We are glad to be able to send out the trade edition of the Chronicle and hope our readers will be pleased with the result of our effort. It's no small job in a country office to get out a paper of this kind. Unseen difficulties meet us at every turn, but the patient printer plods on till he overcomes all obstacles. Quite a number have given orders for extras at 10c each or three for a quarter. The supply will soon be exhausted.

THE Church should possess dignity, but we fail to see dignity in the minister who trades upon a white choker or a sacerdotal robe. The minister should be paid for his services like any other man, and the minister in turn should pay for what he gets like any other man. We think there are very few clergymen to-day who look for favors because of the ecclesiastical position they hold. If they do, they detract at once from their dignity and strike a deadly blow at their own influence. The pew is more guilty than the pulpit in begging for church favors and it's high time for them to "quit their meanness" as Sam Jones used to say. Let the church be paid as other institutions are paid, and let them feel that business is business and quit expecting favors. Some will say we are extravagant in our views, but so long as people want reductions, because "it's for the church," so long will we think there are mean people in the church. If church members or church adherents were loyal to the church a great many of the questionable means now used to raise money would soon be discontinued. Many a mean man is in the church to-day because it's profitable to be in the church, but the man who joins a church from mean mercenary motives will be a mean man in the church. A thin coating of religious veneer will never make a saint of a sinner.

MATRIMONIAL.

One of the prettiest matrimonial events that has taken place in this district for a long time was celebrated on Monday evening last at the beautiful home of D. J. Whitney, one of the most esteemed and enterprising citizens of this section. The participants in the happy affair were Miss Etta Maude Whitney, the only daughter of the home, and W. E. Buchan, of the Hudson's Bay Company, Winnipeg, formerly of Lethbridge. The house was exquisitely decorated for the occasion. The ceremony took place in the drawing-room under an arch decorated with ferns, smilax, white asters and bows of white ribbon. Rev. Chas. McKillop, of Raymond, assisted by Rev. A. M. Gordon, officiated. The charming bride, gowned in a rich robe of white oriental lace over Duchess satin, wearing an orange veil and carrying a bouquet of white roses, entered the room on the arm of her father, as Mrs. Neale played the wedding march. The bridesmaid was Miss G. Dickerson, of Medicine Hat, who looked most becomingly in a gown of allover silk embroidered net over pale green taffeta silk. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. The groom was attended by his brother, W. F. Buchan.

After the knot had been tied and congratulations offered, the thirty or more guests repaired to the dining room, which had been tastefully decorated in pink and green. The tables were decorated with pink and white carnations and ferns.

Mrs. Whitney, the bride's mother, wore a handsome gown of black peau de soie with yoke of white and applique trimmings.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace, to the bridesmaid a clover leaf brooch set with pearls and to the groomsmen gold cuff links.

Mr. Whitney presented his daughter with a cheque for $500. There was a magnificent array of gifts, principally silver and cut glass.

The young couple left for Winnipeg on the night train followed by the best wishes of their hosts of friends.

The bride's going away suit was of navy blue broadcloth with a hat of pale blue chenille, trimmed with pan pale blue chenille, trimmed with panne velvet and pink roses.—Lethbridge Herald.

SANCTUM SIFTINGS.

THE Festive Season is now on. Christmas will be here in a few weeks and about that date we may look for "sociables," tea meetings, concerts, soirees and entertainments in every little community and by every church organization and society. Personally, we do not like the "social" way of raising money. There's a lot of work in getting up a church tea meeting, and to go round and collect all the eatables means a lot more labor than one imagines who has never been in the game. Besides, the contributions are not equitable. The rich man, perhaps, will hand out a quarter in cold cash, and with a bland smile on his hypocritical face appear as if such a liberal donation should buy him a passport to heaven, and give him a reserved seat when he got there. The poor person who has less money but more religion would feel ashamed to give so small a sum, and it may be that out of her poorly stocked larder she will bake up a couple of dollars' worth of provision, and lug her well filled basket to the place of entertainment and lay her load down in the true spirit of giving. We have another class who do not believe in "begging," but when the time comes they will be present and show their sympathy with the cause by paying a quarter for supper and entertainment, and you may take our word for it that 25c would never pay for the load some of these gormandizers can carry away with them. We have seen boys get in for half fare who seemed hollow clean down to the boots, and from the way things disappeared one would imagine they hadn't anything to eat for six months. Does anyone think the society or church can reap any profit from the presence of such chaps as these? We venture to say that these "eating bees" will soon be discontinued as a profit making concern, if churches and societies will just buy everything for a time or two and figure out their profits when the show is over. The burden of the entertainment in all such cases falls on the few. Night after night for weeks there have to be practices and rehearsals and everything seems to be in apple pie order. The amateur performers know their parts well and long for the time to come when they'll shine before a large and appreciative audience. Were you ever there? Did you, in imagination, outline a speech you were going to make? Did you ever think as you pondered over your thoughts what an impression you were going to make on the people, and when the time actually came did you realize what an ass you had made of yourself? It's quite a different thing with most of us when we stand up face to face with a living audience, and we should be charitable to the young persons who get lost in their exercises and make a failure in their parts. They'll do better next time, perhaps, and the failure will do them good, if they have only sense enough to know that they made a failure. While we do not like tea meeting methods for making money, we believe there are personal benefits to be derived from public performances inasmuch as the entertainers get more confidence in themselves, and however nervous they may be at first they will soon be in a position to speak without being scared at the sound of their own voices.
