HYMENEAL

HOLLAND-LEVINE.

Last Tuesday evening, December 28th, at the new Auditorium in Chicago, Miss Annie Levine, of Durham, Ontario, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Holland, of Chicago, under a canopy of roses. Rabbi Lapham performed the ceremony in the presence of 300 guests.

The hall was adorned with roses ferns and palms. The bride wore a gown of white liberty satin, trimmed with silver pearls and carried a bouquet of Lillies of the Valley. Her veil was held by a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a gray liberty satin gown trimmed with gray applique. The groom's mother wore a silver gray gown, trimmed with Irish point lace. Miss Livingstone, as maid of honor, wore gown of pale blue silk, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Dr. M. Meyers was the best man.

The bridesmaids were Misses Weiner and Kalman, who wore gowns of cream satin with silver trimming and carried bouquets of American beauties. Master Ralph Levine carried the ring, and little Miss Jeanette Redlich was flower girl. The ushers were Dr. S. Wainer and M. Cohen. The master of ceremonies was Mr. Louis Redlich, and the reception was held in the banquet hall, Garden's orchestra furnishing excellent music for the evening.

Among the out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Levine, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Schell, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Fried-lauder, of Denver; Miss Krasus, Mr. Ruberts, of Milwaukee; Wash,
Mr. and Mrs. Speigh, of Benton Harbor, Mich.

A number of telegrams were received from all parts of the States and Canada.

Many valuable presents were sent in, amounting to about a thousand dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Holland left for a trip through the south. On their return they will reside in Chicago.

The Chronicle joins the many friends of the bride here in extending congratulations.

Parisian Sage, the Hair Grower, is Now Sold in Canada on Money Back Plan

It's a mighty good thing for the women of Canada that Parisian Sage can now be obtained in every town of consequence.

No preparation for the hair has done so much to stop falling hair and eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe which is the cause of 97 per cent of hair troubles.

These pernicious, persistent and destructive little devils thrive on the ordinary hair tonics.

Parisian Sage is such an extraordinary and quick acting rejuv-enator that Macfarlane & Co., who are the agents in Durham, guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant, lustrous hair that compels admiration.

And a large bottle of Parisian Sage costs only 50c. at Macfarlane & Co's, and all over Canada.

Something to Be Sure Of.

This anecdote is attributed to Rev.
Wm. Patterson, of Philadelphia, formerly of Toronto, although as he is the high-salaried pastor of a very wealthy church it seem scarcely appropos. It is said that he once remarked, in a circle of his brethren, that he thought ministers ought to be humble and poor, like their Master.
"I have often prayed," said he,
"that I might be kept humble; I never prayed that I might be poor—I could trust my church for that!"

IS A FAMOUS HOSTESS

LADY ST. HELIER ALSO WRITES
BOOK OF MEMOIRS.

Contemporary of Lady Cardigan Also Commits Her Reminiscences to Print, But She Has None of the Vitriolic Stories and Anecdotes of Her Rival Author—She Has New Light on Thomas Carlyle.

You will hear it said that a book of reminiscences must be indiscreet, or written in red ink, if it is to be interesting. That is not so, for discretion may be the better part of autobiography. It all depends upon the writer, what he or she has to tell, and how it is told.

There is triumphant proof of this contention in Lady St. Helier's "Memories of Fifty Years," which Mr.
Edward Arnold has just published. It has no "orrid revelations," no "blazing indiscretions," and yet it is interesting from beginning to end. That is because Lady St. Helier has much to tell us, without telling us too much, and because she tells it well, in a quiet, friendly way, as of somebody talking by the fireside. Moreover, just as in good talk, there now and then comes in the phrase you read twice, for instance where she describes somebody as a "sort of whispering gallery."

Our author has, as Mrs. Jeune, Lady Jeune, and, when her husband becomes a peer, Lady St. Helier, long been a figure of "light and leading" in London society. She has known everybody worth knowing, been in touch with events in the making, and her story of it all is informing and agreeable. A Seaforth Mackenzie herself, her grandmother was a friend of Sir Walter Scott, who called her the "Chieftain's Daughter." Then her mother was a friend of the Duke of Wellington, which circumstance gives us an anecdote, of the only meeting between him and his old adversary, Marshal Soult.

It is a quaint little tale, so: Wellington was traveling in Spain, and by a curious coincidence he and Soult happened to be in the same town on the same day. Soult hearing that his great opponent was there and resting in his carriage in the heat of the day (probably asleep), with true French curiosity went quietly to have a peep at him. The duke slept on unconsciously, but when telling the story, my mother said, he added with a grim smile, "That was the first time Soult had ever caught me napping!"

When the Prince Imperial, slain by the Zulus, was brought home to be buried at Chislehurst, Lady St. Helier happened to be staying there.
"The sorrow of the French mourners was very deep and sincere, but the strongest feeling at first was one of intense curiosity to know how the ill-fated boy had been killed—whether in endeavoring to escape from his hard-hearted foes, or in facing them boldly. It was very curious to witness the satisfaction with which, after seeing his body, they all embraced each other, exclaiming, "Il a etc frappe en face."

