A TRUE CHRISTMAS STORY.

In a little village nestling close beside the waters of the St. Lawrence there lived many years ago a handsome young woman whose parents passed to the Great Beyond when she was a mere child. Light hearted and gay, this fair maiden of almost queerly beauty and social accomplishment was the life of the community in which she lived. As she advanced in years her former boy companions visited the little house in a picturesque valley which she preferred in her simplicity and love of the beautiful in nature to designate her home. There they plighted their love and spent many pleasant evenings in relating the happy and sometimes oft repeated experiences of their school days.

There came a day, however, when the scene suddenly changed. There was some talk of building a railway through that section of country, and a number of families attracted by the prospects of a probable boom in real estate, began to purchase land in the vicinity of the little village.
Among the new-comers in the early spring was a stalwart young man of probably 22 or 23 years of age—a carpenter by occupation and one who felt it an esteemed privilege and honor to condescend to people of high estate.

Spring and summer passed away, and winter with its cold, piercing blasts held the classic little village in its strong embrace. The fields and forests were covered with snow and the sound of merry sleigh bells jingled on the frosty air. It was within a week of Christmas day when the young lady heard a knock at the front door and hastened to open it. A messenger handed her a note—an invitation to attend a Christmas tree entertainment in the little school house near the mouth of the valley. The note was from the young man in question and was written in a clear round hand that indicated not only superior penmanship, but an excellent knowledge of the English language.

Jenny, as the young lady was called by the people of the village, wrote a hurried reply and soon the messenger was on his return journey. A smile stole across the handsome face of the young man as he opened the envelope and read the words which were destined in years to come to lead up to a romance not often equalled by the most gifted and far seeing writers of fiction.

The entertainment over, the young man escorted Jenny to her home and told her of the great love he bore for her. On a beautiful morning in the month of May the nuptials of this happy couple were solemnized by an Ottawa clergyman, whose solemn intonation of words, "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder," the lady told Meaford friends she should never forget as long as she lived. Time went on. As man and wife they lived in happiness and contentment for a few years. Then the gossips began to get in their work.
Some of these were relatives of the young wife, and as is usually the case, a neighbor was at the bottom of the trouble—not that she had anything against either of the parties, but simply because she was willing to become the instrument of others in wrecking a happy home and sending man and wife and several small children adrift upon a cold, unsympathetic world.

Rising quite early one December morning the young husband walked out of the house without even bidding his wife good-bye or giving his sleeping children a farewell kiss. For years the heart-broken mother and wife waited to receive some word of him but like the letter expected from the wounded and dying soldier, it came not. Breaking up house she came to Meaford, where she has supported herself and children by hard, industrious labor.

It is the 18th day of December, 1906. Snow is on the ground and sleighs and cutters are seen upon the streets. The shops are filled with Christmas novelties, and the faces of countless children beam with delight as they look forward with pleasurable anticipation to the dawn of the Christmas morn when well filled stockings and visions of roast goose and plum-pudding shall proclaim glad tidings and great joy to the myriads of human beings upon the earth.

The sun is sinking to its peaceful repose in the Western sky. People hurry to and fro on the streets of Meaford—first into one shop and then into another—in their eagerness to purchase presents for the little ones at home or for relatives and friends more advanced in years. A woman is sitting at the window of her humble home, silently sobbing as her thoughts linger upon that happy May morning when she plighted her love and promised implicit obedience to the man who would have her pardon and forgiveness should he return and claim her as his lawful wife.

With all his faults she loved him still.

Just then the woman's only son entered the door, carrying a letter in his hand. The woman knew the writing, and ere she had broken the seal she was prompted to exclaim in words somewhat similar to the prodigal's father of old: "For this my husband was dead and is alive again; was lost and is found."

The letter was to the following effect:

Toronto, Dec. 12, 1906.

DEAR JENNY.—Thank Heaven I have got word of you at last. On my way back from California I stopped over at Winnipeg, where I met a man named Taylor who told me you were living in Meaford. I have asked God to forgive me and implore you to do the same. Oh! if you only knew how my heart has been breaking all these years to see you and the children. How are the girls? I hope they have not entirely forgotten their unfaithful father.

Jenny, I want you to come at once to Toronto—to the Walker House, where I am stopping for the present.
You will have no need to work any longer. I have become rich at placer mining in California, and can keep you and the children comfortably the rest of our lives. I have wronged you—cruelly wronged you—but remember that "to err is human; to forgive is Divine." Do not fail to come at the time appointed.

Needless to say the lady met her husband as requested. Reconciliation took place in the presence of another Meaford lady, an intimate friend of the wife, and soon the reunited couple will take up their residence in Meaford. What a happy Christmas it will be for them.—

Corner Concerns.

We are to have something new and interesting in the School House on New Year's night Jan. 1st by way of a poverty social, the proceeds to go in aid of the poor. A supper will be given and a good program provided by the best talent of Holstein and Durham. Prizes will be given for dress providing it be of a poor quality while a slight tax may be put on those with too much grandeur. There will be no set admittance out a free will offering will be taken up. All who wish to spend a thorough enjoyable night should attend.

