Mysterious Note in Green Bottle.

(Mail and Empire.) Chatham, Ont., May 15.—Chief of Police John Holmes received a mysterious letter from Wesley Riseborough, of Kent Bridge this morning.
In his letter, Mr. Riseborough states that while plowing on his farm near the bank of the river he found a large green bottle, which had recently been washed up by the ebb of the tidal flood. The bottle was sealed, and upon opening it he found the following note:—
"We are sinking fast. Tell the old folks we are drowned in the river.
Signed, J. W. Staples, Wardsville, P.
S.—If you find my body, put it by the tree in the churchyard. Who ever finds this will please follow directions. Good-bye, we are sinking fast. A. W. S., Wardsville, March 8." The chief is investigating the affair, and is at present trying to locate the relatives of the writer of the mysterious note.
The letter referred to in the above despatch is probably the work of some pin-headed rural joker. The Thames River at Wardsville is but a few yards wide and is navigable only by row boats and canoes. If capsized it would have been as easy for the writer of the note to devise means for getting ashore as it was to write and set afloat a lengthily-worded note.

How Keir Hardie Rose.

At twelve years of age Keir Hardie, the well-known Labor member of the British Parliament, could neither read or write, and the only kind of schooling he received was a rough drilling of the elements of reading, which he obtained by studying books and notices in shop windows. Writing and shorthand Mr.
Hardie taught himself, practising the latter in the coal mine with the aid of a white stone blackened with smoke from his pit lamp and used as a tablet, upon which he scratched the symbols with a pin. At twenty-two he left the pits and became secretary of the miners' union, and two years later he obtained a position as sub editor of a local newspaper at Cumnock, the town in which his present home is situated.

haler, mix Hyomei air with your in-

LIVE WITHOUT WORK.

A man who answered advertisements in cheap "story papers" has had some interesting experiences.
He learned that by sending one dollar to a Yankee he could get a cure for drunkenness. Sure enough he did. It was "to take the pledge and keep it." Later on he sent fifty two cent stamps to find out how to raise turnips successfully. He found out —"just take hold of the tops and pull." Being young, he wished to marry, and sent thirty-four one cent stamps to a Chicago firm for information as to how to make an impression. When the answer came it read, "sit down on a pan of dough." It was a little rough but he was a patient man and thought he would try succeed. Next advertisement he answered read "How to double your money in six months." He was told to convert his money into bills, fold them, and he would see his money doubled. Next he sent for twelve useful household articles and he got a package of needles. He was slow to learn, so he sent one dollar to find out how to get rich. "Work like the devil and never spend a cent." And that stopped him, but his brother wrote to find out how to write a letter without pen or ink. He was told to use a lead pencil. He paid one dollar to learn how to live without work, and was told on a postal card to "fish for suckers as we do."

NOT ANNOYED WHEN TRAVEL- LING.

A well bred woman is never annoyed when travelling alone, because she does nothing to make herself conspicuous, and if she needs direction or aid she does not apply to strange fellow travelers, but to a uniformed man connected in some capacity with the place in which she finds herself.
Under no consideration whatever should a woman address a strange man unless it be civilly to answer a question or comment on his part.
But her response should be made in such a manner as to check further advances from him.
Any conversation with strangers is unnecessary, for in the well equipped trains of the present there is always some official who can do for her or answer needful inquiries. A brakeman will know whether the train stops at the station to which the woman wishes to go. He, too, will open a window or ventilator should a traveler wish this done. If a fellow traveler offers to open a window, it is not necessary to refuse severely.
This is such a common courtesy that it is usually accepted and the person thanked, that being the end of the matter. It is easy to tell from the man's manner whether he is doing it to open conversation or merely to offer a common courtesy.
In a drawing room or sleeping car there is the porter to fetch and carry, and he should be called upon for such service. At the end of the trip he is to be tipped either 25 or 50 cents or a dollar, according to the services he has given and the length of the trip.
A woman alone frequently finds herself placed at the same table with a man in the dining car, and the fact need cause her no uneasiness. While it cannot be called good form to enter into conversation with him, she need not behave with aggressive indifference. It is perfectly proper that he should ask her for the salt or pepper, for instance, or that she should request similar slight favors of him if the waiter is not present. The opportunity thus given for conversation is not taken advantage of by a well bred man. If one proves lacking in breeding his impersonal questions should be answered civilly, but not in a manner to encourage conversation. It is always a wise provision for a woman traveling alone, if her journey is a long one, requiring staying overnight in a strange city, to telegraph ahead for a room or even to write for it before leaving home.
This entirely prevents the serious awkwardness of being refused if she arrives late in the evening. If this has not been done it is not necessary for her to go to the office herself, for she can send a boy from the woman's reception room requesting that the clerk will come to her.
When travelling the proper manner of dressing is most important, for the general appearance has much to do with the service and attention that are given a woman. To dress elaborately makes a woman conspicuous, and this is undesirable. Sloppiness or the wearing of old clothes is the other extreme. An appropriate toilet is a well cut tailor dress, with a medium size or small dark hat, furs in winter or a long silk dust coat in summer.

Good Words for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

People everywhere take pleasure in testifying to the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Mrs.
Edward Phillips of Barclay, Md., writes: "I wish to tell you that I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My little girl Catherine, who is two years old, has been taking this remedy whenever she has had a cold since she was two months old.
About a month ago I contracted a dreadful cold myself, but I took Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was soon as well as ever." This Remedy is for sale at Parker's Drug Store.

SUICIDE AT FOREST.

(Toronto News)
Forest, May 1.—The citizens were shocked this morning when the announcement was made that Montague
A. Smith, of the banking firm of L.
H. Smith & Co., and Liberal candidate for East Lambton, had committed suicide. The act was committed about eight o'clock in rear of the bank. When J. D. Livingston, the accountant, came to the bank he found a letter on the desk addressed to himself in Mr. Smith's handwriting, telling of the deed. Mr. Livingston at once searched the premises, and found Mr. Smith in the lavatory, dead, with three bullet holes in his head and a revolver in his hand. Dr.
Totter was called, and on examination found another bullet wound in his breast.
Mr. Smith was apparently in his usual good spirits until the last moment. At eleven o'clock last night he completed arrangements for holding a series of political meetings, the first to be held at Florence this evening. This morning he arose early, went to the livery and ordered a team for the trip, and then went to the bank, where he wrote his farewell letter. The letter referred to the mental strain caused by his position as candidate and other matters.
Mr. Smith was fifty-seven years of age, and unmarried. His business affairs are all in good shape, both in connection with the bank and privately. No inquest will be held, Coroner Totter giving sudden mental aberration as the cause of his committing the act.

IN EAST LAMBTON.
(Toronto News)
nouncement was made that Montague
A. Smith, of the banking firm of L.
H. Smith & Co., and Liberal candi-
ston at once searched the premises,
and found Mr. Smith in the lavatory,
head and a revolver in his hand. Dr.
breast.
Mr. Smith was apparently in his
holding a series of political meetings,
as candidate and other matters.
Mr. Smith was fifty-seven years of
connection with the bank and privately. No inquest will be held,
committing the act.
