SEEDS!

Long Red Mangel Half Sugar Yellow Globe " Turnip Seeds, Corn

leader that quantity this week as our cusig to find out that there is no paint manu-

Floor-latt if you want to get satisfaction in ent repainting, call and see what we have to a not giving satisfastion, we will show you a ele to revive its colors and make it last twice oors secure a can of our Crack Filler. odwork are dirty, try a can of our Flaxoap. gives the pacts a fine lustre finish. our Buggy Paint, your buggy will look as

Bushes, Whitewash Brushes and Gillet's

BLACK

NTED Thoroughbred

to fill L. C. Karstedt's Hand-Pails and Milk Cans.

ng will be furnished at present 1st, after which there will be an

of Granite and Tinware always

Oil--American Canadian I3c. REPAIRED PROMPTLY

KARSTEDT

asmith and Plumber

City Bakery

rters for all Bakery Goods

il kinds of Cooked Meats, Cured Meats, Meats, Groceries, Flour, etc.

Fresh Fruits and Oysters in Season

ews, etc., served on short notice at all hours

ROWE, CONFECTIONER AND GROCER a Street, Durham

EUROPE'S PEACEMAKER

May 12, 1910

King Edward Followed Out His Mother's Ideal,

Britain's Well-Beloved Sovereign Was a Gentleman, a Patron of the Arts, a Statesman, a Sportsman, a Philanthropist and a Diplomat of Surpassing Ability-His Efforts Often Saved the Peace of Europe.

King Edward the Seventh, or as he will be known in history "The Peacemaker of Europe," who has just died after a reign of nine years and three months, was sixty-nine years of age, having been born Nov. 9, 1841 at nekingham Palace. For half a century he has been perhaps the most nent royal figure in Europescholar, diplomat, sovereign, portsman and gentleman of tasts. eldest son of the ruling sovereign became at the moment of his birth ke of Cornwall, thereby becoming ed to the revenue of that duchy, amounts to over $300,000 per At four weeks of age, he be-Prince of Wales and Earl of Chaster by royal patent. The other titles which he received were: Duke Rothesay, and Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Prince of Saxony, Earl of Carrick, Earl of Dublin, Baron Renfrew, and Lord of the Isles.

He took his first name, Albert, from father the Prince Consort, and his second one, Edward from his grandfather, the Duke of Kent. It was his mother's wish that he should be crowned Albert I., but England had a including the Queen and Prince Con-sort, contracted the ailment. A second and more serious illaess happened in 1871, when he was stricken with typhoid fever. This fever proved very critical, and the whole kingdom was sympathetic and anxious. Prayers were offered in all the churches, and the latest news from the sick chamber was waited for morning and night. The prince's recovery from this long illness was celebrated with a national thanksgiving on Feb. 27, 1872, at St. Paul's, 13,000 persons attending the services and many more witnessing the royal procession from Buckingham Palace to the cathedral.

Visits to Foreign Lands. In the summer of 1855 the prince ed his travels on the continent, visit- preserve the peace of the world. at Trinity College, Cambridge.

paid a visit to Canada and the United being lavish in their tastes. States. Everywhere he was received In his love for sports the late mon-some kindly words, which awoke gen- events. uine approval in the United States.

"My duties," he said, "as represen-

THE LATE EDWARD VII.

predilection for the old names, and he became Edward VII.

His birth was a great day for England, for it meant that the new stock in the throne would be firmly plant-And to-day no kingdom in the world is better off for heirs.

The ceremony of christening the Queen's eldest son, the future King of England, was an event of great impressiveness. The ceremony took place Jan. 25, 1842, in St. George's Chapel, Windsor. The royal sponsors were the King of Prussia, the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, represented by the Duchess of Kent; the Duke of Cambridge, the young Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, Princess Sophia and Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg.

The prince's first training was under the direction of Lady Lyttleton, a sister of Mrs. Gladstone, who was governess to the royal children until the prince was six years old. At the age of seven his education began under the tutelage of Rev. Henry Mildred Birch, who retired from his position in 1851. The next tutor under whose direction the young prince came was Frederick W. Gibbs, who remained with him for seven years. He then went to Edinburgh to pursue his studies under a number of professors.

