On August 27th a gloom of sorrow was cast over this neighborhood when the news spread that Mrs. John Ellison had passed away to the Great Beyond. She came with her parents from Iona, Scotland, in 1847 and settled in Glenelg township. Her maiden name was Mary J. McEasberna.

In an name was Mary J. McEasberna. In 1856 she married the man of her choice, Mr. John Ellison, a shrewd, industrious farmer, and being equal-ly endowed with principles of industry and economy, made a steady progress in producing a very comfortable home. There was born to them ten of a family, of whom three died in youth, leaving to mourn her loss four sons and three daughters, all now living and living in the neighborhood except two of the sons, namely Alex and William, who are now living in Saskatchewan, N.W.T.

Thirty-two years ago she was baptized her faith in Christ and Mr. Warren. She by the late Rev. Alex. Warren. She became one of the charter members of the Baptist church, organized about that time near their home here, and continued a regular and consistent member until called high-er. She was highly esteemed in the community as a neighbor and a Christian. She was kindly disposed toward all in need and was highly endowed with the gifts of cool judgment and strong will. Her husband survives her, and more than all other, feels her loss, but knows it to be her gain. The funeral service was held on Monday, September 14th, at 10 o'clock, when a large concourse of kind friends and neighbors followed the remains to the family plot in the Markdale cemetery.

Classic City Chronicles.

Politics is the one absorbing topic just now, and it is really amusing to hear the extremists of both parties talk. A rabid Tory affirms that the country will "go to the dogs" should the rascally Liberals be returned to power, while on the other hand a hardened Grit declares that the "Devil will be to pay" if the awfully wicked Tories get possession of the treasury benches at Ottawa. But amid of all this bosh, the independent and intelligent thinker "pursues the even tenor of his way" and votes as he likes.

A postman was heard to remark recently "I wish the elections were over," and no wonder when one serves the loads of campaign literature he has to carry every day. But it is an "ill wind that blows nobody good," for the "stuff" comes in quite handy these frosty mornings for lighting the fire. In fact some of it is so hot as to scarcely need a match to start a blaze.

The following item from the Stratford Beacon may be of interest to readers of the Chronicle: "Stratford can perhaps lay claim to the smallest Canadian horn elector in the Dominion in the person of Samuel Bennington, 227 Mornington St. 'Samie' is 3 feet 9 inches in height and 37 years of age. He was born near Moore field, Tp. of Maryboro', County of Dufferin, May 16th, 1871, and came to this city 14 years ago with his parents. He is a well known character in the city. Day by day he walks the streets with his little wagon, for he is a vendor of small wares, peanuts and candies. He is also a stamp collector, and has one of the best collections in the city. 'Samie's' dwarfage has been natural, being born that way. He is in no way deformed, and is possessed of a keen intellect. He has a vote and is always waiting for election day, when he has a chance of furthering the interests of his candidate."

The inquest on the body of Mrs. Peake, who was so brutally and foully murdered lately, was completed to day, 9th inst. All the evidence pointed to the negro Roughmond as the murderer. It is needless to say that the awful crime has aroused the community as it has never been aroused before, and it is simply due to the law abiding nature of our citizens that the brute wasn't summarily dealt ere he was taken within the walls of the gaol. The time has surely come when the Government should take steps to protect our people from the scourge of tramps.

The work in the Normal School is now in full swing, and the students are busy as nailers these fine days gathering materials for their nature study collections. Note books, hand fuls of weeds, wild flowers, leaves, etc., are the badges which distinguish the Normalite from the ordinary citizen. As far as I can learn the only students from South Grey are Miss Scott, of Durham, Mr. Roy Fletcher, of Ceylon, and Miss L. Gillespie, of Cedarville.

The immense G. T. R. shops that have been in the process of erection for two years are nearing completion. The power house is big enough for a good sized factory alone and the cement smoke stack when finished will be 175 feet high. It is a monster of a chimney, and how men can work so calmly and coolly so far up in the air is a mystery.

The Y. W. C. A. raised $1000 for their building fund in one day recently. Four hundred young ladies patrolled the streets of the city from early morning till 9 o'clock at night selling "tags," and everybody they met, whether Jew or Gentile, bond or free, had to buy a tag or else run the risk of being held up at every corner by some sharp, shrewd ubiquitous saleslady. However, as soon as one bought a tag and pinned it in a conspicuous position he was safe for the day.

One day last week a bullet came crashing through a window pane of the primary room of the school where your scribe is principal, but fortunately no one was hurt. So far the careless gunner has not been located.

"You say, madam," said the smart K.C. to the woman in the witness box, "that the defendant is a sort of relation of yours. Kindly explain what you mean by 'sort of relation,' and just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, you see, it's like this," explained the willing witness. "His first wife's cousin and my second husband's first wife's aunt married two brothers named Jones, and they were cousins to mother's aunt. Then, again, his grandfather on his mother's side and my grandfather on my mother's side were second cousins, and his stepfather married my husband's stepmother, after his father and my mother died. And his brother Jack and my husband's brother Fred married twin sisters. I ain't, never figured it out just how close related we are, but I've usually looked on him as a sort of cousin."

Whereupon the judge immediately adjourned the case for a week.

The corner or small square china dishes are being done away with, it being no longer good form to display one board or cut-glass, etc.

Pictures are not necessary in the dining room, and if any be placed there, care should be taken that they do not give the dining room a crowded effect.

