information the Province will be divided into eight districts. Two competent and expert horsemen have been selected and allotted to each district. From five to six weeks will be spent in each District by the Committee appointed for that district. The districts will be composed of a number of counties grouped together, the number making up each district being decided by the length of time required to go through a county. Each county will require from four to nine days. The information regarding stallions will be as detailed as possible, each stallion in the Province being inspected. The information regarding mares cannot be got so accurately, but a great deal of information can be procured from the stallion owners in each district as to the number, type and quality of the brood mares, the committee having an opportunity of confirming this by noting the appearance of the mares seen while travelling through the district.

Regarding the other matters of a more general nature, information will be procured by close observation and by conversation with those met by the committee who may have any knowledge of the local conditions. In addition to the work as above outlined, it is being arranged to have one public meeting in each County at some point centrally located, and where a special interest is taken in the horse industry. The object of the meeting is to give any person who so desires an opportunity of expressing his views to the committee. The meeting in each County will be held immediately after the committee has completed the work in that County.

In each Farmers' Institute district the Secretary has been asked to assist in the work of procuring the names and addresses of the stallion owners and laying out the most convenient route for the committee to follow while in his district. He has also been asked to accompany the committee, and arrange for the public meeting in the County. In cases where the Secretary was unable to do the work, the President of the Farmers' Institute has been asked to make the necessary arrangements. The dates and points at which the public meetings will be held have been selected. Arrangements have also been completed for the dates allowed for each Institute division, and the points at which committees will transfer from one Institute district to the one following.

The work should have the sympathy and co-operation of all owners of stallions and of all who are interested in the horse industry. It is hoped that the committees will be given every facility for procuring the information required, and that every person interested will take advantage of the opportunity being given to express his views as to how the horse industry of this Province can best be improved.

BE A STRONG MAN

Increase your vitality and nerve energy, restore vim and force to your overworked body. Ferrozone will do this as it did for Walter Wood, of Beauport, N. B., who writes: "I can say Ferrozone has given me a new lease of life. A year ago I suffered so from nervous exhaustion I was scarcely able to drag myself around. My appetite was gone. I had no color or ambition and felt used up. One box of Ferrozone started me back to health. I took a number of boxes and my health was completely restored." For men who are tired, pale, nervous and thin-blooded nothing compares with Ferrozone, 50c per box at all dealers.

Threw the Lantern in His Face.

Two men attempted assault on Miss Chambers, a pretty little English girl, 19 years old, on Tuesday evening, shortly before nine o'clock. Miss Chambers, who is a domestic at the home of Mr. W. F. Wolfe, Frost st., was returning from a visit with friends on the East hill and was accompanied by a 11-year-old boy. She had also been provided with a lighted lantern by her friends. She had reached a dark section on Douglas st., when she was accosted by two rough looking men. Miss Chambers, who had the lighted lantern in her hand, swung it around and hit one of the men a blow in the face that nearly sent him over. Miss Chambers put up a plucky fight and the small boy made so much noise that the men didn't wait. The people from nearby houses came out and the frightened girl was taken in. The police office was telephoned and P. C. Foster was promptly on the scene. Miss Chambers gave a fairly good description of the men, who are supposed to be foreigners, but they will not likely be caught.—O. S. Sun.

THE DELIGHTFUL DEATH

More often than not men and other animals die pleasant and painless deaths.

If you let a man die naturally and not worry him to death he will wear a peaceful expression.

People talk a lot of nonsense about death. The ox standing chewing his cud does not notice the uplifted pole-axe, and death comes to him like the rushing of a mighty wind which ends with the sighing of a zephyr. He never feels the knife; his death was merciful.

The squirrel chiseling a hole in a hickory nut never feels the shot. The worm gobbled by a gray bird goes into a warm, damp, dark place, and that's all he knows about it.

The rat which is drowning in the cream is to be envied.

Not so the hired man, who, to his astonishment is told with a gracious smile to go into the milk house and help himself to all the cream he wants. But the death of a great Reputation is a painful sight. It has so many of the attributes of self-murder as to be positively shocking. What makes it all the worse, it partakes of the nature of a public execution. The great Reputation is brought out in a cart and mounts the scaffold more or less unsteadily. It stares vaguely at the vast throng and makes a through-the explanation as to how it came to commit the crime, or, what's worse, it denies it altogether. Then the hangman springs the trap, and the great Reputation drops into oblivion.

I am not superstitious, but I've seen them gibbering at the polls. I have seen them gibbering at the bar. I have known their skeleton to get out of their graves in the corner of the national jail yard and climb the wall and shamelessly parade the streets, shaking hands with people who hate the look of them and who take a bath the instant they get home. These dead Reputations haunt many a home.

They haunt Osgoode Hall, the Parliament Buildings, the great newspaper offices, the great saloons, the splendid warehouses, the vast railway yards, the noble temples of learning, and the pulpits of almost every church in the land.

It is a terrible sight to see the ghost of a dead Pulpit Reputation flitting about the door of its old church on a Sunday evening, sometimes flitting up the aisle to stand for a moment in the chancel, where when in the flesh it had once been supreme.

Such ghosts are not the only ghosts.

If you will go up to Osgoode Hall just before cock crow some dark night you will find the building thronged with ghosts of dead Legal Reputations, whispering in the library, flitting up and down the wide staircases or mounting and gesticulating before the canvases on the walls.

Queen's Park is full of the ghosts of great Political Reputations.

I knew a great Reputation once upon a time. A blast of his bugle horn was worth ten thousand men; now he couldn't get a bartender to look up from his dope sheet. If he did, he would only say, "Get away, you bum—skidoo—beat it!" You needn't tell me there are no ghosts. There isn't a square mile of old Ontario that isn't haunted by them, and the villages, towns and cities are thick with them.

Tarnation!

Hear the drip, drip, dropping
Of the rain!
Hear the splash, splash, splashing
on the pane!
And I sit here and I wonder
Where in thunder,
Where in thunder,
Is the man who borrowed my umbrella?
For he seemed a likely feller,
And I lent it to him without hesitation,
Tarnation!
