ITEMS OF INTEREST.The Age of Niagara.

The question, always interesting for the light it throws on the past history of the earth, has had many answers. The latest is that of Dr. J. W. Spencer, who, from recent studies on the spot, finds that the mean rate of recession of the falls at present is 4.2 feet a year, and that has been the rate for approximately 227 years. But owing to the fact that originally the waters of Lake Erie only were discharged over the falls, giving only one-fifteenth of the present water supply, the rate of recession was at first much slower. A sudden widening of the gorge above Foster's Flat indicates the position of the falls when the other Great Lakes began to discharge into Lake Erie. From this data, Dr. Spencer calculates the entire age of the falls at thirty nine thousand years. The cutting, with the power of the four akes, is estimated to have lasted thirty five hundred years.

New Anesthetic.

A despatch from Toronto says: The other day at the General Hospital, an anaesthetic, named Folavine, which had never before been used in Canada, was tried on a man who had to be operated on for a serious injury to his bowels.

Frank Simpson was taken to the hospital some time ago suffering from a terrible laceration of the bowels through being kicked by a horse. Three times had the man been operated on, the ordinary anesthetic being used. Another operation was considered necessary, but it was found he could not survive an application of the same anesthetic and still live.

Dr. Norman Anderson, of the surgical staff, then decided to try the preparation discovered by Fourneau, Parisian chemist, which contains no cocaine, yet deprives the person of any sensation of pain, although they are still in full possession of their senses.

Dr. Anderson made an injection of fluid into the sac covering the patient's spinal cord and successfully united several portions of the bowels. Simpson afterwards said he felt no pain whatever, although he had been conscious all the time.

This preparation had been used by Prof. Barker, of University College, London, England, and out of two hundred cases only eight had failed. This new anesthetic does away with the ill effects of the unconscious producing kind.

Chinese Translating Machine.

Donald H. Miller, a Columbia student, has invented a machine to translate mysterious Chinese into English by the mere touching of keys resembling those on a typewriter. Miller also says it will translate any other language. Professors of Oriental languages at Columbia have had scores of midnight conferences in young Miller's rooms, investigating his remarkable discovery and experimenting with it.

As a result, they yesterday announced that they believed the machine practicable, and that it would eventually revolutionize trade with China. The contrivance resembles an adding machine. It has keys bearing Chinese characters. When the key is struck on the other end leaves on the paper an impression of all the possible meanings of the character.

Miller has been a student of Chinese for two years. He was graduated from Columbia last summer, but is continuing his work in order to obtain a degree of Ph. D.

Cause of Stomach Troubles.

When a man has trouble with his stomach you may know that he is eating more than he should or of some article of food or drink not suited to his age or occupation, or that his bowels are habitually constipated. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to regulate the bowels and improve the digestion and see if the trouble does not disappear. Ask for a free sample. Sold at Parker's Drug Store.

How Cold 80 Degrees of Frost is.

It is difficult for us to form any conception of the degree of cold represented by the 80 degrees of frost recorded from certain parts of Russia.

Sir Leopold McCauley tells how in one of his Arctic expeditions a sailor was foolish enough to do some outdoor work at precisely this temperature. His hands froze, and when he rushed into the cabin and plunged one of them into a basin of water so cold was the hand that the water was instantly converted into a block of ice.

At 25 degrees, Dr. Kane says, "the moustache and under lip form pendulous beads of dangling ice. Put out your tongue, and it instantly freezes to this icy crust. Your chin has a trick of freezing to your upper jaw by the biting aid of your beard. My eyes have often been so glued as to show that even a wink was unsafe."

A LITTLE HUMOR.Some Tongue Twisters.

"A glowing gleam growing green."
The bleak breeze blighted the bright bloom blossoms."

"Flesh of freshly dried flying fish."

It is simply impossible for anyone to repeat these three sentences fast. They are the gems of a collection of tongue twisters that an elocutionist had made. And almost equally difficult are the following, taken at random from the elocutionist's collection of more than 200 tongue twisters.

"Six thick thistle sticks."

"Two toads tried to trot to Tedbury."

"Give Grimes Jim's great gilt gig whip."

"Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slickly six sickly silky snakes."

"She stood at the door of Mrs. Smith's fish sauce shop welcoming him in."

When Father Shaves.

The most exciting time we know

At home on Sunday morning,

And keeps all upon the go,

All other duties scorning.

Occurs about the hour of ten,

When solemn-faced and grave,

Our father yawns and stretches, then

We know he's going to shave.

And when he cuts himself, oh, my! There's trouble in the air,
Then everyone of us must fly,

For father will declare:

"This wouldn't happen if you'd make those noisy kids behave!"

Oh, yes, it makes us youngsters quake

When father starts to shave!

We know the danger's over when

Upon the door he knocks;

And mother goes to him again

With powder-puff and box.

Though generally he lets us shirk,

One hour we must be grave,

For each of us has got to work

When father starts to shave.

How to Stop it.

"There is a cat who sits every night on our back fence," he explained to the lawyer, "and he yowls and yowls. Now I don't want to get into any trouble with any neighbor, but I would like to know if I'm not justified in putting a stop to it."

"Certainly," replied the lawyer.

"I am well within my rights if I shoot the cat, then?" he inquired gleefully.

"Um—well, I would hardly say that," answered the lawyer. "The cat does not belong to you, as I understand it."

"No."

"And the fence does?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, I think I may safely say that you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."
