

THE
DURHAM CHRONICLE

IRWIN, Editor and Proprietor.
DURHAM, MARCH 12, 1908.

CANADIAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

It isn't likely that the meeting of the Canadian Press Association held in Toronto on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week will be of much general interest to readers of this paper. The attendance was good, and much profitable discussion took place in the Daily and Weekly Sections.

The new International Postal Regulations, which makes it almost prohibitive to send local papers into the United States, was discussed at some length, and from the general tone of the discussion it was quite evident that local publishers did not take very kindly to them. As some concessions have since been made to publishers of daily papers, the publishers of weekly locals thought it only fair that they should be allowed an equal privilege, and the postmaster-general is to be interviewed in relation to the question.

A very profitable address was delivered by Mr. Madill McCormack, of the Chicago Tribune, in which he strongly advocated a purer, better and more reliable class of advertising. The advertisements he considered a part of the paper, and deception practised by an advertiser should in part be blamed on the publisher, who accepted such advertising. Referring to a certain medicine, which is usually regarded more as an intoxicating beverage than as a medicine, he acknowledged having made a contract with the company once, but now the Tribune would not accept it. Would have no hesitation in advertising it as an intoxicating beverage but not as a medicine, in which case it would be misleading and false to the readers.

The writer was not present at the banquet on Wednesday night, given in honor of his Excellency the Governor-General of Canada. It was for men only, and these, according to published announcements, had to appear in evening dress. This restriction was subsequently withdrawn and visitors admitted in their ordinary paraphernalia. An excellent program is reported.

The Toronto Press Club treated the out of town visitors with their usual liberality, supplying them with dinner on Friday evening in the Temple building, and then entertaining them to a theatre party at the Royal Alexandra, where "The Liars," an English play, was given in good style.

Saturday morning the C.P.R. gave the publishers and their friends a special trip to Guelph, free, leaving the Royal City on the return trip to Toronto at 6.15 p.m. The day was spent most profitably at the Agricultural College, Principal Creelman in a most courteous and genial manner marshalling the company through all parts of interest. Beginning at the Dairy Buildings, which were in full operation, the visitors had an opportunity to witness the actual operations in butter-making, cheese-making, pasteurizing, skimming, etc., etc. Here they could fill up with buttermilk, and were subsequently treated to biscuits and cheese, and at one o'clock they were set down to a dinner that makes one hungry to think of.

We visited the Live Stock and Poultry departments, the horticultural buildings, where could be seen some fully developed tomatoes and other growths that will not naturally develop for many months yet.

We cannot go into detail. Enough was said by the college lecturers to fill a couple of issues, and many more might be filled in telling what was to be seen. The address by Mr. Zavitz on Grains was highly profitable, and those who could practise carefully the result of five or six years' experiment as to the best times to sow grain in the spring would be profited very largely.

Next holiday season a special course in agricultural teaching is to be given for the benefit of Public school teachers who are able to avail themselves of the privilege, and it was here suggested that School Boards appropriate sufficient money to send their teachers there for the term. This, we think, would be money well invested, and the returns in the way of agricultural instruction would be returned directly by the teacher, whose increased knowledge would fit her infinitely better work in that particular line.

Principal Creelman, all the other Professors, students and college girls stand infinitely higher to-day in the opinions of the press, who will doubtless have greater confidence and interest than ever before in publishing the various bulletins sent out by the Agricultural College.

This visit to the College seems to the writer to have been the most profitable part of the whole Convention program, and we hope ere long to have it repeated.

We are in receipt of a copy of "Industrial Ingersoll" in pamphlet form of twenty-four pages, printed on good paper, well illustrated, and reflecting credit on the Ingersoll Sun, where the work was executed, by our old school mate, Mr. T. A. Bellamy.

TALKED WITH A PIONEER.

We had a call Tuesday from Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Campbell, of Dornoch, and in course of conversation learned that Mr. Campbell is 77 years of age, and Mrs. Campbell must be crawling well up to the three score and ten mark. Mr. Campbell was born in Scotland and came to Glengarry when quite a child. In 1845 he came to Bentinck and took up land near Dornoch, where he has lived nearly all the time ever since. Mrs. Campbell was a Miss McIntosh, sister of the postmaster at Dornoch, and was the first girl who ever came into that hamlet from outside. With her father and mother she came from the township of Esquering, all having made the journey on foot in 1843 or 1844. On the 9th of April, 1856, she was married to Mr. Campbell. There were no roads at the time that could be travelled with a team in summer. Not until about 1855 or 1856 were bears and wolves numerous in the vicinity, when the Campbell family lost 20 sheep and two calves one night. Deer, pigeons and partridge were plentiful. Mr. Campbell came up to this part in company with James Smith, father of William Smith, who died recently at Dornoch. For twenty-five years Mrs. Campbell's father, Mr. McIntosh, was a member of the Sullivan Council. They referred to the great changes since they first moved up here, and incidentally Mr. Campbell mentioned that he tendered for and received the contract of chopping, clearing and corduroying a mile of the Durham Road this side of Allan Park, and that subsequently he chopped and cleared ten miles and a half of the townline between Bentinck and Sullivan, and later on cut down the hills and fitted the road for better travel. The contract, he tells us, was let by one Gission, a Government officer of the time. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are still active and have apparently many years of usefulness before them. We enjoy to hear the pioneers give an account of themselves, and evidently Mr. and Mrs. Campbell enjoyed giving any information we could think to ask about.

