MAGISTRATE SPEAKS FOR ZAM-BUK

Magistrate Perry, of Goldfields, B.C., believes in making a good thing known. Writing of Zam-Buk, the great household balm, he says: "After a very fair trial I have used Zam-Buk extensively and in every case it cured a skin rash of five years' standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for. I would certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in his home." The magistrate is quite right. Every home needs Zam-Buk! Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, blood poisoning and all skin diseases. All stores and druggists sell it at 50 cents a box. Sure cure for piles.

DON'T NEGLECT THAT SORE!

A Chicago man has just died from blood poisoning arising from neglect of a small sore. Don't neglect a cut, a patch of eczema, or an open sore of any kind. The air is full of poison germs, waiting to start up their evil results in neglected sores, wounds, etc. In Zam-Buk is safety. Zam-Buk is so highly antiseptic that applied to any skin disease or injury it makes blood poisoning impossible. In using Zam-Buk you have three processes going on at once for Zam-Buk is healing, soothing and antiseptic. Try it without delay.

A GENUINE OFFER.

TEST ZAM-BUK AT OUR EXPENSE!

We appreciate the position taken by the man or woman who says: "If your preparation is what you claim, you should have no objection to letting us try it before buying our money on it." To every person taking this view we send one stamp (to pay return postage) and name and date of this paper to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, and we will mail you a free trial box of Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is purely herbal, suitable for the delicate skin of little children, yet powerful enough to heal chronic sores of long years' standing. All druggists and stores, 50c. per box, 3 for $1.25.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Hutton Hill.

I read this article in an American paper and know it is the truth, and think there ought to be more said on this subject. Hope the Editor will allow me space in his paper for it:—

The use of tobacco has a fearful blighting effect upon boys and young men. Stunted youth, flabby flesh, complexion, bony cheeks, sunken eyes, vigor gone, shambling gait, fickle appetite, dull comprehension, lack of interest in things, and premature ripeness, like that of a diseased apple, are among the signs of injury carried about by thousands of boy smokers, who are striving to show themselves men, by proving themselves very foolish children. At Edinburgh Reformatory, out of eighty boys there was not one who had not been a smoker or chewer, and most of them had done both. In the Blakely Reformatory, near Manchester, England, out of thirty boys who were admitted soon after the opening, twelve had been smokers, eight chewers, and two confessed they had stolen tobacco, or money with which to buy it. Dr. Jackson gives a case of a boy who used tobacco so excessively that he killed himself in a most horrible manner. Before he died such disorganization of the tissue took place as to breed vermin all over his body, and he died in the most horrible torture. The same authority tells of a boy smoker ten years of age, so worn and wasted in flesh as to be disgusting to look at. As often as twice in twenty-four hours, for more than two years, he had epileptic fits, which had ended nearly in the destruction of his intellect. In a short time after having been visited by his doctor he died.

Says a prominent physician: "I never observed such pallid faces, and so many marks of declining health, nor even knew so many hectic habits and consumptive affections as of late years; and I trace this alarming inroad on young constitutions principally to the pernicious custom of smoking cigars."

"He that soweth to his flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption."—Gal. VI 8.

Tobacco is the admitted cause of eighty diseases, including diphtheria tremens, palsy, heart disease, consumption, cancers of the lower lip and tongue, and kills over twenty thousand in our land every year. It corrupts the blood, injures and some times destroys the sight, memory and hearing; it depraves the appetite—the use of it frequently exerting a desire for stimulants, and decreasing a relish for healthy food. The Bible positively prohibits any course that results in physical or moral injury to ourselves or others, and in thunder tones says: "Thou shalt not kill."

But the common use of tobacco, by diminishing blood, muscle, health and strength inevitably shortens life, which is a violation of the above command. Every man who knowingly brings upon himself disease and death is a suicide.

Dry and sultry weather. Rain needed badly.

Roots are suffering for want of rain. Threshing is the order of the day, and unclean, hot work it is these dry and hot days.

Water is getting scarce in many places, and cattle have to be driven some distance by some watering.

Our town is busy and business is looking up for the future.

Barber Ganey is installed in Messrs. McArthur's new shop, and has first-class accommodation for his numerous customers now.