Your Hutton Hill Scribe thinks we are wrong in calling a pie social a gambling affair, but we think not, for instance, our young men go to Hutton Hill expecting for a couple of dollars to get possibly the correspondent or a similar winsome, jolly little tart who can bake a pie to the pink of perfection and would make a man happy for the hour or right through the chapter, while instead they get a girl who knows nothing and hardly that, who could hardly cook the west end of a last year's turnip. That is what makes them cuss and make such a row.

Brick is being laid down for the new church. Everybody is welcome to help put the material on the ground.

Miss Bella McLaughlin is recovering from her illness and will soon be able to enjoy life again with her many friends.

A couple of Galt farmers bought and shipped a car load of young cattle to tramp down the abundant crop of straw that grew in that part this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Watson and baby Wilfrid, of Normanby, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sharp last week.

Among the Christmas joys of Mr. and Mrs. A. Baird is a bright little baby girl which arrived on the 23rd.

Mr. Watters, of the Mill, conducted cottage prayer meetings in the neighbor houses for the past two Sundays.

Mrs. Pete Black is on the sick list at present. We hope to soon see her around again, yet if any one in this part can be cheerful under affliction she can.

Mr. Japues' sale on Thursday was a success. Auctioneer Clark seems to have luck on his side this fall and is getting all the sales.

A Merry Christmas to all helpers

Edge Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ritchie paid a visit to friends in Arthur last week.
While there Mr. Ritchie drove over to Mitchell where he purchased a fine imported mare.

All the members of the Fifth family were home for Christmas. Joe from Hamilton, Dan from Woodbridge, and Tom and Martha from Toronto.

Mr. R. H. Banks was seriously ill for some time but is now able to go around again.

We extend congratulations to Miss Amy I. Edge, who at the last examination for Senior Teachers at Owen Sound Collegiate Institute won the gold medal for part I and also to Mr.
Arthur Weir, our new teacher, who won similar honors for Part II. A public presentation of the two medals was made at the Collegiate last Wednesday night.

Our School closed for the holidays last Friday. During the afternoon a large number from the section assembled to listen to an interesting program given by the children and their teacher, Mr. Howey. Mr. Kelsey, of Durham, was out and took several pictures of the group. The work of the children showed careful training and painstaking effort on the part of the teacher whom we are sorry to see leaving Mr. Howey has done excellent work during the past year and we wish him every success in his new school. He was presented with an address and a nice set of military brushes in a case by the scholars. Mr. Howey made a very feeling reply and thanked them for their kindness. Following is the address:

DEAR TEACHER—

As the closing of the school at this time will have the effect of severing that connection which has existed between us for the last year, the connection of teacher and pupil, we feel our trained at this parting to express to you the deep regret which we experience in bidding you adieu. The relationship which has existed between us is so far, at any rate as we are concerned, has been of so happy and pleasing a nature as well as so profitable, that as a consequence our regrets are the more poignant.
Should we at any time have shown any waywardness toward you or in any way have caused you to feel unhappy, we sincerely desire of you to extend to us that measure of forgiveness which you have so often inculcated in us. It is our desire to ask your acceptance of these articles as a souvenir of our regard for you and also to express the hope that in your walk through life you may ever feel the Presence of the Great Ruler of the Universe guiding your footsteps in the paths of success and happiness.

ANOTHER CASE THAT PROVES THE MERIT OF FERROZONE.

I was in poor health nearly all last winter," writes Mrs. Cross, of Wakefield, Ont. "My appetite was variable, I was weak and unfit for work. I suffered a good deal from nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. My digestion was generally out of order. By springtime I had lost flesh, color, and had a bad cough. The doctor didn't help me very much, so I decided to try Ferrozone. It did me ever so much good in one week. I gained strength looked and felt a lot better. When I had used six boxes of Ferrozone I weighed myself and found a gain of fifteen pounds. Ferrozone rebuilt my constitution, and made me a new woman. I consider Ferrozone worth its weight in gold to every weak woman. It cures quickly and saves big doctor's bills. (MRS.) R. CROSS."

A FOOD AND A TONIC

What the leading Medical Journal of the world has to say about FERROL.

After making a thorough test of FERROL in its own laboratory the London (England) Lancet published an article from which the following is taken:

FERROL

"This is a successful combination of the well-known valuable remedies, Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus. The formula is no secret, and our analysis showed the presence and amount of constituents as described. The preparation is a good one and of distinct therapeutic value. The association of an easily assimilable oil, in a fine state of division, with a phosphatic salt of iron which does not disturb the digestive functions and which is easily tolerated, determines its success as a food and tonic in wasting diseases."

What the London Lancet recommends as a food and a tonic in all wasting diseases must have very special qualities.

No higher endorsement is possible. The results following the use of FERROL for the past ten years have proved that this endorsement is well deserved.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanitariums, etc.
