Assignee's Notice to Creditors.

In the matter of John Clark, of the Town of Durham, in the County of Grey, Implement Agent, Insolvent.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that John Clark, of the Town of Durham, in the County of Grey, carrying on business as an Implement Agent at the said Town of Durham, has made an assign- ment to A. N. McIntosh, of the Town of Durham, Hardware Merchant, under R. S. O. 1897, Chap. 147, of all his estate, credits and effects for general benefit of Creditors.

A meeting of Creditors will be held at the office of W. F. Dunn, Solicitor for the Assignee, in the town of Durham, on Fri- day, the 20th day of March, 1908, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of receiving a statement, and for the ordering of the affairs of the estate generally.

Creditors are requested to file their claims with the Assignee or his Solicitor, with proofs and particulars thereof re- quired by the said Act, on or before the day of such meeting.

Notice is hereby given that after the 10th day of April, 1908, the Assignee will proceed to distribute the assets of the debtor amongst parties entitled thereto, having re- gard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given, and that he will not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose claim he shall not then have notice.

A. N. McINTOSH, Assignee, Durham W. F. DUNN, Solicitor for Assignee, Durham Dated this 11th day of March, 1908.

He Ought to Know.

A well loved priest of San Fran- cisco tells with many a chuckle of an argument among several sailors that he overheard in the aviary in Golden Gate Park. They were debating as to the family connections of a certain bird. One said that it was a skylark and the other insisted that it was not. Finally the first sailor walked over to Father Collins and asked his opinion. Father Collins said that the bird undoubtedly was a skylark.

The sailor went back to his com- panions, elated over his triumph. "Didn't I tell you so?" The holy father says it's a skylark.

"Maybe," said one of the others, not yet ready to yield, "he doesn't know any more about it than we do."

"The deuce he doesn't!" exclaimed the first. "Ain't he a sky pilot?"

Rheumatic Pains Relieved.

B. F. Croker, Esq., now 84 years of age, and for twenty years Justice of the Peace at Martinsburg, Iowa, says: "I am terribly afflicted with sciatica rheumatism in my left arm and right hip. I have used three bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it did me lots of good." For sale at Parker's Drug Store.

GREY COUNTY'S "GRAND OLD MAN."

A Short History of the Life of Mr. James Edge, of Edge Hill, a Prominent Resident of Grey County for Over Sixty Years.

To most of us the hardships endured by the early settlers of Canada are a blank but when fortune favors us and we meet with a man who has battled the storms of half a century or more of Canadian life, a considerable portion of which is fraught with danger and privation, always allies in the settlement of any new country, who among us does not feel like bowing in respect to the persons who have successfully combated them, and who in a great measure are responsible for the enviable position of the Dominion of Canada to day.

Such a person is Mr. James Edge, of this place. Born in Cullenthra, county Wicklow, Ireland, on January 25, 1823, he has just celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday, and, with his estimable wife, is still hale and hearty, living on the homestead he hewed for himself out of the forest over sixty years ago.

In the year 1844, at the age of 21, in company with his parents, Robert Edge and Mary Ann Neseum, he emigrated to this country, settling on the Garafraxa road, four miles north, near the Rocky Saugeen. The country was then very sparsely settled, and life was a hard one, but, with a determination not to be defeated, he stuck to his task, and now, in his old age, lives to enjoy the fruits of his early labors, honored and respected by all who know him.

Mr. and Mrs. James Edge

In the spring of 1845 he went to Milton, making the journey in the style of the day, on foot, and a ride sometimes, if lucky, and engaged as a harvest hand. While here his first great sorrow was experienced; the death of his mother, which occurred on the first day he labored in that then far away country, and about which he was ignorant until his return home the following fall.

In the year 1846 he settled on the farm on which he now resides, and two years later married Miss Maria Davis, who was born at Stonehouse, near Quebec, on August 8, 1828, and at 20 years of age came to Glenelg, settling near the home of her future husband. To this union were born ten children, five of whom are living

THE PRESS, THE PUBLIC AND THE PARTIES.

The meeting in Toronto last week of the Canadian Press Association gave distinct emphasis to the growing sense of responsibility to the public which dominates and directs the Press of Canada. To the public rather than to the political parties is that responsibility felt. More than ever before the party news papers stand for independence within party lines. They are loyal to what is essential in historic Liberalism or in historic Conservatism, but the increasing determination they resolve not to be dragged no less volens in the train of their party or to dance attendance on any group of men who for the moment chance to be prominent or busy in the affairs of this of that party organization. If they are not consulted by the leaders and is they are not admitted to the caucus they decline to have their approval taken for granted. If they approve of a policy or support a line of action it is because it carries their judgment as being in the main in the public interest and consistent with the party's best traditions.