ORANGE CONCERT.

The L. O. L. Concert on Tuesday evening last, though not too well attended owing to other attractions, was a good one, and all who availed themselves of the opportunity and attended were treated to a first-class program. Mr. W. Irwin was chairman, which position he filled very acceptably, though called upon unexpectedly owing to the absence of Mr. J. Blyth, Varney, who was unavoidably forced to be absent.

The chief attraction of the evening, Mr. Bert Harvey, Toronto, furnished the fun, and from his first appearance convulsed the audience with roars of laughter. A lightning-change artist, he appeared in "Chinee," Dutch, Irish and Scotch characters without once leaving the stage, and in all his selections kept his hearers bubbling over with merriment. Mr. Harvey is undoubtedly the best singing comedian on the road to-day, and will have no difficulty in getting a return engagement here.

Songs by Miss Brown and Miss Wilson were much appreciated, and they were forced to respond to encores on every occasion.

Mrs. Newton was accompanist, and also rendered two piano selections in her usual masterful way, receiving hearty applause at each appearance.

For the piano, the use of which was kindly granted by Mr. C. Elvidge, the entertainment committee extend hearty thanks.

DURHAM is to have two real cannon poking out their black noses in front of the army. The cannon were secured by H. H. Miller, M. P., and Durham pays the freight. Is the gift worth the powder? We would suggest the cannon be called Ramage and Irwin after Durham's brave and loyal editors.—Chesley Enterprise.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

The anniversary services of the Baptist church, commemorating the fifth year of the building of their magnificent chapel, were held in that edifice on Sunday and Monday last. The Rev. Edgar Allan, of Wingham preached at the Sunday services, morning and evening, and on Monday evening delivered a lecture on "Steps to Success."

Mr. Allan is a man of pleasing personality and possessed of unlimited eloquence and his stand in the various arguments he chose to put forth, the real definition of "Success," though adhering closely to strong religious principles, were not at all bigoted, and his manner of reasoning and finding flaws in the average man's understanding of the word and demonstrating the folly of the modern definition convinced all who heard him, that they were listening to a man who was not treading on unfamiliar ground, or dealing with a subject he knew nothing about.

Dividing the English people into eight periods, the warrior, chivalric, cultured, licentious, religious, then back again to licentiousness, monetary, and intellectual, he dealt briefly with the history of the country from the time of William the Conqueror till the present day.

Mr. Allan thought that a man to be successful should have a clear and distinct understanding as to what it is. If he misunderstood the meaning of the term he could not succeed. The common definition given to the word to "win some high position" he dealt with at some length, illustrating throughout with "imaginary" successful men. The man who goes into business, no matter what, and accumulates a large share of this world's goods is regarded by the world as a successful man.

This, the reverend gentleman thought, could not be true. Out of ten thousand men, according to this definition, not more than one was successful. Can you call the others failures just because they do not rank among our moneyed men?

The definition is too narrow. If our successful men constituted the most intellectual or had in their ranks men of unblemished character, or endowed with undying loyalty or love to God we might recognize the definition, but to-day, Mr. Allan believed, we have many of our so-called "successful" men who could not stand the test and whose very success has depended upon their dishonorable methods.

The business methods of to-day are wrong, and a business man to be successful must generally be a man of no heart. "Get money, honestly if you can, but—get money," seemed to be the watchword.

Another definition of the term, "obtaining what one aims at" or "to accomplish what you set out to do" was shown to be equally erroneous. A man according to this, might set out to do an act, and whether the act be degrading or not, if he accomplishes it, he is a success.

Mr. Allan in dealing with his subject reviewed it from every possible standpoint, and showed the fallacy of the twentieth century definition of the word. Summing up, he thought the true definition to be "filling of the sign for which we are created."

The address lasting over an hour and a half, was never once dull, and was the most complete lecture on that particular subject we have ever heard.

Mr. Newton in a few words, addressed the audience and called upon Mayor Calder, who, after a few preliminary remarks moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Allan, the choir, who dispensed sweet music during the evening, and to the Baptist congregation who made it possible for the people of Durham to hear so interesting and elevating a discourse.
