NO APPETITE

Your Food Disagrees. You're Tired—Lifeless. Skin is Yellow.

You'll Feel Worse Every Day Unless You Brace Up Quick. The Best Treatment is Ferrozone.

Every day comes the good news of wonderful cures with Ferrozone. In Peterboro it worked marvels for Louis Mee an entirely well.

"About three years ago" says Mr. Mee an, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim. It strengthens the stomach, cures indigestion, prevents headaches—guarantees good health. Thousands use Ferrozone—they all improve—get better health—look better—feel better; try it yourself—sold in 50 cent boxes by all druggists.

CHILD'S UNDERSTANDING.

In a former article were mentioned the beginning and gradual development of the special senses in infants, and the pleasures derived from watching this progressive taking on of the attributes of a sentient being.

As yet, however, up to the end of the first year, the baby might be a cub or a puppy or a kitten, so far as it manifests any distinctive human qualities.

This statement will be indignantly denied by any mother of a six months' old child, especially if it is her first; for long before this time she will have found numerous evidences of the possession of uncanny, even superhuman, intelligence. But to the cool, unbiased onlooker, its signs of pleasure and disgust, its cries and gurgles, its kicks and its reaching for what engages the eye are only signs of reflex action, showing on greater intelligence than is possessed by the kitten that reaches after a string or pats a ball. Something more than reflex movement is necessary to prove intelligence.

A cry is usually the first evidence of physical life in the new-born, and articulate speech is one of the first signs of an awakening soul. The dawning of intelligence—which is the faculty of putting two and two together—is seen when the baby learns that crying brings food, or petting, or attention of some desirable sort.

The time when actual speech begins is very variable. Usually, by the end of the first year the baby knows a few words or uses certain definite sounds to express definite wants, and by the end of the second year its command of language is, as a rule, ample for its needs.

The cause of backwardness in speaking in a child, which seems to be of average intelligence, is not all ways easy to determine, but one should always think of the possibility of deafness. "Tongue-tie" may be a cause of defective pronunciation, but never of backwardness in speaking, nor of dumbness. If the cause is found to reside in deafness, the child should always be made to look at the speaker. In this way it will unconsciously become a lip reader as it learns to talk; and this is an accomplishment that will stand it in good stead in later life, even if treatment is eventually successful in removing the cause of the deafness.

It is a great temptation to encourage "cunning" baby errors of speech. Perhaps the best course is neither to foster nor to fight them but to let them die their natural death.—Youth's Companion.

Never Pare a Corn.

It's a sure way to get blood poisoning. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor. It's safe, painless and sure to cure in a day.

SICK-ROOM RULES.

Never whisper in an invalid's room. To most people it is intensely irritating. If you want to say anything that is best for the patient not to hear, go into another room to say it.

Don't allow household annoyances to be spoken of in the sick-room. Only cheerful topics should be discussed.

Remember that when a person is lying on his back he is deprived of the protection of his eyelids from the light; therefore, blinds and curtains should be adjusted with this fact in view.

SPIDER BITES.

The question whether the bite of a spider can have serious effects on the human system having been again raised, the French scientific journal, La Nature, replies, through a physician, that spider bites are not dangerous. Nevertheless, the doctor says that in some rare cases the bite of a spider may produce inflammation to require local treatment. The best plan is to wash the bitten place with pure water, and, if practicable, apply a little antiseptic lotion. In the vast majority of cases the bite even of a large spider causes nothing more than a slight local irritation.

Poor tea is poor economy—use "Salada" and you will appreciate the excellent qualities of high-grade tea.

REMARKABLE COLLISIONS

One of the oddest accidents on record occurred at Pound Creek, New Jersey, some months ago. A train laden with holiday-makers was crossing the trestle bridge across the river, when a huge mud scow swept by the flood-tide smashed against the carriages. Every footboard was torn away and the windows smashed.

The miracle is that the train was not upset altogether and thrown into the creek. As it was, there was an ugly panic, and a number of people hurt in rushing for the doors at the ends of the cars.

This may be the first instance on record of a train and boat colliding, but a collision which happened at Portsmouth a few years ago was in every way far more strange.

A night attack by torpedo-destroyers was in progress. A destroyer, with all lights out, was tearing along from the West, keeping as close to the shore as possible to avoid the flare of the moving search-lights, when suddenly the full blaze of a light fell right across her deck. Blinded by a glare, the steersman turned too soon. Instead of entering the harbor mouth, the long, lean craft dashed at full speed up the shelving beach, driving half her length out of water.

A road runs along the beach, and a cyclist happened to be spinning along at the very moment. The black bows suddenly shot across his path, and his machine hit him so that he fell off. He is certainly the only cyclist in the world who ever collided with a vessel of His Majesty's Navy.

Ships sometimes collide with icebergs, but it does not fall to the lot of every vessel to run into a floating island. This is what happened to the three thousand-ton tramp Vigo off the mouth of the Orinoco. The area of the island is said to have been nearly half an acre, and the ship crashed into the very middle of it before she could be stopped. Fortunately, the only thing damaged was the island.

Collisions with fish are less rare, but some odd accidents of the kind are on record. The big Japanese cruiser Takachiba, when off Korea, in March, 1904, ran straight into an enormous whale. She was doing eighteen knots at the time, and the shock was so heavy that almost every man of the crew was knocked down. The unlucky whale was nearly cut in two.

Trains occasionally perform strange antics. The Cambrian Railway was the scene of a very odd collision a few months ago. A heavy goods train was leaving Abermule Station when in some way the last four waggons became uncoupled. As it was pitch dark, the driver did not at first notice his loss. When he did he slackened speed. Almost at once the last waggons, which had gained terrific speed down a long incline, dashed into the rear of his train. Three men were killed, and the damage was very extensive.

One horse-box was thrown off its wheels into an adjacent field, yet its occupants, men and horses, were unhurt. This train actually collided with itself.

The freakish results of railway collisions are notorious. Not long ago two trains met end on near Chicago. The engine of one was left balanced right on top of the other engine in such a way that the weight of one man was enough to set the ponderous bulk of the top locomotive gently swinging. In another case a small shunting engine met a huge steam plough, and, aided by the slant in front of the plough, ran right up on top of it. It was lifted down with a crane, neither locomotive being much the worse.

For a sequence of collisions, it would be very difficult to beat the following: One spring day a char-a-banc, with eight passengers, ran into a bank and upset on the road near St. Denis. An officer drilling soldiers near by despatched a man to fetch a doctor.

The soldier galloped off in a frantic hurry, and rode straight into a heavy dray. His horse was killed, and he was pitched nearly thirty feet. The driver of the dray was knocked out of his cart and run over. The dray horse bolted, and smashed into an electric tram-car, breaking up the dray. At the smash a cab horse took fright and ran away, running into a van. In all, ten people were badly hurt.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Vegetable Constipation Cure.

Because they contain mercury and mineral salts, many pills are harsh. The easiest and safest laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. They clean the stomach, intestines and bowels—drive out waste matter, tone the kidneys and forever cure constipation. As a general tonic and system cleanser nothing is so mild and efficient as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold everywhere in 25c. boxes.

A promising youth recently surprised his father by asking, "Father, do you like mother?" "Why, yes, of course." "And she likes you?" "Of course she does." "Did she ever say so?" "Many a time, my son." "Did she marry you because she loved you?" "Certainly she did." The boy scrutinized his parents closely, and, after a long pause, asked:—"Well, was she near-sighted then as she is now?"