Our mill is at a stand still for want of water.

The sink hole between here and Saugen Junction is causing trouble again to railway men, but a few car loads of gravel will be apt to set it all right again.

Dr. and Mrs. Dixon left for the West the beginning of this week. They intend to go up as far as Edmonton, Sask., and other points before returning.

We hear a large number of the young men who went on the harvest excursion to the West can not make as much as will pay their way back. It appears too many landed in one section of that large country.

Persons in the habit of putting letters in the letter box without stamps, but throwing in the postage loose, will bear in mind that the postmaster need not forward them to their destination, and are cautioned from hence forth and forever more not to commit the deed again. Some may be doing it from being ignorant of the law, while others do it by thinking the postmaster is a good natured fellow and obliging in all respects.

We notice that the Corner man is again criticising severely Miller's address recently given in Durham. It's a pity the delegates did not select the Corner man as the Standard Bearer of the Conservative Party, then they might be assured that they would have a man without fault or blemish, whose election would be safe and sure to stay at home for the purpose of writing good long budgets for the press.

Quite a number from here attended the Exhibition in Toronto during the past week. Amongst them were Mrs. John McArthur, of this town, and others.

Barrister Dixon, of Walkerton, visited his son, Dr. Dixon, of this place, for a few days lately.

Robt. Reily, of Nelson, B. C., is at present visiting his mother, who has been unwell for some time and not much improved in health yet.

John McKinnon, Jr., of Top Cliff, left on Monday, 14th inst., to attend Normal School at Stratford, Ont.

Mr. John Allan, of Egremont, gave his numerous customers a call recently in this locality selling his cure-all medicine. Mr. Allan meets with success wherever his medicines are tested.

John Stoddard's fine brick mansion is approaching completion.

Our new station master in this town seems to be well up to his business, and is a gentleman in every respect.

The C.P.R. must be doing good business, as we notice crowded vans generally during the past couple of weeks.

It is too bad to be keeping the poor stage driver still running the usual time, as he is now cut off from getting any passengers or anything else but the mail.

Mr. Martin Stonehouse was the loser of a fine cow lately by being run over while trespassing on the railway track. It would be well for those who are so fortunate as to have the railroad coming through their premises to be on the look out for the purpose of keeping their stock from coming in contact with the engine.

Last Sunday was children's day in our churches, and quite a number of both old and young availed themselves of the opportunity coming to church, for what suited the youth suited the aged also.

Southliners are blessing Councillor John A. McMillan, of Glenelg, for repairing some of the bad hills lately.

Mr. Duncan McAulley, of Vancouver, B. C., and his sister, Miss Mary McAulley, of Toledo, are visiting their aged mother and other friends of this place at present.

The funeral of Mrs. Donald McLean, Proton Station, took place on Tuesday, 9th inst., to McKinnon's cemetery, south line, Artemesia. Mrs. McLean was a sister to Mrs. John McMillan, south line, and the news of her sister's death came to her unawares, as deceased was visiting here some two weeks ago a strong and healthy woman in the prime of life. She leaves a lonely husband and large family to mourn her loss.

Died, at the General Hospital, Toronto, while going under and operation for some internal trouble, on the 4th Sept. inst., Mr. Chas. McArthur, of Dover Court Road, Toronto, at the age of 46 years. His numerous friends throughout this section of country will, with regret, hear of his death. He leaves a young wife and small family to mourn his death.

"THE RESTORATION OF CHRISTIANITY" AND "THE NEW TREOLOGY."

(By Rev. Wm. Farquharson, B. D.)

Books like milestones are indicators both of direction and distance. They are at once springs and streams. Through them the thoughts that flow from the mind are traceable all the way from their source in the upper fountains to the boundless ocean to which they tend.

