Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.

The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.

The reason is that at a period when asgirl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.

It is a food that builds and keeps up a girl's strength.

At Liberty to Scream.

It was on a ferry boat plying be tween Sydney and Manly, one of that city's beautiful suburbs. Every seat was occupied. Each occupant felt the influence and prepared for an enjoyable trip when a lank girl fifteen appeared, dragging by the hand a screaming child. There she stood, glowering. A mild lady sug gested the child might be in pain. An old bachelor muttered that people who had charge of children should keep them at home. Low voiced but distinct imprecations were now rife. She took not the slightest heed of the muttering or the bawling, which was now at the highest pitch, till the suggestion was offered that medicine would do it good. Then she arose in her wrath, as it were, and, giving the child a vigorous shake, and said: "Ethel, cry as loud as you like.

TRAITS OF LOCOMOTIVES.

I've paid your fare."-London Tit-

It is a remarkable truth, and might be profitable in helping us to make fair allowance for the difference be tween the temperaments of different illness. The funeral took place to with Mr. C. E. Tryon. men-that every locomotive engine running on a railway has a distinct individuality and character of its

It is perfectly well known to experienced practical engineers that if were made at the same time, of the had long been a member. There was same power, for the same purpuse, of a large turnout of the members of the same materials, in the same the Ord r to pay the last office of refactory, each of those locomotive engines would come out with its own peculiar whims and ways, only ascer-tainable by experience, One engine will take a great meal of coal and water at once; another will not hear of such a thing, but will insist on being coaxed by spadefuls and bucketfuls. One is disposed to start off, when required, at the top of his speed; another must have a little time to warm to his work, and to get well into it.

These peculiarities are so accurately mastered by skilful drivers that only particular men can persuade particular engines to do their best. It would seem as if some of these "excellent monsters" declared, on being brought out of the shed, "If it's Smith who is to drive me, won't go. If its my friend Stokes am agreeable to anything!"

All locomotive engines are lowspirited in damp and foggy weather. They have a great satisfaction in their work when the air is crisp and frosty. At such a time they are very cheerful and brisk; but they strongly object to haze and mists. These are points of character on which they are all united. It is in their peculiarities and varieties of character that they are most remark-

A COURAGEOUS WOMAN.

"I made five calls yesterday, and four out of five women I called on were 'not receiving,' 'r remarked a busy wife and mother recently. Naturally she was somewhat irritated "If anyone takes the trouble to call on me," she said, "I see them, no matter what day it is, and in the dress I have on at the time."