First Public Appearance. His earliest appearance in a leading part on any public occasion was in 1859, at the laying of the foundation stone of the Lambeth School of Art at Vauxhall. After the death of his father in December, 1861, he naturally became the most desirable functionary at all ceremonies in which beneficent or charitable undertakings were to be recognized by royal approval. This work up to the time he became King occupied a large share of his time and was always performed with dignity, tact and patience. Indeed no prince of any country has ever personally exerted himself more faithfully to render services of this sort to the community. The multiplicity and variety of his engagements on behalf of local and special enterprises made a surprising list and necessarily inwhich few men of high rank would

Among the members of the royal family the late King was called Bertie from his childhood. His father called him by that name; his mother entered it in her daily diary long after he had grown to manhood and become the father of a large family; his wife called him Bertie to the day of his death. dared address him by that name.

prince's youthful days were like those experienced by ters of less distinguished birth. he suffered from an attack of Discount Tability attaching to the celebration of the control of But no outsider, however intimate, ever dared address him by that name. The prince's youthful days were Joungsters of less distinguished birth. In 1853 he suffered from an attack of Diamond Jubilee he took a great part the measles, and the entire family, tative of the Queen cease this day, but in a private capacity I am about to visit before my return home that remarkable land which claims with us a common ancestry and in whose extraordinary progress every Englishman feels a common interest.

His Danish Wife.

In 1862, accompanied by Dean Stanley, he made a journey to the east, including a visit to Jerusalem. The young prince was now of a marriageable age. Speculation was rife as to who would be the lady of his choice. The question was settled in the early part of 1863, when his engagement was announced to Princess Alexandra, the eldest daughter of the King of Denmark. She was three years younger than the prince and, though comparatively poor, was beautiful and accomplished. The marriage was celebrated in St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, on March 10, 1863.

All England rejoiced over the event. Tennyson, who had just been made poet laureate, wrote one of his fine poems, "A Welcome to Alexandra," on this occasion. The princess soon made herself very popular with all classes of the British public, not only by her outward grace of manner, but also by her virtues and amiability. Her husband himself always shared in this popularity, although the stern-er Puritanism of his potential subjects had often been shocked by stories of his dissipation.

The Prince of Wales' marriage to Princess Alexandra was brought about in a romantic fashion, a photograph of the princess arousing the interest of the prince some time before he met his future wife.

The princess came from one of the most remarkable of royal families, one which has been described as a nursery of kings and queens. It furnished a Czarina for the Russians, a consort for a King of Great Britain, ruling monarch for the Greeks, and King of Norway.

The affection and esteem in which the late King was held were never better exemplified than in December, 1871, when he was attacked by tyvolved a sacrifice of ease and leisure phoid fever and for some weeks hung of the public was intense, and the news of his recovery was greeted with great joy. On his first appearance in public to take part in the memorial thanksgiving service" in St. Paul's cathedral on Feb. 27, 1872, the streets along the line of his route were crowded with a cheering multitude.

After his recovery several years were devoted to quiet work, though he as-situations in Europe. His entente with his parents and elder sister, vis- cordiale with France, secured after a ited France. This was the first time meeting with President Fallieres, his that an English sovereign, actual or numerous meetings with Emperor prospective, had entered Paris since William of Germany, his nephew. the days of Henry VI. In 1857 the visits to the Czar of Russia and a host prince went to Germany and spent of audiences and interviews with four months in study at Konigswinter, foreign ambassadors and potentates than three days. on the Rhine. In the fall he continu- have done more than anything else to ing places in Germany and Italy. At Of late years the brief holidays of the laws of the kingdom, without offi- were had taken leave of the other Rome he was received by Pope Pio the late King were almost always cial ceremony. His first official act | members of the royal family at the None. Spain and Portugal were next spent on the continent. He generally was to despatch to the Lord Mayor main entrance soon after midnight.

in the celebration and upon her death in 1901 took up the duties of sovereign, with a capacity that will rank

him among the ablest kings of England. Just on the eve of his coronation there was a thunderbolt message to the effect that he was dying, and the ceremonies had to be postponed.