From the public point of view this independence in party journalism is a hopeful sign. The modern drift of party leadership is set so steadily in the direction of autocracy, and the caucus so frequently kills freedom of discussion and independence of judgment on the floor of the House, that it becomes the more necessary for the Press of the parties to claim and to exercise the rights of free speech within party lines, if democracy itself is not to be strangled in the very home of free institutions.

For the Press itself this attitude of self-respecting independence is necessary if it is to draw to its service men of intelligence and force. The money rewards of newspaper work do not compensate for the drudgery it involves. It would be intolerable had it not other attractions than those of the salary list. But those opportunities for large public service are destroyed the moment a journal betrays what it feels to be mere short-sighted party —Mrs. Jopp and Mrs. W. Davis, of Manitoba; Mrs. W. Ritchie, Edge Hill; Mrs. W. Scarf, of Aberdeen, and William, the only son, on the homestead.

Their golden wedding, celebrated nearly ten years ago, was one of the most joyous affairs ever seen in this locality, and of the many present none put more heart into the festivities than the venerable couple themselves. Though Mr. and Mrs. Edge had decided to let the anniversary of their fiftieth year of married life pass quietly by, not so with their friends and neighbors. These worked silently and alone, and on the evening of December 8, 1898, surprised the genial couple by assembling at their home and presenting them with a handsome quadruple-plated silver tea service, as a small recognition of the esteem in which they were held.

Mr. Edge was for eight years in charge of the Edge Mills here, and is now agent for the Edge estates. For several years he sat as councillor, also serving as collector, and for fourteen consecutive years was reeve of Glenelg, till his defeat by the late J. H. Hunter, in 1874.

He was then engaged for the task of valuating Grey county, which task he accepted on the condition that he name his own colleagues. These were the late Thomas Gamey, of Osprey, and James Graham, of Sydenham. The valuating, though a most difficult undertaking, was performed in a manner satisfactory to all.

The following year was when he was appointed treasurer, a position he held for 26 years, and one he discharged most faithfully and honorably.

For nearly 50 years he was president of the South Grey Agricultural Society, an organization that owes its success very largely to his indefatigable efforts and business ability.

Mr. Edge is also a justice of the peace, and during the days of the Grange Order dispensed goods for that organization to the amount of over $3,000 annually. As postmaster for over 25 years he has always been an efficient and obliging official, a statement with which all who lift their mail from the post office at Edge Hill, four miles from here, will acquiesce.

A Conservative in politics, he has been a staunch supporter of right, and has done much to further the success of the party in this riding. Though on several occasions pressed to allow his name to go for nomination, he has respectfully, though firmly, refused, preferring the quiet of home life to political honors.

With such a record, why should Durhamites not feel proud of their pioneer, who, to day, despite his four score and five years, three score of which have been spent in public life, stands unblemished by any deed of wrong doing; who is just as jovial, good-natured and willing to lend a helping hand to some mortal in distress as in days gone by? Surely we have a right to call him the "Grand Old Man" of Grey County.

expediency. The Press is too big to be the slave of the political opportunist. It was designed for larger service and unless it is true to itself and to its own best ideals it will forfeit at the last even the poor ends of money returns and party influence for which it sells its soul. The public first, and the party only as a means to public ends—this is the sphere of service in which the Press can both save itself and minister to the deepest needs of the political party with which it is allied.—Toronto Globe.

WANTED THE SAME BRAND. (Calgary Eye Opener.) When Mr. Crossley was holding forth down in Midnapore on the evils of drink he had two glasses on the table, one containing water and the other whiskey. He took a worm from a tin canister and put it first into the tumbler of water, where it wriggled round in great style. He then took the worm out of the water and put it into the whiskey, where it immediately died.

"Now, then, dear friends, you see what the whiskey has done to this poor worm, it has killed it, and it will do the same in course of time to anyone here who is in the habit of drinking whiskey."

At this part of the discourse Mr. P. J. McGonigle, the eminent journalist and horse thief rose up in the audience and asked the evangelist whose blend of whiskey he had been using? Mr. Crossley looked at the empty bottle and said:

"It is John Jamieson's blend," "By gum," exclaimed McGonigle, "I must lay in a case of that tonight. I've been troubled with worms for five years."

Got an order too. Two commercial travellers were comparing notes. "I have been out three weeks," said the first, "and have only got four orders." "That beats me," said the other; "I have been out four weeks and have only got one order, and that's from the firm to come home."