Two strikingly characteristic books have lately come under notice which are related not only as milestones but as source and stream in a great movement of thought. One of these dates back as far as 1553 or seven years earlier than the establishment of Presbyterianism in Scotland, the other is so recent that it may be described as but of yesterday. Both deal with the subject of Christianity and both make an earnest effort to define its essence and restore it to its original vitality. One is an all but forgotten work entitled "The Restoration of Christianity"; the other is on the much talked of subject, "The New Theology." One is the work of Michael Servetus, of Villeneuve, the other is by a well known minister of London, England. The three and a half centuries that have elapsed between the publication of these books have wrought changes that are marvellous. Yet more wonderful than all the changes are the marks that tell that the writers are moved by similar motives, and that they approach the great religious questions from the same point of view. As in medical research Servetus made discoveries as to the circulation of the blood, which with all the crudities of his theories, gives him a place in the line of investigators who paved the way for the work of Harvey, so in his bold speculations he takes his place among the fathers of the New Theology.

Nothing more clearly marks the change wrought in men's minds during those centuries than the reception given to the work of Servetus compared with that awarded to modern workers of a like class. When "The Restoration of Christianity" was published it was with the greatest difficulty that a printer could be secured. When Arnoullet de Vienne was at last persuaded to undertake the task the work had to be done with the utmost secrecy. Neither place of printing nor name of author was impressed on the title page, though the enigmatical letters M. S. V. on the last page were later taken as evidence that it was written by Michael Servetus, of Villeneuve. Never did author get a more hostile reception, for both Catholics and Reformers were bitterly opposed to him. Tried before a Catholic tribunal at Lyons he was sentenced to be burnt to ashes at a slow fire. An open door at the rear of his prison, however, enabled him to escape, and he fled to Geneva. Here he was discovered, and after a trial in which Calvin and other reformers were associated with the prosecution, he was on the 27th of October, 1553, doomed by the Syndics and Judges to be burned to ashes along with his books. "So," concludes his sentence, "shall thy days end, and thou shalt be made an example to those who do as thou hast done." On the afternoon of the same day the sentence was executed, Servetus more than once calling aloud "Jesu, Thou Son of the Eternal God, have compassion upon me." Thus with fire and sword the attempt was made to crush out the creed which in these latter days threatens to draw the world after it.

The questions raised by Servetus are those about which discussions are still rife. It is no mere beating the air, but a life and death struggle. It is not now a question as to the authorship of certain books, or as to the literal interpretation of passages or even as to the inspiration of the whole. All of these may be passed over as relatively unimportant in the face of issues that would divest the Almighty of the power of exercising intelligent purpose and rob Christ of his divinity. The strife over such subjects was heard above the crackling of the flames around the body of Servetus. While he in his anguish cried to Jesus as the Son of the Eternal God, Farel bewails the fact that "the wretched man could not be brought to say that Christ was the Eternal Son of God. Thus Servetus like the modern representatives of his school refuses to admit that Christ is "Very God of Very God." He is indeed "the Son of Eternal God," we are told, but "so we are." This is a creed in which Arians and Unitarians agree. So far as they assert anything positive Trinitarians are at one with them but when the Eternal Sonship and Essential Divinity are denied the issue is joined at once. "Call Christ the illimitable God or lost," is the uncompromising speech of the Trinitarian. Thus Farel grieved over the wretched man, and Calvin regarded his views as an "execrable heresy." The modern tendency on the other hand is to accept the humanitarian view as gospel truth. Which is right?

It is evident that such an issue is not to be settled without humble, patient, persevering and prayerful search for truth. Nothing is gained by harsh words and bitter recrimination. Surely the fires of that October day have given to the Reformers a cup to drink that has been bitter enough without adding more of the wormwood and the gall. Every individual has rights which demand not only tolerance but respect. No soul has ever been fired with a conviction that was not based on some phase of truth.

Ours is to speak the truth in love, remembering that we are members one of another.

Nor can it be settled by any appeal to authority. No creed has commended itself to the Christian conscience with such universality as that at Nicea. By Catholic and Protestant it has been viewed as belonging to the very vitals of our religion, yet even such doctrines as those of the Trinity and the Person of Christ are not to be thrust upon us because of the authority of the body that formulated them, but because they are the true life of vital principles. The right of examination into the most sacred shrine must be conceded. Our motto must still be "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." It is no time to lull ourselves to sleep with the assurance that the changes suggested by the new system are but trifling, yet we may be permitted to express the conviction that when the battle is fought out and we anew put on record the things that are most surely believed among us with greater humility and deeper reverence we shall acknowledge Jesus Christ as the Eternal Son of God and our Saviour.