All the world watched anxiously while his operation was proceeded with and finally amid great rejoicing he was

In the nine years of his reign King

Edward earned for himself the name of peacemaker of Europe. His wide family relations, his unfailing courtesy and his keen diplomatic ability have several times saved delicate again restored to health.

visited, and in July he returned to traveled when abroad as the Earl of the announcement of his father's They drove directly to Marlborough England. Before traveling farther Chester and sometimes as Baron Ren- death, in pursuance of custom. His House. Princess Victoria, who is her the prince finished his fifth term at frew. A private saloon carriage, which Oxford. His education was completed post $35,000, was kept at Boulogne for his use. His trips were exceedingly In the summer of 1860 the prince, expensive, both he and the princess with boundless enthusiasm. He danc- arch when he was Prince of Wales deed at a ball given in his honor at voted much attention to yachting. He Washington, where he was cordially looked forward each year to the rewelcomed by President Buchanan. gatta at Cowes, where he first won The United States indeed was pre- the Queen's cup in 1877 with his pared to receive him with open arms. schooner Hildegarde. He was also Queen Alexandra, the Prince and voice and the consent of tongue and At Hamilton, the last place in Canada fond of horse-racing and won some of Princess of Wales, the Princess Royal, heart, publish and proclaim that the where he made a halt, he nad spoken; the most historic of the English turf Albert Edward was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry in Sweden in 1868 and was elected grand master of England in 1875. The Late King's Tact.

The tact of the late King in social matters has been apparent all the time that he has ruled English society with a rod of steel sheathed in velvet. No prejudices, theories or preconceived ideas were allowed to stand in the way of his decrees. For example, it is due to him alone that all the illfeeling toward the Jewish race has hisappeared in England and that Hebrews are now found occupying seats | Archbishop of Canterbury were in the in the House of Lords, when in the carly days of the Victorian era a Jew was not even allowed the full rights and privileges of ordinary citizenship. Hebrews are also to be found in the front rank of the most exclusive and aristocratic social circles of England. It is another evidence of the tact of the late King that even his most intimate friends and associates were kept in ignorance concerning his political opinions. He always manifested just as much regard and consideration for | flashed throughout the kingdom. Gladstone as for Lord Salisbury. He was never inclined any more toward the Tories than to the Liberals, and neither could claim him as a partisan.

There were few better known figures around London in the season. In the theatre, on the race course or at the opera he was a frequent visitor. From the horse show at Islington, the royal military tournament or the Smithfield show he was never absent. As an agriculturist he did much to stimulate the breeding of all kinds of stock, and he was himself an exhibitor to be reckoned with at all the principal shows.

Short of stature and heavy of build, the King's lack of inches was always a regret to him. When photographed with his wife, he almost invariably stood on a stool to make him look taller than the princess, and the grouping was always arranged to permit of this being done without attract ing notice.

His Ideal Men. An excellent linguist, proficient in French, German and Italian and well able to hold his own in Russian, the late King long and deeply studied foreign politics. His heroes in British political life were the expansionists Cevil Rhodes and Lord Kitcher. Many of his closest friends were colonists. and colonial Ministers have always had a warm welcome from him. Th Imperial Institute and the Colonial Institute, the centres of metropolitan colonial life, were largely the result of his energy and enthusiasm.

King Edward was probably better liked personally in France than any other European sovereign. Certainly he showed more sympathy with the French temperament than ever his mother did. Yet the analysis to which he was subjected by even friendly writers in Paris was at least as cynical as it was appreciative. One of them, writing of him as the King,

"He is made up of antitheses and contradictions. Physically you know him—a body which ought to have the strength of a giant and which has not lost the gracefulness of youth; a hand which seems ready to crush and yet does not shake the earth; a small ear, but one acutely open to the thousand sounds from the four corners of the globe; a blue eye, very gentle and smiling, which behind watchful brows seems always seaching in the dis-tance beyond the visible horison, but stops always on the nearest objects; a good indulgent smile on lips rather

"Morally it is as physically. This improvident man is the most orderly in the United Kingdom. Were he not born to the throne he would have made an incomparable business man. His punctuality is proverbial throughout England. He never arrives late, and he never forgets a social engagement. The smallest details of ceremony interest him. He never leaves a letter forty-eight hours without reply or twenty-four hours without acknowledging its receipt. All correspondence addressed to him passes under his eyes."

