THE PARENTS' PROBLEM.

Boys are a problem. Many parents have admitted it, in irritation, grief, despair or utter bewilderment, according to their various natures. There is a certain age which the term hobbledehoy seems to express better than any other, at which boys are in everybody's way including their own. G. Stanley Hall, who writes about it in the August number of Appleton's Magazine, calls it the awkward age. Nor is mere awkwardness the worst of it, in many cases. "In the last few years," he says, I have received several hundred letters from parents and friends who do not understand how tardy the development of the ethical nature is prone to be in boys. The burden of this is: My boy is well grown; is a good student in school, is healthful, but is an incorrigible liar. Or "My boy all other-wise, is very obstinate," or very profane, or loathes school and is a chronic runaway. The parents or relatives are at their wits' end, ready for almost any desperate remedy. Dr. Hall holds that one trouble with the American boy is that he has been left too much to the women. The hoodlum age, he says, is the time when the mother should turn the boy over to the father. Fathers, however, seem painfully inclined to shirk their responsibilities in this respect and as a consequence America is full of young cubs, half orphaned, and left to female guidance in school, home and church. It may seem a slight that city gangs defy and outwit the police, or commit petty depredations, break into a store to steal fruit or cigarettes, collect pistols, half of them toy ones, in cellars, sheds or other lairs; plan petty rogeries in dark alleys, scare or insult school girls, play tricks on passersby, swagger and bully each other; but these are nurseries where the criminals of the future are being reared.

A Very Bad Game

An Owen Sound carpenter, who was employed on local contracts, and who has thought it wise to rid the town of his presence, played an extremely low down game last week and one for which he well deserves imprisonment. The story as told by the police is that he communicated with an agency in Toronto stating that he was a respectable man possessed of considerable money and that he desired to employ a woman to act as his housekeeper. On this fact being advertised a highly respectable widow of about thirty years of age applied at the agency and after paying a dollar was given the Owen Sound man's address. She wrote and received a reply telling her to come to Owen Sound as soon as possible. Accompanied by her little son, she arrived in town one night last week only to discover when she called at the address that the man who wanted a housekeeper, wanted her to pose as his wife. This she refused, locking herself in a room for the night. Next day a neighbor kindly gave her shelter and now the poor woman and her child are stranded in the town. The police were informed of the affair and as the result of enquiries learned that the self-termed respectable man had shaken the dust off his shoes. They also learned that he had spread a report prior to the widow's appearance, that his wife, who was a resident in the west was coming to reside with him, so that he had the whole scheme arranged to his own satisfaction. The widow has been advised that she has good grounds for an action for damages as her would-be employer refused to pay her fare back to Toronto or even to reimburse her for all the expense to which she has been put through his heartless conduct. —Times.

A Bad Tramp

On Thursday evening Chief Cringle received a message to go out into Arthur St., near Farewell, to arrest a tramp who had struck a woman with a stone and had threatened to shoot a boy. The chief lost no time in getting to the scene of action and arrested his man in one of the homes of the neighborhood where he was being entertained until the constable's arrival. The chief found a loaded revolver on the tramp and brought him to the lock-up here. On Friday Police Magistrate McGregor sentenced the tramp to six months in jail for vagrancy and he was taken to Guelph Saturday by the chief. The fellow who was one of the filthiest specimens of the hobo tribe ever dealt with by the authorities here, being literally covered with vermin, gave his name as George Belingford, age 69 years and said he was formerly a miner in the Sudbury district.—Mt. Forest Representative.

Barber Champ was out to the trout reserve Monday to wind up the season's catch. It was a great day for "big ones" and the story goes that he broke all records. He landed one that weighed, so it is said, over two hundred pounds. Now when this weight is given an explanation is of course expected. Only for this the Herald would hold back particulars which came in by wireless tele-gram this morning. It appears that the barber and Jim Russell, the big and genial representative of the International Harvester Co., (everybody knows Jim up and down this line and on other lines too) were out in mid-stream on a raft in order to get closer up to the speckled fellows, when Jim got dizzy with the glare of the water all round and fell off. The barber fished him out after strenuous exertion but it is needless to say there was no more fishing done and the season closed very auspiciously for Jim.—Dundalk Herald.

Three Great Features of the "Hecla" Furnace

Fused Joints make the "Hecla" permanently airtight and sanitary. The heated air is fresh and pure, because no gas, dust or smoke can get into the airchamber.

Steel-Ribbed Firepot has steel instead of cast iron flanges. 97 of these steel flanges are fused to the outside of the firepot giving it three times as much radiating surface as any other style. In a three years' test the steel ribbed pot showed a saving of fuel of over 11%.

Triangular Bar Grate enables you to clear any part of the fire of ashes. There are four grates. Each can be shaken separately. It gets all the ashes out—saves coal—and means a clean fire.

Made by the makers of famous "Fecitas Peninsular" Ranges. Stop in and let us show you all the new features of the 1908 "Hecla."

A most deplorable fatality at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hargrave, Egremont, on Monday last, when their little son passed away, a bean lodging in his throat. The little fellow was playing with his sister while the mother was performing in another part of the hall as their playthings were small white beans. The mother knew of the fact when her boy ran to her and in answer to her unable to convey the fact of his condition, other than the word "bean," and position. The little son becoming black in the face his mother was successful in getting him to vomit, this failed to remove the bean, and in less than an hour he was dead. Confusion reigned as to the cause, and with such feelings of the grief-stricken mother can be better imagined. Mr. and Mrs. Hargrave sympathize with everyone in their sorrow, who, for his exceptionally bright child. The funeral will be held on Sunday last to Drummond