In the event of a sudden leakage of water or gas pipes make a thick paste of yellow soap and whitening and rub little water, and place it over the leak.

Take a piece of waste, such as engineers use, roll it into a ball and use it to dust with. It polishes the furniture at the same time it removes the dust.

When rewiring window screens cut up old wire to fit inside of hot air registers in the floor. This will save articles that often disappear down the furnace pipes.

A plain paper is best for the average size dining room and deep yellows, buffs and cream will be found to contribute a light and cheerful tone to dark rooms.

When making bread it is unnecessary to knead your dough often. Once when you make your sponge and when you mould it into loaves for oven is enough.

To extract juice of lemon or orange make more juice will be obtained if the fruit is first covered with cold water and allowed to come to a boil before the fruit is cut.

Chopped beef or pork cracklings are good to use in Indian bread, which is usually served warm, or they may be mixed with bread and mashed potato seasoned and fried like sausage.

Melted beef drippings or tallow can be used in place of lard in the top of jelly. Be sure when cold to cover the space around the edge where it has shrunk away from the glass.

Coke should be used in every well-regulated kitchen. It makes a good clear fire, and gives a steady heat. Coal will be necessary to start the fire, but coke will alone be used after.

To make an inexpensive white cake that is like angel food, beat the whites three eggs, add one cup of sugar, one-half cup of boiling water, one cup of flour and one teaspoon of baking powder.

To make perpetual paste, dissolve half an ounce of alum in two teacupfuls of boiling water, add a few drops of oil of cloves and let boil. This will keep for months.

Fancy aprons can be made from the fancy fronts of lingerie waists which have been discarded by rounding the lower edge for apron and adding a belt, and an extra touch of lace or ribbon if desired.

When cooking braised steak, stew, or soups that require a little thickening, instead of the ordinary mixing of flour and water, sprinkle half a cupful of rolled oats when first putting on the stew.

A simple remedy for neuralgia is to apply a grated horseradish prepared the same as for table use, to the temple when the head or face is affected, and to the wrist when the pain is in the arm or shoulder.

In washing dishes in the white porcelain sinks if one would use a wooden chopping bowl for a dishpan and wrap the end of the wire dish strainer with cloth it would be found to prevent many scratches which are so hard to clean off.

To clean oilcloth walls, steam walls and ceiling thoroughly by placing a pail of hot water in the room; close doors and leave for about an hour. Then wash with soap and water. You will be surprised to see how quickly dirt will be removed.

Hot water is a good use for left-over oatmeal. Make a batter as for bread, add the oatmeal and beat in well. Put in a lively yeast, and let stand over night. Add a little salt and soda and bake on a pancake griddle. An egg or two is an improvement.

When putting up crab apple jelly get 10 cents' worth of vanilla beans from any drug store. When the juice is strained and measured throw in piece of vanilla bean and let it boil until jelly is made. It gives apple jelly a fine and delicate flavor.

An experienced and expert housekeeper, a model mother and grandmother, makes it a point to knock on the kitchen door before entering. This degree of privacy—deference, if you please—she accords her domestic helpers, who give evidence of appreciation.

For a severe sprain of the ankle immerse as soon as possible in hot water, as hot as it can be borne, and keep it there for twenty or twenty-five minutes, adding more hot water as it cools. For Chronic Diarrhoea.

"While in the army in 1863 I was taken with chronic diarrhoea," says George M. Felton, of South Gibson, Pa. "I have since tried many remedies but without any permanent relief, until Mr. W. A. Miles of this place persuaded me to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. One bottle of which stopped it at once." For sale by all Drug Stores.

Mrs. B.—I suppose you find your daughter very much improved by her two years' stay at college?

Mrs. Proudmother—La, yes! Mary Elizabeth is a carnivorous reader now, and she frequently impoverishes music. But she ain't a bit stuck up—she's unanimous to everybody, and she never keeps a caller waitin' for her to dress; she just runs in nom de plume, an' you know that makes one feel so comfortable.

SNAKES AND THEIR BITE

If you hear the word "snak India," "cobra" instantly and naturally comes to your mind, as the col generally supposed to be the deadly of all snakes of India. There are other snakes which are more dangerous, and it seems the cobra must descend from the pedestal on which he has been placed and do his basking on a back seat.

India offers a limitless field for study of snakes—both real and imaginary—the latter are innumerable there are few Anglo-Indians who made especial study of these intriguing and important reptiles or exhibited any original matter on subject. Most of the Indian residents information about poisonous reptiles of the country is derived from what written by Europeans at home whose observations have been confined to glass-jar or museum specimens.

Recent research and investigation have given the medical profession much more knowledge of snake venom than it possessed formerly, and unfortunate sufferers from snake bite has a fair chance of recovery now if he has instant and intelligent treatment, and the medical attendant knows the species of snake which the biting. The poison of the cobra is twice as virulent as that of sea snakes is eight times as deadly. With increased knowledge of snake venom a more rational treatment through antivenene has introduced into practice, but essential that the attending physician should correctly identify the snake which caused the trouble, so that strength of his poison may be known and treated accordingly.

Little Bob, who for some mo

had invariably ended his eye prayer with "Please send me a brother," announced to his mother that he was tired of praying for he did not get, and that he did believe God had any more little to send.

Not long afterward he was called into his mother's room very early the morning to see twin boys had arrived during the night. He looked at the two babies critic and then remarked, "It's a thing I stopped praying, or they been three of them."
