Mrs. Wm. Graves, of Chester, Nova Scotia, says: "In the spring of 1904. my son was so bad that nobody thought he would live through the spring, but your PSYCHINE came as a God send. He could scarcely walk from his lounge to the table without fainting, and he had night sweats so bad I had to put his bed out of doors to dry every morning. His cough was terrible. Thanks to PSY-CHINE this has disappeared and he is now quite well."

Limited, four years after, (August 11th, 1908), Mrs. Graves says: "I am confident PSYCHINE saved my son's life, for the doctors did not think he would live the summer out, in fact he was a walking skeleton. It was your medicine that cured him, for to-day he is as well as ever."

No remedy has anything like the number of wonderful permanent cures to its credit as Dr. T. A. Slocum's great remedy PSYCHINE. There is life in every dose. Send coupon for sample. It is an infallible remedy for disorders of the Throat, Lungs, Chest and Stomach.

great clouds raced across the hollow sky, and the merciless wind trampled the sounding prairies like a vast army. Up high upon the sharp peak of the bluff stood a young Indian, his halfnaked bronze body glistening in the eerie light. Over his head in both hands he held aloft the skull of a buf-Mrs. James Turnbull is seriously ill falo, and he was crying passionately back the bison. He was hungry; his were debased, his sisters debauched. No more were they a mighty people fed by the hand of God. They were a broken remnant fed by the hand of man. Once God's great herd of cattle roamed right up to the teepee smoke, and they could go out freely and kill and eat. Now, if they were starving, they dare not kill a stray calf. His voice rose and fell, wild, passionate, pathetic. His voice would break, and knew his bronze bosom was wrenched by a voiceless grief. Then up from the black shadow of the coulee rose an old and feeble squaw. She gained the oluff, and taking his arm, she led him away. And as they passed me in the dark I heard the Indian sob-and it is not often that a white man has heard an Indian sob.

The other days the boys around here went out squirrel hunting. They got one red-that's all. But they enjoyed themselves just the same, for they knew there would be a hot supper waiting for them when they got home whether they shot anything or not. They would get a hot dinner, no matter how late they were, and it was all sport. How different it would have been had they tramped all day to shoot their supper, with hunger gnawing at their yitals, and knowing that hunger gnawed at the vitals of the little helpless band at home crouching for warmth over the wigwam fire in the shelter of the pines!

I noted a band of fine young red men the other day at the Herald road race. Here they were, in the midst of a district which was once the finest hunting grounds in the world. From Scarboro | Heights to Burlington Heights, from the great lakes north, there was nothing like it; and to-day, they would tramp fifty miles before they would even see a black squirrel.

I wonder was it all fair and right? How would we like it if from another planet came a race immensely superior to us in crafts and arms-superior to us intellectually as well-who would use on us the equivalent of smallpox, firewater, and shooting-irons, and who would wipe us off the face of the earth to all intents and purposes, so that one of us a hundred years from now would be a curiosity in a crowd, a pathetic relic of a great people running for a silver cup with his conquerors?

Don't get gay. The people on some dominant planet may be even now planning to reach our earth, and when they come-oh, howdy de do!