Hamilton Hears News. Hamilton, May 7.—The news of the death of King Edward was received that his death would be sudden, and here last evening with deep sorrow. it would not have occasioned great not be for want of a good argument. Special editions of the newspapers surprise if it had occurred without rapidly spread the news and bells in | warning at some social function, as the City Hall and central fire station | a result of heart trouble. Almost to towers were tolled, as well as every church bell. Many public and private meetings were cancelled and the weekly parade of the 13th Regiment was called off.

Madoc Mercury Assigns.
Belleville, May 7.—The Madoc Mercury is in the hands of the bailiff. Wm. McKerracher was the proprietor.

"It Is All Over, But I Think I Have Done My Duty."

These Are Among the Last Words of the First Gentleman of Europe, Who Has Succumbed to a Sharp Attack of Bronchitis Followed by Pneumonia - Sorrowing Relatives Surrounded the Royal Bed.

London, May 7 .- King . Edward VII., who returned to England from a vacation ten days ago in the best of health, died at 11.45 o'clock last night (Friday), in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious hardly more | The people outside the palace only that my beloved father, the King, family followed the Prince and Prinpassed away peacefully at 11.45 to- cess of Wales. sued their official bulletin, which was | FitzRoy, clerk of the council, con-

King breathed his last at 11.45 to- two o'clock this afternoon, when night in the presence of Her Majesty the councillors will, "with one the Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria | high and mighty Prince George is and Princess Louise, the Duchess of now, by the death of our late sove-

(Signed)

"Laking, Reid Powell, Dawson." Pneumonia, following bronchitis, believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors thus far have refused to make a statement. Some of the King's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situation which confronted him with sleepless nights, aggravated, if it did not cause the fatal illness.

Besides the nearest relatives in England, the Duke of Fife and the death chamber. The King's brother, the Duke of Connaught, with his family, is at Suez, hastening home from Africa. The King's daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, will start for England to-morrow. The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come was not a surprise at the last, the people had been expecting to hear is any hour since the evening's bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace and The capital received it without excitement, but sadly, for the King with one of the most popular rulers in the The fashionable restaurants were just emptying, and a few groups of late theatre-goers were making their way homeward through the rain, while a small crowd still hung about the palace, when the streets were fill-'ed suddenly with newsboys crying: "Death of the King!" The papers were quickly seized, and the people discussed the momentous event quietly and soon dispersed. The streets were deserted by one o'clock.

Within a few minutes after the death of the King, the Home Office duty." He seemed then to have reached a full realization that his end was fast approaching.

The Queen and others of the royal family and four doctors had been constantly in the sick room throughout the day. Several hours before his death the King was in a comatose condition, but he rallied slightly between nine and ten o'clock, and appeared to recognize his family. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in his passing. The body lies in the King's chamber, in the northwest wing of the Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great gloomy building, with the exception of Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened.

It was nearly half an hour after the King breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters: "Gentlemen, His Majesty is dead." learned the news when boys appeared The Prince of Wales succeeded to with papers. In the meantime the the crown immediately, according to Prince and Princess of Wales that "I am deeply grieved to inform you | ed with the Queen. The others of the

The physicians soon afterwards is- lors has been issued by Sir Almaric vening the council in the throne "May 6, 11.50 p.m.-His Majesty the room of St. James' Palace at reign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George V., by the Grace of God, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience, with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince George V. with long and happy years to reign over

> The new King, after this proclamation, will address the council and promise to reign as constitutional sovereign. At the end of the meeting King George will issue his first proclamation, requiring all officials to proceed with their duties. Formerly all offices, including the councillors, were vacated on the death of the The aldermen of the City of London will attend the council and swear allegiance. A proclamation has already been issued by the Home Office, requiring theatres to close to-

The court will go into mourning for six months, and the Lord Mayor has his own people was unquestionably ordered that the great bell of St. Paul's shall be tolled throughout the

The new Queen, daughter of the Duke of Teck, was christened Victoria Mary, but was always called the Princess May, and as such was exceedingly popular with the English people. Since her elevation as Princess of Wales her name has not been so familiar, but it is altogether likely that as Queen her first name will be revived, and another, and a great Queen Victoria, will sit on the joint throne of England.