How do we, women and men, compare with our forebears—say, as we are good-looking? Lady St. Helier is old enough to be able to give us an answer.

"If I were critical, I should say that women nowadays are prettier than their grandmothers—stronger, better developed, better set-up, and certainly more independent and more self-reliant than they were forty years ago; but I do not think that the men are as handsome or physically as strong and as finely developed as their grandfathers."

English society and social ways have changed greatly within her experience, and with her shrewd eye for the illuminating human circumstances, she says:

The shortness and simplicity of even the best dinners nowadays has added to their pleasure, and the mere fact of the men coming up to the drawing-room so quickly after dinner is over, makes the evening much more agreeable."

The Carlyles Lady St. Helier knew, and her impressions confirm the picture of them which we get from their recently published letters; that they were entirely attached to each other, and yet got on ill. "She was a highly-strung, nervous woman"; he "adored her," but being "a peasant in manner and character," he lacked the "little" outward signs of devotion and affection which are so much to a woman; and so things went wrong:
"I remember her once saying to me in a bitter way, 'My dear, whatever you do, never marry a philosopher'; and that was the key to the enigma —the woman always hungering for proofs of the devotion in which the whole of her daily life was wanting."

Told the Truth and Sat Down.

The man whose sense of politeness was not entirely calloused looked up from his seat in the crowded car at the stout lady who swayed in front of him. Finally he struggled to his feet and offered her the place.
The stout lady hesitated.
"Before I take your seat," she said, "I want you to assure me that you are yielding it in a cheerful frame of mind."

"I really can't do that, ma'am," the man hastily answered. "I am offering you the place merely because I am polite."

And, with a sigh of relief, he slipped back into the seat.

Never Opened His Mouth.

"Not infrequent rays of unconscious humor illumine the otherwise impossible stories that come to my desk from amateurs," says a reader for one of the magazines. "Recently I chanced upon this choice bit:
"John, the husband, and Grace, the wife, ate on together in silence.
There was indubitably an ill-feeling between them. The husband devoured a plate of soup, half a fish, an entree or two, a piece of roast beef, together with sweet, without ever opening his mouth."

CHINESE NEARLY FROZEN

One week ago today, Gee Kwong, a Chinese of Nelson, would have lost his life but for the timely aid rendered by Thomas Binnie, of the Athabasca mine. Gee Kwong was coming in from the Silver King mine, and lost his way and finally succumbed to the cold. In the afternoon Mr. Binnie, who lives about half way between the Silver King and Nelson, going over the road, saw a head sticking out of a drift. He took the unconscious and apparently frozen man to his house, and brought him around, keeping him there that night. The next day he brought the Chinese, who had recovered, to the city.

The following letter has been received by The News:

To the Editor of The Daily News,
Nelson, B. C.

"Sir,—We the Chinese merchants and friends of Nelson, wish to heartily thank the gentleman, Mr. Thomas Binnie, from the Athabasca mine, who rescued one of our countrymen, who was lost in a snowdrift. His name is Gee Kwong, of Nelson, B. C., and he is very grateful to his rescuer."
—The Daily News, Nelson, B. C.

Binnie of Glenelg.—Ed.]

Blue Books.

It is worth noting, in passing, that the fisheries blue book, which formerly made practically unintelligible reading for the outsider, has been rearranged under Mr. Venning's superintendency, and now presents a clearly analyzed, tabulated and indexed form, which enables even the casual reader to obtain with the least unnecessary labor the information he seeks. The Department is to be congratulated upon the improvement which Mr. Venning has made in this regard. Other blue books might be similarly simplified.—Journal, Ottawa.

BODY COVERED WITH ECZEMA

Yet Zam-Buk Cured Him.

Mr. A. M. Brooks, of Wellington St., Steelton, says:

"Ten months ago I contracted eczema, which at first appeared on my neck, later spreading to my chest and body. The doctor thought this was caused by the irritation of my shirt collar and the poison and steam from the Pulp Mill. I began doctoring, but instead of the disease being checked it showed signs of becoming worse; and my neck, chest, and my whole body was soon in a frightful condition.
The skin actually peeled off, leaving the flesh raw.

"I suffered cruelly from the terrible itching and soreness, and was completely confined to the house. Not seeing or feeling any improvement, I next resorted to the ordinary salves and ointments recommended for skin diseases, but although I gave each preparation a fair trial, none seemed to bring about a cure until I began using Zam-Buk.

"From the first application of Zam-Buk I had some relief, and as I persisted with its use daily the soreness was by degrees drawn out and the intense itching and aching completely vanished. Scabs or scales formed over the raw flesh, but Zam-Buk soon cleared away all these, and although the cure was naturally gradual, it was complete."

"If you suffer from any skin disease don't make the above mistake, and try all sorts of things before Zam-Buk.
Get Zam-Buk first! Eczema, ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, cuts, cold sores, scalp sores, face eruptions, chaps, red, rough patches—all are healed and cured by Zam-Buk. Best
