THE MERRY WIDOW HAT.

This rented suit must needs be dried before I take it back, you bet 'Why don't I ride with her?" you say, No-not because we've had a spat; She loves me in the same old way, But wears a merry widow hat.

That's why I asked to ride with you, I didn't think it would rain ; Drive faster up the avenue,

I'd like to wear this shirt again. I'll have to have these trousers pressed, I shiver like a drowning rat; And just to think that she's my guest Who wears that merry widow hat,

The blame thing's twenty inches wide Across the brim, and has two quills That take up all the room inside This cab her hat completely fills. There was no room in there for me,

She was afraid I'd crush it flat; And so I sought your company To save that merry widow hat.

Excuse me, cabby, if I swear. Just take a look at her, and see How snug and warm she is in there. Then take another look at me Why, Job would lese his patience now, If on this box with you he sat With water dripping from his brow, To save a merry widow hat.

If I don't catch my ceath of cold And lie upon a bed of pain, It's not my fault-as you behold, Confound it! Will it always rain? Next time you come to call on us-You have the number of her flat-
