HUMOROUS AND ANECDOTAL

Briggs—How do you like these cigars?
Griggs—First rate. What are they made of?
Golf—Will you come around again to-morrow?
Guest—Dunno. I've arranged to get married to-morrow. Perhaps I can postpone it.
"Waiter, is this egg fresh?"
"Yassuh, yessah. Laid this mornin'."
"Hm. Waiter, was the hen under oath when she cackled?"
"Isn't there danger," said the timid man, "of dropping this from an airship on the people below?"
"That isn't the worst," answered the candid inventor. "You're lucky if the whole airship doesn't fall on you."
"Could I paint your old cow?" ventured the city artist.
"Sartinly, stranger," laughed the old farmer, as he mopped his brow with a handkerchief. "Faint her green and see will look so much like the grass the tramps can't see her and milk her on the sly."
 The three-year-old child of the king and queen of Spain has been named Jaime Leopoldo Alejandro Isidoro Enrique Alberto Alfonso Victor Juan Pablo Maria. It is not known whether it is a girl or a boy, as the jumble of letters looks more like an explosion on a printing office than like the name of a person.
 An Italian went to the civil service commission's rooms to be examined for a laborer's position. He answered most of the questions correctly. Finally they asked him if he had ever been naturalized. He seemed a bit puzzled, but at last his face lighted up.
"I know what you mean, Scratonia da arm. Yes, Lesta week."
Mr. Stubb, in astonishment,—Gradious Maria, that tramp has been singing in the back yard for the last half hour.
Mrs. Stubb—Yes John, it is all my fault.
Mr. Stubb—Your fault?
Mrs. Stubb—Indeed it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I boiled up the bird seed.
 At a dinner one day some men were discussing the merits of different species of game. One preferred quail, another duck, another woodcock, and another still thought a quail the most delicious article of food. The discussion and the dinner ended about the same time.
"Well, Frank," said one of the men, turning to the water at his elbow, "what kind of game do you like best?"
"Well, massa, to tell the truth, almost any kind of game will suit me, but what I like best is an American eagle served on a silver dollar."
 There is a certain member of the British House of Commons, a reserved different person who had been making a rather lukewarm suit to a young woman of his choice.
 This had gone on a long time, during which the member had frequently taken the lady to attend the house, with the rules whereof she became somewhat acquainted.
 One day the member brought some flowers, saying, "May I offer you my handful of flowers?"
 When the despairing lady replied, "I move to amend by omitting all after the word hand."
 The little sailboat was becalmed. Can't you whistle and raise the wind? he asked.
"I'm afraid to try," she answered.
"What are you afraid of?" he asked.
"I'm afraid you might attempt to kiss me when I got my lips puckerd," she said.
"I'll do nothing of the kind," he promised.
"Nothing doing then," she declared.
"No kiss, no pucker," she declared.
 Whereupon the withdrew the rash promise he had made and although the boat continued to remain in the becalmed state they cared not a single care.
 An Englishman witnessing his first baseball was struck by a hot one off the bat. On coming to he asked faintly, "What was that?" "A foul," they told him, "only a foul."
"My word," he exclaimed, "I thought it was a mule."
"Have you ever loved and lost?" signed the swan.
"Nope," responded the maiden, promptly. "I've won every breach of promise suit I ever brought."
Mary had a little lamb—
 You've heard this tale before;
 But have you heard she passed her plates?
 And had a little more?
 The man at the desk had stopped the book agent in the middle of his narangue.
"I've no doubt the work you are selling is all right and a good one," he said, "but I am quite sure I don't want it. I don't care to have you out, but this is my business day and I haven't time to listen to you. You don't mind it, do you?"
"I don't mind being turned down," answered the book agent. "I'm used to that. You see the fourteen, straight, since I struck the building. But you're the first one that's done it kindly, and that—that sort of breaks me all up you know. Good day, sir."
 At a dinner, recently, William J. Bryan was joking about his repeated attempts to be elected President, although Mr. Bryan considers them no joke at that.
"After a time," he said, "I shall be in the position of the man, somewhat worse to wear, who came into a dance in Texas. The floor manager saw him and let him manager manager back. Then the floor manager pushed him out. He came back. Finally the floor manager kicked him out, and he rolled down a flight of stairs. At the bottom of the stairs he considered that matter. 'I know what it means,' he said. 'They can't fool me. Those people in there do not want me to attend that dance.'" agitation and asked for a blank. A pad was handed to her and she hurriedly wrote a message. It did not seem to satisfy her, however, for she tore it in two pieces and proceeded to write another. On reading it over the second message seemed equally unsatisfactory. Seizing the pen a third time she agitatedly wrote another message and smilingly handed it to the clerk. It read as follows,—
"Darling come back. Will meet you at the eight o'clock train."
 Impelled by curiosity, the clerk picked the other two messages together.
 The first discard read,—
"You need not come. I never wish to see your face again."
 The second was hardly less emphatic, for it ran,—
"If you think I will ever forgive you, you are much mistaken."

ANTS ARE GOOD FIGHTERS.
"On the morning of August 11," says a writer in Suburban Life. "I gathered a few black ants and a number of their small, brown, egg shaped cocoons from an ant hill in my yard and placed them in a shadow glass box, an artificial nest, where I watched their behavior.
"Not long after this I discovered a winged black queen promenading under the apple tree—very likely a blood sister of the others, for when I placed her with them she was not attacked, as was a large ant with a red thorax that I introduced among them.
"Strange how ants recognize both friends and enemies through the sense of smell rather than by the sense of sight. No sooner do two ants meet than they cross noses, so to speak, in order to ascertain who is who. If the insects find that they belong to different communities war is at once declared.
"This was the case when the ant with the red thorax was confined with the black ants. How vicious both species were, how they snapped at and bit each other! One black ant succeeded in grabbing an antenna (or feeler) of her antagonist, to which she held as the big red ant dragged her from place to place.
"Another black smelled her opportunity and caught the hind leg of the enemy, who was thus greatly handicapped in her movements. Still, she succeeded in killing both black ants, although she could not free herself from their death grip until I came to her assistance.
"The queen had remained inactive during the conflict and had taken no part in cleaning up the nest; when all was again in order a worker ant approached her and after a short antenna conversation began to tug at her wings. Apparently this was to give the royal sister to understand that she must now discard them and assume the responsibilities of egg laying, the work for which she had been most carefully reared.
"The young queen was not inclined to give up her gauzy appendages, however, so presently the worker