Princess Victoria had the reputa-

THE NEW KING.

was telegraphing the intelligence to the heads of other Governments, and the British diplomats and Colonial

All who knew the King expected

the end he refused to take to his bed,

and was sitting up yesterday in a large chair, so the palace stories go, corroborating the description of him as an unruly patient, which Dr. Ott gave to a Vienna interviewer last

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it's all over, but I think I have done my officials throughout the world.

In New Quarters Near the Garafraxa St. Bridge

> I wish to annource to the public that I am now settled in my new quarters, T. Moran's old stand, near the Garafraxa St. bridge, where I am prepared to cater to their wants in all kinds of custom blacksmithing. All work guaranteed first-class.

M. D. McGRATH

Near the Garafrana St. Bridge

Real..... Bargains

Real drop from regular prices. No marking up first and then marking down to make the prices look like bargains. Our goods will be all sold at

Real Bargains for ten days, beginning Saturday, December 11

Ready-made Suits, Readymade Pants. Overalls, Ladies and Men's Underwear, Blankets, Woollen Sheeting, Prints, Flannelettes, Men's and Boys' Caps and Gloves and a host of other articles.

Real bargains in fresh Fruit Currants, Raisins, Lemons, Oranges, etc. Real bargains in choice Groceries.

S. SCOTT

0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+

STRATFORD, ONT. The great practical training school of Ontario. Three departments-Commercial Shorthand Telegraphy

We assist graduates to positions. The demand upon us for trained belo greatly exceeds the supply the three most recently placed are receiving $45, $50 and - $100 per month respectivley Rusiness men state our graduates are the best. Enter our classes now. Get our free cata-D. A. MGLACHLAN

+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0+0

DURHAM PLANING MILLS

The undersigned begs to announce to residents of Durham and surrounding country, that he has his Planning Mill and Factory completed and is prepared to take orders for

SASH, DOORS - and all kinds of -House Fittings

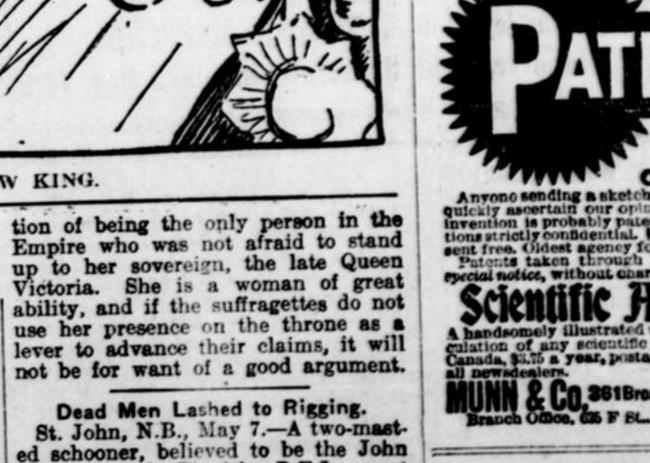

Also a limited amount of iron work and machine repairs. A call solicited. Ask for quotations on your next job.

All persons owing ustan account are requested to call and settle by cash or note on or before the 15th of April.

ZENUS CLARK

A touch of rheumatism, or a

A. Gray, of Tignish, P.E.I., went ashore at Tabusintac Bully, near the mouth of the Miramichi, in a snowstorm on Wednesday night. Two men who rowed out from shore Thursday

could not get within fifty feet of the three dead men lashed to the rigging.

wreck owing to the high sea, but saw twinge of neuralgia, whatever the trouble is, Chamberlain's Liniment drives away the pain at once and cures the complaint quickly, First application gives relief. Sold by all dealers.